KIDNAPER HUNT COVERS U. S.

SEE ROOSEVELT AS IN FEAR OF WILD CONGRESS

He Wants Radicals, but Not Reds.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is seen these days in a paradoxical attitude toward the congress which will be elected next month and in January will begin hewing and hacking at the New Deal.

Most observers agree that the 74th American congress will be a radical congress and some think it will be a wild congress. The differences of opinion are in the shades of red.

It is declared that the President is apprehensive that the next congress may run out of bounds, may prescribe wild cures for a nation still anything but robust even after 18 months of the New Deal.

Suggests Desperate Remedies.

Some of the President's recent business visitors have gone away with suggestions, implanted with Rooseveltian subtlety, to the effect that they had better coöperate with him now in pushing his recovery schemes or they might face desperate and costly remedies invoked by the coming congress.

Behind these psychological hints, however, there is said to lurk in the President's mind a genuine fear that he may not be able to hold the congress within reasonable lines.

Members who feel certain of returning in January, and budding new ones as well, are already hatching up bills for a 30 hour week for labor, for printing press money inflation, for paying war veterans a bonus with fresh paper money, for huge public works expenditures and a more generous dole.

In this situation the President has failed to take any action, and therein is the paradox. For, while he is reported to be apprehensive lest the new congress be overradical, he is eager that conservative Republicans should make no headway against the imposing majorities he enjoyed during the last session.

Wants Radicals, but Mild.

He is said to want the congress to be radical enough to swallow the fresh grist of New Deal bills which have been prepared by the professors of the brain trust in the last half year, but not so radical that it will pass the types of legislation which even the New Dealers would concede to be disastrous.

It has been suggested to the President that he issue a public plea for the election of sound congressmen and for the defeat of the ranting radicals. But so thin is the line of demarcation between the New Deal radicals and the wild men, it is said, that he dares not risk trying to educate American voters to the difference.

Sinclair of California is running about that harassed state proclaiming himself loudly a New Dealer, and for all that the voters have been informed he is just that. Bilbo of Mississippi, whose wild schemes outrank even those of his former colleague of the public pay rolls, Smith Wildman Brookhart, seems fated to come to the senate as a Democratic New Dealer. How many other champions of socialistic creeds are running in 47 states—Maine has already voted—no one knows.

Business Gets No Better.

Toward the end of the last congress all the New Dealers, and even the New Deal leaders in congress itself, sought to wind up the session quickly because it was said to be having a bad effect upon business. It was then said that if congress would only adjourn business immediately would be relieved of fear and suspicion, and that billions of pent-up credit would be loosed, orders would flood upon industry, and the march to prosperity begin.

Congress did adjourn, but the recovery did not set in. Fears of congress became fears of the New Deal and the reluctance of the President to assuage those fears continued to hold back commercial activity. Now the pall is spread of an approaching session of congress which is generally awaited with senses of foreboding.

There are some observers who have seen of late a swinging of sentiment among the voters back toward conservative principles of government, and these observations give rise to thoughts that there may be a conservative strength in the coming congress, a strength able to sustain presidential vetoes over the worst radical measures, if not to exert a telling influence in the consideration of the measures advanced by the brain trusters of the New Deal.

WATER OFFICIAL SHOT DOWN AT DOOR OF HOME

Killer Confesses; Is 'Stir Crazy.'

Michael G. Walsh, 55 years old, 5249 South Union avenue, local politician in the 14th ward and foreman in the city water pipe extension department, was shot and killed yesterday in the doorway of his home.

The slayer, Jay Breen, 38 years old, 4525 Emerald avenue, a paroled convict, was captured a few minutes after the shooting in a basement at 5308 Lowe avenue. Breen was described as "stir crazy," a condition of mental disturbance attributed to long confinement in prison. The underworld term for being in prison is being "in stir."

Breen confessed, police said, that he shot Walsh "for cheating my mother and sister out of $8,700."

Later he told an incoherent and variable yarn about collecting money to help families of wayward girls and asserted that he shot Walsh for retaining all of the "several hundred thousand dollars" donated.

Wife Witnesses Tragedy.

Walsh, a former deputy coroner under Peter M. Hoffman and Oscar Wolff, had just returned home from work when his doorbell rang, according to his widow, Mrs. Agnes Walsh.

"Michael answered the doorbell," she said. "I was in another room. I heard a strange voice and then Mike said, 'No, no. Put that thing away. You've got the wrong guy.' Then I heard several shots and I ran out just in time to see my husband fall. I caught a glimpse of the other man as he ran away."

Edward H. Davis, 18 years old, 5343 Emerald avenue, and Victor Hitzerburger, 25, of 5328 Lowe avenue, were passing at the time of the shooting.

Victim Tries to Fight.

Policemen Thomas F. Conroy and Raymond Boske of the Stockyards station, summoned by neighbors, traced the killer's movements through children who saw him flee. Cornered in the basement a few blocks from the Walsh home, Breen surrendered without violence. His revolver was found hidden under a box in the basement, six empty shells in it.

Walsh had been struck by three shots, one in the head and two in the body. He grappled with his slayer, but fell and his body rolled down the porch steps.

Several theories were being considered by the police, who did not place much credence in Breen's explanation.

Link Case with Brother's.

The most likely theory, according to Supervising Captain John Prendergast, harked back to the murder last New Year's day of Michael Regan, who also used the name Walsh, by three gunmen who invaded his home at 9223 Houston avenue.

"Regan was a nephew of Walsh," Capt. Prendergast said. "Albert Ciha is serving 99 years for his part in the murder and we have been seeking Matthew Breen, a brother of Jay, as one of the killers. Walsh had been actively pushing the search for Matt Breen and I believe Jay killed Walsh to protect his brother."

Breen, under questioning by Prendergast and Capt. Thomas J. Duffy, admitted he was Matthew's brother, but denied the relationship was a factor in the slaying. He declared that his brother, who is wanted by federal

Film Co. Plane Cracks Up at Sea; One Dies

BY RALPH J. FRANTZ.

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD S. S. WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The attempt of Fox Movietone News to gain a day in showing films of the assassination of King Alexander I. of Jugo-Slavia, smuggled out of France, ended in tragedy today, a day out of New York. The huge Sikorsky seaplane sent out to meet the S. S. Washington to pick up the films cracked up trying to reach the liner in a rough sea.

Henry W. Johnson, mechanic and co-pilot employed at Floyd Bennett air field by a private operator, was drowned, but the other five occupants of the plane were saved by heroic work of a lifeboat crew commanded by Chief Officer R. E. Dooley. As the lifeboat aproached the sinking plane, to which survivors were clinging, Dooley asked for volunteers to swim to the wreckage to put lines around the exhausted men.

Two Go Over Side.

Almost before he had finished speaking, John Breda, 22 years old, of Watervliet, N. Y., was over the side and swimming in the icy waters. He was followed by Robert Fiolka, also a New Yorker. Reaching the wreckage, the pair placed the lines and the numbed survivors were pulled into the lifeboat.

Jack Kuhne, flying editor of Fox Movietone, was then rescued from a pontoon on which he was drifting away from the wreckage. Kuhne kept waving frantically a piece of silk parachute such as navy flyers wear around their necks, fearing that the lifeboat had not seen him.

Johnson, who is survived by his wife, originally clung to the wreckage with the others, but was washed away by a huge wave. The lifeboat heading for the wreckage passed not far away, but changing its course to rescue him might have meant loss of the four clinging to the slowly sinking plane. Johnson, holding onto an inflated cushion, seemed to be in no immediate danger, and Dooley logically chose to rescue the four first. But when the lifeboat again sought Johnson he had disappeared, and the cushion was floating, empty.

The plane first attempted to pick up the films in a water tight can trailing off the stern of the liner, but the grappling hook snapped off when it struck the water. Then it was decided to alight despite the heavy sea. On a second attempt the pontoons hit the water, bounced, and came down just as a heavy swell struck. The right pontoon buckled and snapped off. The right wing dipped into the water and the plane nosed over.

FORBIDS USE OF WORD 'DUTCH' TO DENOTE NETHERLANDS' PEOPLE

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 17.—The word "Dutch," hitherto used in the United States and Britain to denote anything pertaining to Holland, henceforth is officially banned, according to a circular issued today by the ministry of education.

The circular says "Dutch" must be replaced by "Netherland." This action is taken to remove all possibility of confusion between "Dutch" and "Deutsch" [German] to the disadvantage of Holland.

The Dutch Indies, incidentally, will now be known as the Netherland Indies.

Woman Cycle Star Falls to Death on Stage

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Three thousand persons in the Roxy theater held their breaths this afternoon as Mary Larkin De Phil, her white tights and brilliant spangles glittering in the spotlight, rode a unicycle across a 75 foot wire 40 feet above the stage.

Charles De Phil, her husband, who had dangled from the wheel in midair performing daring acrobatics, already was on the board waiting for his partner to descend to take the bow with him. The huge auditorium vibrated with applause.

The woman in white reached the dismounting platform at the left side of the wire, near the wings. She stepped from the silvery-spoked unicycle toward the platform. She missed her footing, plunged downward and landed on the hollow sounding boards behind the wings.

Several Women Faint.

Several women fainted and the curtain came down on De Phil, still visible, as he kneeled beside the still form that was hidden from view by the wings. A house physician, hurried to the spot as stage hands bore the woman away. The show went on.

Early tonight, in Polyclinic hospital, the woman performer died. Her husband sat by her cot, but she never regained consciousness.

The plunge caused a commotion in the crowded house, but there was no panic. Women and men alike, deeply affected, left in numbers. Several of the women were taken to the Emergency hospital for treatment. The majority of spectators, however, remained in their seats, murmuring, as the show went on.

Team Known as De Phils.

Mary Larkin De Phil was 26 years old. In vaudeville circles she and her husband were known as the De Phils, but were booked as the Flying Phillips, daring aerial acrobats. They were to have ended their second week at the Roxy tonight.

What caused the woman to fall probably will never be known, according to theater officials. She had gone through the same performance thousands of times—as high as 150 feet at Columbia park in New Jersey—without an accident.

Quiz Weathy Baker in Death of Eli Daiches

Irving Weitzmann, 5000 Cornell avenue, well-to-do south side baker, was held in custody of police last night after being questioned in connection with the murder on March 3 of Eli Daiches, wealthy official of the Thomas M. Bowers Advertising agency. Weitzmann is a brother of Louis A. Weitzmann, chairman of the board of the advertising agency.

Acting on orders of Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, Weitzmann was taken into custody secretly at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. He was then taken to the state's attorney's office and held while three men, who had been arrested Monday, were being grilled.

Questioned by Prosecutor.

Last night at 6 o'clock Assistant State's Attorney Richard Regan began questioning Weitzmann. Shortly before 12:30 this morning the prosecutor spirited Weitzmann out of a rear door of his office. It was learned that the baker was returned to the detective bureau, where he was held for the night.

Prosecutor Regan refused to reveal the results of his questioning either of Weitzmann or the three other men held. Weitzmann's attorney, Harold Levy, spent three hours in a vain attempt to effect his client's release.

Petitions for writs of habeas corpus in behalf of these three men, who have been identified in the holdup of a Berwyn paving contractor, were filed yesterday in the Criminal court. Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan made them returnable this morning when the state's attorney indicated that his investigation was not yet complete.

The men held are John Sullivan, 37 years old, 2128 South Oak Park avenue, Berwyn; John Menard, 32 years old, 6125 Kenwood avenue, and James Murphy, 30 years old, 307 East 71st street.

Seek Another Suspect.

Murphy and another man known as Jack London, both of whom have been suspected in other murders, have been sought since the early phases of the Daiches investigation. Squads of police were touring the south side early this morning seeking London.

Daiches was slain in a blast of shotgun fire by two hoodlums who drew up alongside of his automobile as it left his apartment in the Sherry hotel, 1725 East 53d street. At the time the only witness police found was Daiches' Negro chaffeur. The latter, however, was in a poor position to see the killers. Since then an unidentified witness has come forward with what investigators hope will be a clean cut identification of the slayers.

Seeking a motive for the slaying, the investigation, in charge of Prosecutor Regan and Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homicide squad, took several angles. One was in the tangled affairs of the advertising executive.

Life Insured for $300,000.

It was learned Daiches had transferred his entire interest to Louis Weitzmann in return for several loans. In addition, it was learned, Daiches' life was insured for more than $300,000, with the company controled by Weitzmann as beneficiary. This fund is tied up by a court injunction obtained by the widow, Mrs. Belle Daiches, until the investigation of her husband's death is complete.

After making it possible for Weitzmann to control 425 of the 430 shares of the company, Daiches then placed his own affairs in such a position that he could withdraw from the company within a month's time and set up his own agency.

ARREST FATHER; WIFE JAILED IN $50,000 BONDS

Death Penalty Faces Abductor.

Clews Are Many

A multiplicity of clews yesterday confused the search for Thomas H. Robinson Jr., mentally defective kidnaper of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll. Reports that he had been seen in Detroit, in Toledo, in Cleveland, in Indianapolis, in Memphis, in Peoria, and on an Indianapolis-Cincinnati train were investigated without result. A tentative identification of a gunman in Canton, Ill., as the fugitive later was discarded by federal agents and local police, who said the gunman did not resemble Robinson.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—With Mrs. Berry V. Stoll safe tonight, a nation-wide hunt was in progress for Thomas H. Robinson Jr., insane kidnaper who held her prisoner for six days in an Indianapolis flat. Robinson fled yesterday with all but $500 of the $50,000 paid by Mrs. Stoll's wealthy husband for her release.

Warants were issued today for Robinson, his wife, Frances Althauser Robinson, and his father, Thomas H. Robinson Sr. of Nashville, Tenn., charging them with violation of the Lindbergh kidnaping law. State and federal officials asserted that when Robinson is caught and brought to trial the death penalty will be demanded. Both federal and state laws fix death as the maximum penalty for cases of this kind.

Mrs. Robinson in Jail.

Mrs. Robinson and her father-in-law are under arrest, and the former, a slim brunette in the thirties, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Eugene M. Dailey late in the afternoon and was held to the grand jury in bonds of $50,000. In default of bail she was locked up in the Jefferson county jail.

Through the proceedings before the commissioner Mrs. Robinson maintained a sullen, defiant attitude. Her eyes red from weeping, she declined to answer questions put to her by Commissioner Dailey, but at one time burst out suddenly with hysterically shouted demands.

"I want a decent attorney," she cried. "I haven't any. I demand one. And another thing, I want to get in touch with Mrs. Stoll—right away. Right away, do you hear?"

Pleads Not Guilty.

Mrs. Robinson was assured she would be granted counsel. She pleaded not guilty to the charge. United States District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks, in addressing the commissioner, declared that Mrs. Stoll while a prisoner had been cruelly treated. He also declared that the three Robinsons had had no hesitation in making the $50,000 demand and he urged that bonds for the young woman be placed at no less than the ransom figure.

As she was led away, a still defiant figure in her gray wool dress, white silk waist, tan hose, and black shoes, the prisoner said sharply to reporters who sought to question her:

Hides Face from Camera.

She hid her face against photographers, shielding it with her purse and a manila paper sack containing some of her personal belongings.

Mrs. Robinson's demand to see Mrs. Stoll was taken by some observers to indicate that the kidnaped matron's family, one of the most prominent socially in Kentucky, as well as one of great wealth, intended to ask mercy for her, and that she trusted they would do so.

Earlier in the day George Stoll, a brother of Berry, had announced the family gratitude to Mrs. Robinson. She had, George Stoll said, aided in bringing his relative back safely and had "protected" her to the best of her ability.

There have also been indications that the elder Robinson was coöperating in the task of getting Mrs. Stoll released. But government officials were firm in their declarations that they, at least, had made no deals and intended to go ahead with the prosecution.

Mr. Sparks asserted that Mrs. Robinson had been in the plot from the start. He admitted that her action in deserting her husband and the ransom to return voluntarily to Louisville with Mrs. Stoll, who was released in Indianapolis in midafternoon yesterday, was a mitigating circumstance.

The federal prosecutor added that under the Lindbergh law, if the kidnaped person is injured, a death penalty may be inflicted. The slugging of Mrs. Stoll by Robinson on Oct. 9, when she was seized in her home and carried away, fulfilled this condition, he added.

The victim was taken to the flat, at 2735 North Meridian street, Indianapolis, the same day by Robinson, who was twice an inmate of an insane asylum. Statements by neighbors in flats within the same building indicated that Robinson may have had other male accomplices.

Alone With Robinson.

It is now believed that Mrs. Stoll was in the flat alone with Robinson until yesterday morning, when Frances Robinson arrived with the ransom money. Frances, apparently, had been in Nashville throughout and did not join her husband until it became necessary to pay him.

Although the federal agents have thrown a veil of secrecy around the whole proceedings in connection with the ransom transportation, it is known that some agents followed Mrs. Robinson from Nashville as far as Terre Haute, Ind., where she is said to have arrived at 2 a. m. yesterday. In Terre Haute she hired a taxicab to make the rest of the trip to Indianapolis.

Believed to Have Lost Trail.

The agents supposedly lost the trail in Terre Haute and had no idea of the location of the kidnaper's flat until Mrs. Stoll telephoned her home from the Indianapolis home of a Methodist minister. One rather authoritative theory is that Frances, arriving at Robinson's place in the early morning, held a consultation with her husband and quarreled with him, either over division of the money or over his proposal that they kill Mrs. Stoll and flee together with the money.

If Mrs. Robinson's conscience or feelings could not be made to countenance murder, and she argued the crazed husband into freeing the prisoner, the statement of the Stolls that she saved Mrs. Stoll's life would be logically explained. The theory would fit in with Berry Stoll's disclosure that his wife had been bound, gagged, and locked in a closet when her captor went out of the flat. It also would leave room for the government to take the attitude that the wife and her father-in-law were integral actors in the plot.

Took Her to Minister.

Be that as it may, Mrs. Robinson did accompany Mrs. Stoll when she went to the home of the Rev. E. Arnold Clegg in Indianapolis and begged him to aid her to get to Louisville. They all started together in a car and were met at Scottsburg by federal agents.

Robinson, put in possession of the huge sum of money early Tuesday morning, on the return of Frances from Nashville, left immediately afterward. Sam Hochman, operator of a delicatessen store in the building which housed the kidnap flat, recalled selling him liberal supplies of food and drink, including beer.

"I never saw him with a woman," Hochman declared, "but once he came in here with a man. He never had anything delivered; always carried his own purchases."

Mrs. P. D. Conley, occupying a neighboring apartment, recalled hearing the sobs of a woman in Robinson's quarters several times. Blinds were always drawn, she reported, and lights burned in the flat long after midnight.

A third witness was Jack Reynolds, Indianapolis filling station attendant. He looked at pictures of Robinson and declared he was one of three men who drove into the station on Sunday and asked directions to Chicago. An extra fillip was given his statement when he asserted that Robinson sat in the back seat with a woman.

"I could never forget that fellow's eyes," said Reynolds. "They glittered."

As the story now stands, Mrs. Stoll and Frances Robinson left the flat only a short time before their appearance at the Clegg home. It was apparently part of the agreement by Mrs. Stoll that she would go there. In fact, George Stoll, a brother of Berry, said that this contact had been specifically arranged. Mrs. Stoll, it was added, has kept with full faith every promise she made.

Mrs. Stoll seemed to be much improved in health and spirits today. Her mother, Mrs. William Shallcross Speed, was with her. Her uncle, Frederic M. Sackett, former ambassador to Germany, said she was out of bed and did not need the attention of physicians or nurses.

One of the oddities disclosed had to do with the former relationships of the Stoll and Robinson families. The elder Robinson was friendly with the Stolls and had enough influence with them to get a job in the organization for his flighty son. He worked in one of the stations of the Stoll Oil company for a time.

Quits, Then Tries to Go Back.

This place Robinson quit voluntarily in 1931. He had made efforts to get the job back. He was a pump boy in a filling station. George Stoll said that there had never been any quarrel between the Nashville youth and his superiors in the company.

Reports indicating that Robinson, or some one closely resembling him, had been seen in Toledo, O., on a train bound from Indianapolis to Cincinnati and on a highway near Peoria, Ill., were being investigated by government agents. He was also believed by some people to have gone to Chicago, while still others advanced a theory he headed for Memphis, Tenn.

A report that a gunman who shot and seriously wounded Arthur Schumacher of Canton, Ill., tonight might have been Robinson was investigated and declared false by federal agents. Schumacher was shot twice in the abdomen in a Canton street when he refused to surrender his car. Later the same gunman commandeered two other cars and fled in the last one toward Peoria. Deputy Sherif Ben Harter said that the man was only about 5 feet 8 inches tall and did not resemble the tall Robinson in any respect.

Mrs. Stoll Gives Only Partial Details of Life as a Captive

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The experiences of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, wealthy 26 year old society matron, while she was held a prisoner for six days by a maniac kidnaper, were related partially today.

At times the kidnaper, Thomas H. Robinson Jr., treated her brutally. Particularly was this true at the times he was preparing to leave the hideout flat in Indianapolis, where she was held. In each instance he bound Mrs. Stoll so thoroughly with adhesive tape and gagged her so tightly that she feared she would smother.

"Once or twice she was sure she would die for lack of air," declared Berry V. Stoll, husband of the woman who was returned home Tuesday.

She Helps with Dishes.

At other times Mrs. Stoll and her unwanted host lived a humdrum life. Mrs. Stoll helped with the cooking and the washing of the dishes and she and Robinson discussed in a calm, detached way the merits or demerits of communism, religion, and higher mathematics.

"Robinson was well informed on these subjects and on others of an intellectual cast," Mrs. Stoll was quoted as saying. "But I was sure he had maniacal tendencies. You may be sure I did my best to keep his mind occupied with philosophical talks, so that he would not brood and become violent."

Most of the time, according to Mrs. Stoll, she was allowed to sleep in a bed. No indignities other than being bound were offered her, and Robinson, it was asserted, showed no moronic tendencies. Incidentally, the report that Mrs. Stoll wore only a negligee when she was kidnaped was denied. She arrived home, it was said, in a blue dress. She was fully clothed except for a top dress when Robinson slugged her in her home and carried her off in an automobile. The blue dress belonged to Mrs. Robinson.

Lies Half Conscious in Car.

On the way to Indianapolis Mrs. Stoll lay, only half conscious, in the Ford car driven by Robinson.

She was treated, supposedly, with kindness by Mrs. Robinson during the short time the latter was in the flat. At the home of the Rev. E. Arnold Clegg in Indianapolis she introduced Mrs. Robinson as "this woman who saved my life."

It was disclosed that Mrs. Stoll had pledged herself not to reveal the full story of her captivity until 24 hours had elapsed, and that she had done her best to keep the promise. Indications from the meager information that leaked out, were that Robinson fled from the hideout flat at least eight or ten hours before the victim was found by federal agents at Scottburg, Ind.

TURN TO TEXAS IN HUNT FOR CHILD'S MISSING MOTHER

Search for the mother of 4 year old Bobby Dischene, who was found wandering at Jackson boulevard and Francisco avenue Saturday afternoon, turned yesterday to Texas. Meanwhile, Bobby played happily at the juvenile detention home, still confident "mama" would call for him.

Warren avenue police learned that an express company driver had taken the woman's trunk from a rooming house at 856 Wilson avenue Friday, with instructions to bill it to a small town in Texas. Previously authorities at Detroit were asked to coöperate in the search when Mrs. Joseph Weeks, proprietress of the rooming house, said she had been instructed to forward the woman's mail to Detroit.

Mrs. Weeks identified Bobby as the son of her former roomer, Mrs. Grace Dischene Steele, 21 years old, now the wife of L. C. Steele. Mrs. Steele gave up her rooms Saturday.

GUNMEN KILL OWNER OF CUT RATE BARBER SHOP; EMPLOYE SHOT

One man was killed by gunmen and another wounded yesterday in what police believe is a war over price cutting in the victim's barber shop.

The man slain was Charles Vallon, 29 years old, part owner of the barber shop at 2417 Fullerton avenue. An employé, Tony Lucchese, 19 years old, 2675 Canton street, was taken to the Bridewell hospital with a bullet wound in the right leg.

The two with Tony's brother, Joseph, Vallon's business partner, had just left the shop and were walking south in North Western avenue. At 2150 an automobile emerged from the heavy trific and swung in toward the curb. Several shots were fired from the car and Vallon fell dead. The car, containing three or four men, sped south and was lost in trafic.

Joseph Lucchese told Lieut. Charles Essig of the Shakespeare avenue police that the shop had been the target several times recently of vandals who broke windows and hurled stench bombs, presumably because of the shop's cut rates.

MRS. RUTH OWEN SCORES PRESS, MOVIES IN TALK

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Ruth Bryan Owen, minister to Denmark, roundly scored the press and the movies for impressions they carry abroad, in an address here today.

Mrs. Owen spoke on "This Business of Diplomacy."

"I would like to see an estimate made of the number of gunmen in proportion to the population, with no more space given them in the press than they are entitled to on that basis," she said.

"When we learn to take the gunmen out of the headlines and replace them with scientists and others who accomplish things, we will be leaving the correct impressions with our neighbors," Mrs. Owen declared.

CALL KIDNAPER TYPE LIKELY TO EMBRACE CRIME

Record Shows Surrender to Temptation.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Thomas H. Robinson Jr., hunted as the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, has been characterized as a mental type who "cannot resist temptation of committing crimes."

Young Robinson, then 22 years old, was held in a Tennessee hospital for the insane for three months in 1929 after he had entered a plea of insanity in a criminal court. He was charged with two jewel robberies in which the loot totaled $6,000.

Robinson admitted the crimes, hospital records show. He posed as a deputy sherif, prepared fictitious search warants, and entered the homes on pretense of searching for liquor. He was given into the care of his father against the recommendation of Dr. E. W. Cocke, state commissioner of institutions.

Knows Right from Wrong.

"He knows right from wrong, as any normal person would," Dr. Cocke's report said, "but he is just one of those types that cannot resist temptation of doing wrong and committing crimes."

After he was released from the hospital Robinson worked for a year in Louisville as an employé of the Stoll Refining company, headed by C. C. Stoll, father-in-law of the kidnap victim. He was given the job as attendant in a filling station on the plea of his father that he be given a "new start in life," away from Nashville associates.

Later he was again confined in an asylum—the Bolivar, Tenn., hospital—but again was released.

Records of the department of justice in Washington show that Robinson during April, 1934, picked up a young girl near Nashville and offered to take her to Nashville. Instead he drove into the country, records show, forcibly took her jewelry, and attempted to rape her.

He was arrested and released on bond. Subsequently he subjected another woman to similar treatment and another warant was issued for his arrest.

Wife Was Pretty Girl.

Records of the Tennessee Hospital for the Insane show that Robinson attended Vanderbilt university for two years, studying law, "but suddenly lost interest, began to cut classes, then stopped school, and got married."

The hospital report held that "disappointment" and "shock and misery" of this marriage is the "supposed cause of insanity." Robinson obtained a divorce and remarried.

It is as a pretty, dark-haired high school student that most of her friends in Nashville remember Frances Althauser, now Mrs. Thomas H. Robinson Jr., charged, with her husband, with participating in the kidnaping of Mrs. Stoll.

DAILY BROADCAST OF TRAFIC COURT TRIALS PLANNED

Trafic court proceedings are to go on the radio. Chief Justice Sonsteby announced yesterday that such a program will be inaugurated late this week or the first of next week as part of the safety campaign under way in Chicago.

Cases will be called and tried before microphones for fifteen minutes each morning in the Trafic court, where Judge John Gutknecht presides. The local outlet of the Columbia Broadcasting company, WBBM, will put the trials on the air.

Similar programs have been put on in Kansas City, Mo., and in Indianapolis, Ind.

ANNAN CONFESSES SLAYING WOMAN IN SOUTH SIDE HOME

The Gresham police yesterday were holding Albert Annan, 49 years old, who confessed earlier in the day that he had beaten and killed Mrs. Ottila Griffin, 45 years old, on Tuesday night in the flat they occupied at 1048 West 79th street.

Annan, the former husband of Beulah Annan, who shot and killed her sweetheart, Harry Kalstedt, in 1924, said that the quarrel between himself and Mrs. Griffin developed during a drinking bout. An inquest into the woman's death was continued to Oct. 26.

During the day federal agents questioned Annan after they had been informed he was in Louisville from Oct. 2 to Oct. 12 and might have had some connection with the Stoll kidnaping. He explained that he had a sister in Louisville whom he visited, and the agents, closing the interview, indicated they were satisfied Annan had nothing to do with the abduction.

GETS LIFE AFTER 24 YEARS SPENT IN PRISON CELLS

Lawrence King, 47 years old, who has spent twenty-four years of his life in penitentiaries, was sentenced to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act yesterday by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court. King pleaded guilty to robbing the Pulaski Loan and Building association, 3156 South Morgan street, of $4,400 Sept. 11.

Scanning the records, Judge Sullivan found that King had served three terms for robbery and one for burglary. The prison record dated to 1902.

"You don't seem to be much good to society," Judge Sullivan told the defendant. "I sentence you to one year to life on a charge of robbery and to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act."

Hide Rich Tea Merchant's Daughter to Balk Kidnaper

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Celestine Daly, 20 year old daughter of John Daly, millionaire tea merchant of Napanee, Ont., was rushed out of town today by members of her family following threats she would be kidnaped or harmed.

KIDNAPER OFTEN IN CHICAGO, U. S. AGENTS LEARN

Car Is Traced to Rental Agency Here.

Agents of the department of justice learned yesterday that Thomas H. Robinson Jr., kidnaper who released Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll in Indianapolis on Tuesday, had been frequently in Chicago during the last few years.

They established that he had worked as a janitor and maintenance man in flat buildings here in the summer of 1932, and also for brief periods in the spring of 1933 and last spring. It was indicated that the federal agents had found several persons who had spoken with Robinson and who remembered him as a pleasant mannered but talkative young man.

Car Rented in Chicago.

Also the agents learned that Robinson some five weeks ago, under an assumed name, rented an automobile from the Saunders Driv-Ur-Self system, 28 West Lake street, successors to the Midwest Rent-a-Car company. This same car, or one bearing identical license plates, was used in carrying Mrs. Stoll from her Louisville home to Indianapolis, according to the department of justice men in Kentucky. The car carried 1934 Illinois plates, No. 331-700, and a Chicago vehicle tag.

It was the theory of some of the agents that Robinson, facing the necessity of choosing a place to hide, would eventually seek a city where he was familiar with the geography. Chicago might be the place, it was held.

Never an Employé at Fair.

A report that Robinson worked at the World's Fair in 1933 was investigated and found false. No pass was ever issued to him by the Fair management, nor had any one of his description ever had a job there. The agents contented themselves with placing guards to watch the Fair gates and nearby parking places, in the belief that the kidnaper might come as a visitor, hoping to escape detection by mingling with the Exposition crowds.

Melvin H. Purvis, chief in Chicago for the department of justice bureau of investigation, did not return yesterday to his office here, keeping up his search for the kidnaper in the vicinity of Indianapolis. This was taken to mean that Mr. Purvis had no definite clews to indicate that the fugitive had come this way.

INVENTS A SMASHING BOTTLE TO PREVENT LIQUOR REFILL FRAUD

J. M. Braude, associate director of the Illinois state department of finance, and inventor of the "smash-it" liquor bottle, is to address today the final session of the price stabilization conference being held in the Hotel Sherman by wholesale liquor dealers of the United States.

Mr. Braude has devised a liquor bottle with a 25 cent piece imbedded in the glass. The purchaser would pay a quarter for his purchase and would have to destroy the container to retrieve his silver disc. Thus, Mr. Braude says, the practice of refilling good bottles with bad liquor would be abolished.

Yesterday, at the second session of the 3 day stabilization conference, Louis Golan, midwestern sales manager of the Schenley Products company, urged increasing the wholesaler's liquor license fee from $100 to $2,500. He advised that the state forbid wholesalers to sell at retail.

ADMITS THREAT TO EDSEL FORD; GOES TO PRISON

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—In less than 24 hours after he was arrested for attempting to extort $5,000 from Edsel Ford under threats of death, Edward Lickwala, 20, was indicted by a federal grand jury under the Lindbergh law and was sentenced this afternoon to serve ten years in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

The sentence was imposed by United States District Judge Edward J. Moinet on a plea of guilty within an hour after the indictment was returned.

Admits Mailing of Note.

The youth was seized last night as the climax of a nine day investigation by United States department of justice agents. Lickwala, who has a minor police record of arrests for carrying concealed weapons and tampering with automobiles, confessed he mailed the note Oct. 8.

"I never meant to kill him," the youth was quoted as saying concerning his threat to slay Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company. "I just wanted to scare him. He's got lots of money and I wanted some of it."

The letter to Edsel Ford said, "You are on the spot and if you want to live it will cost you $5,000." Ford was told the sum, in $5 and $10 bills, should be put into a candy box and placed on the rear porch of a house at 3341 Medbury avenue.

Leads to Own Address.

Lickwala's brother-in-law, Joe Barnhart, lives there on the second floor. A dummy package was placed at the designated spot at the time stated in the youth's letter, 11 o'clock the night of Oct. 12, but it was picked up, apparently accidentally, by Mrs. Claude Landerville, occupant of the lower flat in the building.

The lower flat had been unoccupied when Lickwala wrote his letter, federal agents said. The youth apparently became frightened and did not pick up the package because another family had moved into the place. Mrs. Landerville was detained for questioning, but quickly established her innocence and was released.

Federal agents directed by William Larsen.

Last night Lickwala finally appeared. He walked up to one of the government men and said he had information that would help them. He was seized. When specimens of his handwriting proved identical with that in the extortion note, he confessed, Larsen said.

WRITER NEARLY SUFFOCATED BY A HEATING UNIT

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Patterson McNutt, motion picture writer, thought he was heating his studio office with a steam radiator, and almost lost his life today.

He turned on a gas heater full blast after closing all the windows. His secretary, Miss Katherine O'Brien, found him unconscious in his chair. He was treated at the studio hospital.

"I thought it was a steam heater," McNutt explained. "It sizzled like the one in my New York apartment. But somehow the effect wasn't the same."

Seized in Trap

Dominick Bausano, 18 years old, 3426 Potomac avenue, was held to the grand jury under $10,000 bond yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of sending an extortion note through the mail. Bausano admitted his attempt to obtain $3,000 from Isaac M. Hoagland, 52 years old, vice president and sales manager of Armour & Co.

Bausano was seized in the driveway of an abandoned factory at Potomac and Homan avenues early yesterday. He had directed in an extortion note that the money be placed in the driveway.

The note threatened death to Hoagland and to his recently married daughter, Doris, unless the money was paid. Bausano said he plotted the extortion after reading of Miss Hoagland's marriage to Robert Markle on Sept. 29. He told federal agents he wanted the money to pay for his education.

NAZIS RAISE TAX ON OLD MAIDS AND BACHELORS

Give Greater Cuts to Heads of Families.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Drastic tax cuts to benefit all heads of families spell increased prosperity for the Nazi state coffers and more children for the fatherland, according to statements made today by small but fiery voiced Fritz Reinhardt, secretary of state for the finance ministry.

Addressing the press and speaking over the radio he was eloquent on the subject of rebates which range from 15 per cent reduction in the income tax for the first child to 100 per cent for six children.

He carefully avoided to state the actual new income tax rate, but admitted that bachelors, spinsters and childless couples will have to make up for the cuts granted to families with children up to the age of 25.

Tax Begins at $40.

Single persons earning more than a monthly minimum of $40 will pay an income tax ranging from 10 to 48 per cent and they were terrified by Reinhardt's ominous silence on what their future bill will be.

The inheritance, fortune and turnover taxes all are reduced with greater cuts for heads of families.

To encourage new purchases the government ruled that the cost of machinery and "short-lived" equipment purchased before December, 1934, may be deducted from this year's taxable profits and depreciation charges may be deducted in coming years.

Exempt Machine Costs.

Tax collectors promise to deduct the cost of typewriters, calculating machines, vehicles of all descriptions, airplanes, airplane motors, automobiles, bicycles, motorcycles, and trucks, but not ships, from the taxpayer's bill.

Despite all these cuts Reinhardt asserts that Germany will collect 1,000,000,000 gold marks [or $400,000,000] more in taxes than it did in 1933. Reinhardt stated, "These sums are needed to write off the $880,000,000 deficit of previous years and other expenditures to create work for the idle."

SON KIDNAPED, FATHER SAYS HE CAN'T PAY 20 CTS.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Anthony Esposito, whose 23 year old son, Louis, according to police, is being held for $20,000 ransom, denied this afternoon that the kidnapers had demanded any money for the return of the boy and stated that he was not only in no position to give $20,000 for his son but not even 20 cents.

Esposito is a well known and fairly successful junk dealer in the Bronx, but so far has refused to coöperate with the police or with department of justice agents in their search for his son. He and the other members of the family have refused to talk and have shown no disposition to assist the authorities in their search.

At his junk shop he spoke to reporters for the first time this afternoon. The boy has been missing since Monday.

"I tell police keep away," he said. "I tell everybody keep away. Maybe somebody comes here. Maybe somebody call up. I get phone call, but no money asked. They just say they have my boy. I can't pay $20,000. I can't pay $5,000. I can't pay 20 cents.

500 FLEE HOMES AS FLOODS, WIND HIT LOS ANGELES

Quake Precedes Freakish Play of Weather.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP)—More than 500 persons evacuated their flooded homes and two children were reported missing tonight after a freakish play of weather, accompanied by an earthquake.

Rainfall ranged in Los Angeles county from a few hundredths of an inch to more than four inches. Snow and hail fell in the mountains.

500 Driven from Homes.

Rain of 4.5 inches piled up flood waters in the North State street area of Long Beach, driving about 500 persons from their homes. Twenty-five families in the Montrose district were being cared for by police and the Red Cross in Glendale.

Marguerite Clark, 9, had not returned home from school in Montrose and her parents expressed fear she might have drowned.

Coast guard cutters pulled a small fishing boat out of the breakers at Point Firmin, a motor boat belonging to B. H. Hitt from the heavy seas off Huntington Beach, and towed the fishing boat Dorothy II. from the breakwater into the harbor when they found the craft drifting without fuel.

Fishing Barge Sinks.

A 165 foot fishing barge belonging to C. K. Morrison, pounded by heavy waves, sank off Huntington Beach.

The earthquake coming at 1:45 a. m. [Pacific standard time] caused no damage. It was felt in Long Beach, Huntington Park, Bell, Maywood, Lynwood, Inglewood, San Pedro, Redondo Beach, Hermosa Beach, Manhattan Beach, El Segundo, and Venice.

Rainfall in Los Angeles reached 1.68 inches. Many of the downtown streets were flooded and stalled motor cars snarled trafic.

Flood waters drove six members of the John Rossio family from their home in the La Crescenta area, which experienced the heaviest casualties in the flood of last New Year's eve, when more than 40 lives were lost. They were swept down a wash, but nearby residents heard their cries and rescued them.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 17.—(AP)—William H. Weston Jr., professor of botany at Harvard university, was divorced here today by Mrs. Lora S. Weston, who charged extreme cruelty. They married June 5. 1916.

BUS COMPANY PROVIDES FOR KELLY FAMILY

Records of Street Car Union Returned.

John A. Ritchie, president of the Chicago Motor Coach company, announced yesterday that the board of directors had taken action to provide for the widow and children of James Kelly, bus dispatcher, who was slain during bus strike violence.

A $7,000 mortgage on the Kelly home will be paid off by the company, Mr. Ritchie said, and a fund of $2,500 has been established to care for the schooling of Kelly's two daughters, the elder of whom is attending Mundelein college. Mrs. Kelly received a $3,000 death benefit from the Chicago Motor Coach fraternity, the company union to which her husband belonged.

Earlier in the day, the state's attorney's office returned to local 241 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employés of America, the union's books and records.

Investigate Strike Ramifications.

The street car union's property was seized on Tuesday at its office, 328 South Ashland avenue, under a writ which the state's attorney's office had obtained in the course of its investigation of bus strike violence.

Local 1022 of the Amalgamated is the organization which on Aug. 16 called the strike against the Motor Coach company, and the prosecutors sought information on the relations between the bus unit and its street car affiliate.

Michael Ahern, attorney for local 241, contended that the writ under which the records were seized was improperly drawn. Assistant State's Attorney James A. Brown protested the allegation, but Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court upheld Ahern's position and ordered the books returned.

Plan to Surrender in 48 Hours.

Attorney Ahern announced that James Kehoe, recording secretary of local 241, and William Taber, financial secretary of 241 and international secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated, who are under indictment on charges of complicity in the Kelly murder, would surrender to the state's attorney's office today or tomorrow.

Daniel King, 34 years old, 3252 Fifth avenue, was acquitted by a jury in the Municipal court of Judge Harold P. O'Connell yesterday on a charge of hurling a brick through a window of a bus at Kedzie avenue and Jackson boulevard on Sept. 6.

SUITS, OVERCOATS OF WOOD READY FOR ITALIANS NOW

MILAN, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Italy's Fascists will be wearing "wooden suits and overcoats" and "cellulose blouses" this winter, Italian manufacturers hope.

A large Italian firm, which claims to have invented the process for utilizing wood and cellulose for clothing, has been trying out its materials in Germany for the past year.

The manufacturers predict their products eventually will reduce Italy's cotton imports by at least 50 per cent and also will cut heavily into wool imports. Some cotton men agree that American and other cotton exporters may ultimately find their markets menaced. The new materials, manufactured from wood pulp and cellulose fibers, at present costs somewhat more than raw cotton, although it is below the price of raw wool.

6,500 ARRESTED IN SERBIAN DRIVE UPON ASSASSINS

Capital Prepares to Bury Slain King Today.

BULLETIN.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 18 (Thursday).—(AP)—Six thousand five hundred persons have been arrested here during the last few days by police, who feared an attempt at assassination during the funeral of King Alexander.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 18 (Thursday).—All the pomp and power of harassed Europe is assembled in distracted Belgrade for the biggest Balkan show since the war. This show will take place today when the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes celebrate the funeral rites of their assassinated king, Alexander I.

The king's coffin was removed at midnight from the anteroom of the old royal palace, where it it had been lying in state for two days, and was placed in the national cathedral. After a requiem mass this morning, there will be a two mile procession from the cathedral to the railway station which will present a moving spectacle of military finery and a cross section of Balkan tradition and civilization.

Visitors Crowd City.

From the railway station the king's body will be taken over the bleak stretch of rolling hill country to Topola, 53 miles south of Belgrade, and there, at 4 p. m., Alexander, king of Jugo-Slavia, will be gathered to his fathers, the Karageorgevitches, bandits, patriots, and swineherds, who founded his dynasty at the beginning of the last century.

In addition to the assemblage of royalty and heads of state who have come for the funeral, Belgrade is gorged with nondescript humanity. Railway officials said 500,000 people arrived during the last two days and more are coming through the night. The city's normal population is about 300,000, so it may reach 1,000,000 by the time the services begin.

One whole village of 900 peasants—Brezovo Polpe, in Herzegovina—arrived yesterday. They walked a whole day to get to a railway station. Many had never seen a train before. These peasants swore not to shave for three months.

Crowds File Past Coffin.

In a steady downpour of rain a two mile line of people continued to file past the king's bier in the royal palace yesterday. So dense was the moving mass of people that many women fainted.

Among the high personages who have arrived are King Boris of Bulgaria and King Carol of Rumania, and President Albert Lebrun of France.

Escorted by a fleet of planes, the gorgeously uniformed Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and Germany's minister of aviation, also dropped out of the skies to represent Chancellor Hitler.

Hold Private Funeral Rites.

Touching scenes were enacted in the royal palace when private funeral services were held for the immediate members of the royal family. After a funeral mass had been read young Peter II., in tears and wearing black mourning clothes, stepped up on the catafalque and kissed his father's coffin. He was followed by the widowed Queen Marie and members of other European royalty.

Although in Belgrade, one member of the king's family was not present. She is Princess Helene, old King Peter's favorite and Alexander's older sister, who broke with Alexander many years ago when he interned his older brother, Prince George, in a mental institution in South Serbia.

LEADERS OF EUROPE HOLD SECRET TALKS IN SERBIAN CAPITAL

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Secret conferences were held today among the statesmen of France, the little entente, Turkey, and Greece which may have a vital bearing on the future policy of these states.

President Albert Lebrun of France held a long conference with Foreign Minister Bocoljub Yeftitch of Jugo-Slavia while en route from the Jugo-Slav border to the capital. The French president later had lunch at Dedinje castle with King Carol of Rumania and Prince Paul of Jugo-Slavia, head of the new regency council. High French military officials also were present.

It was reported that the luncheon developed into a political conference of great importance. Later in the day King Carol received his foreign minister, Nicholas Titulescu, who in turn negotiated for several hours with the Turkish foreign minister and later with his Greek colleague. This evening Titulescu again talked with President Lebrun, and this again was followed by a long conference with the Turkish foreign minister.

MEMORIAL RITES HERE TODAY FOR KING ALEXANDER

At 11:30 this morning, the same time of the burial of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia in Belgrade, the Jugo-Slavian consular corps here will attend a memorial service for their assassinated ruler in the Serbian Eastern Orthodox church, 1905 Fowler street. Military, naval and civic dignitaries also will attend.

Yesterday the French consular corps attended a memorial service for Louis Barthou, French foreign minister who was slain with King Alexander. The service was held in the Notre Dame church, 1335 Harrison street. The mass was celebrated by Father Poirier and the sermon was by Father Tardis.

CHIEF DEFENDS POLICE SALE OF DANCE TICKETS

Makar of East Chicago Denies Shakedown.

BY HAL FOUST.

CHIEF MAKAR.

He doesn't see why a citizen driver of an automobile would be intimidated into buying a dance ticket when solicited by a uniformed man with a star and a book of arrest summonses.

Several days ago Dean L. Dollison and Verle Dollison, sons of the postmaster of Logan, O., were driving home from A Century of Progress Exposition. In East Chicago they were stopped by a motorcycle policeman who accused them of having run through a red trafic light.

Selling Under Difficulties.

They were taken to the police station, where they were told, according to the Logan Republican, that a cash bond of $50 was required for bail and that the fine on a plea of guilty would be $11.60.

The youths bought five tickets to the benefit dance and no charge was filed against them.

The Republican, commenting editorially, declared:

"Such a mockery of justice should call for a thorough investigation by proper officials, who have been informed of this latest form of official graft."

"I investigated this case," said Chief Makar, "and found that the Logan newspaper misrepresented in charging that the boys were forced to buy the tickets to escape prosecution. It was merely like this:

"The lads were asking for a 'break' because they were transients. The desk sergeant tossed some tickets to them and said, 'Maybe you boys like to dance.' They bought five tickets on their own free will. They were released without any charge being filed against them because the police gave them the 'break' they begged for."

SHUTS OFF MARY BELLE SPENCER'S TWO HOUR PLEA

Justice Hears Defense in School Case.

Justice of the Peace David Shapiro of Chicago Heights had planned yesterday morning to find out why Dr. Richard V. Spencer, husband of Attorney Mary Belle Spencer, had not sent their two daughters to school. A warant had been served on the doctor and hearing set for yesterday.

The plan was changed, however, when Attorney Spencer entered the courtroom, already jammed to its capacity of 23 persons by news reel camera men, microphones, photographers, and reporters.

Brings Armload of Books.

She bore down on the assembly with an armful of law books, a bulging brief case, and a desire to be heard.

The forgotten defendant, Dr. Spencer, was not in court. Neither were the daughters, Mary Belle, 14 years old, and Victoria, 12. Attorney Spencer looked hard at Justice Shapiro and announced that she had feared that they would be imperiled by germs in the courtroom.

Sweeps Aside Technicality.

Then she launched into an argument that the Bloom township truant officer had once entered the Spencer home without a search warrant. She swept aside the suggestion that this fact had no bearing on the case, and delivered an argument that lasted two hours and ten minutes.

As the shadows lengthened in the courtroom, Justice Shapiro asked how much time the attorney might need to complete her argument.

"I'm just getting started," she told the court. Justice Shapiro awakened his bailif, continued the case one week, and departed.

Police Are Asked to Hunt Missing High School Boy

Maxwell street police were asked last night to search for Louis Mora Luna, 16 years old, who has been missing from his home at 1017 West 14th street for a week. Last Wednesday the youth took his books and started for the Medill High school but did not attend classes that day or since. His father, Joseph, is an unemployed printer.

RICHMAN BROTHERS CLOTHES $22.50

"As good as any $35 or $40 clothes in town"

We're not in the habit of making comparisons, but we can't keep our customers from expressing themselves. Every day and dozens of times a day we hear customers say that Richman Brothers Clothes at $22.50 are as good as any $35 or $40 clothes in town.

It's simply their way of saying that Richman Brothers clothes look as well, fit as well, and wear as well as the clothes for which they used to pay the higher prices. They speak from experience. And they speak with the enthusiasm and satisfaction that comes of money well saved.

They know that they get amazing values in Richman Brothers clothes, and they know why. They know that the clothes are tailored efficiently and economically by workers who own stock in the business.

These customers know that our costs are reduced by devoting all of our energy to clothes at one price. They know also that they save the middle-man's profit.

And our customers know that charge account losses, delivery costs, and many other items of expense don't enter into the price of Richman Brothers clothes.

All new fall styles, colors and patterns, sizes to fit everyone in suits, topcoats and overcoats $22.50.

COVER GLASS TO STOP PEEPING IN VANDERBILT SUIT

Later Removed as Doctor Takes Stand.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The glass panels of the doors leading into Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew's courtroom, where the trial of the suit for custody of ten year old Gloria Vanderbilt is proceeding, were covered with sheets of blue blotting paper when today's session of the hearing began.

Thus reporters and the public, barred from hearing the action because of sensational testimony concerning the private life of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, mother of the little heiress to 4 million dollars, were for a time also denied a sight of the proceedings.

Physician Takes Stand.

Shortly after the hearing was resumed, however, Justice Carew ordered the blotters removed, and it was seen that Dr. Everett C. Jessup, one of the physicians who has attended Gloria, was on the witness stand. In ordering the blotters removed, the justice instructed attendants to prevent the newspaper men from continually peering into the court room through the panels.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is seeking to recover custody of her daughter from Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's paternal aunt, again arrived in court surrounded by the group of friends and relatives who have rallied to her support. Mrs. Whitney, aided by Mrs. Laura K. Morgan, Mrs. Vanderbilt's mother, has refused to surrender custody of Gloria on the ground that Mrs. Vanderbilt is an unfit person to care for her.

Prince Ready to Testify.

Among those prepared to testify in Mrs. Vanderbilt's behalf are Prince Gottfried zu Hohenlohe und Langenburg, his wife, the former Princess Margareta of Greece, and Mrs. Vanderbilt's sisters, brother and sister-in-law, Viscountess Furness of England, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hays Morgan Jr.

Herbert C. Smyth, attorney for Mrs. Whitney, announced that he still has a number of witnesses to call, and indicated that he will not be able to complete his side of the case before the end of the week. Among those still to take the stand is Mrs. Whitney herself.

Circulations Bureau Will Open Meeting Here Today

Two hundred advertising and circulation managers of newspapers and periodicals throughout the United States and Canada will gather in the Stevens hotel today to open the twenty-first annual meeting of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a coöperative association for the verification of circulation of publications. The meeting is to continue tomorrow. A committee of officers of the bureau met at the Stevens last evening to complete arrangements for the sessions. Plans have been made to hold special ceremonies in observance of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the bureau.

"Barefoot" Wife Awarded Divorce

MRS. MILDRED TILTON HOLMSEN.
[Acme Photo.]

Charges Cruelty

Reno, Nev., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The dignity of Reno's speedy divorce courts was upset today by Mrs. Mildred Tilton Holmsen, who appeared wearing full length black trousers and a man's shirt to testify that Nicholas Holmsen of New York and Lake Forest, Ill., had been guilty of extreme and repeated cruelty.

Judge Benjamin F. Curler told her attorney she must appear in "conventional attire." Half an hour later Mrs. Holmsen returned wearing a plain black dress with a white and black belt. She obtained a decree.

She was wearing tennis shoes, with brown half socks to match, although she has declared shoes to be barbaric. She has spent much of her six weeks' residence in Reno pedaling a bicycle about the city streets barefoot and clad in a man's shirt and shorts.

Mrs. Holmsen is the daughter of Newell Tilton and the present Mrs. Herbert Claiborne Pell, both of New York. She married Holmsen in Paris Oct. 10, 1927. The custody of two children, Tatiana, 5, and Alexander Tilton, 3, was arranged in an undisclosed property settlement agreement.

RAIN IN SIGHT AS 18 DAY DRY SPELL NEARS A RECORD

Fair weather and sunny skies yesterday brought to 18 the number of consecutive rainless days in the Chicago area. Normally there is 1.45 inches of precipitation in the first 17 days of October, according to W. P. Day, government meteorologist.

Hope of rain tonight was seen yesterday by the weather forecaster. He declared a low pressure area over the panhandle section of Texas is moving toward Chicago.

The present string of rainless days is the second longest in the history of the weather bureau for the month of October. In 1897 there was no precipitation for the first 19 days of the month.

States affected by the lack of rain are Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Missouri. In many areas, weather bureau officials said, farmers are finding the ground too hard for plowing. Pastures and new seedings are also suffering from lack of rain.

SUPREME COURT ORDERS RETRIAL OF POLICE KILLER

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday ordered a new trial for Arthur Lavac, 1535 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, who is under life sentence in prison for the fatal shooting of Policemen Frank Svec and Edgar Chatterton of Berwyn on Dec. 12, 1932.

Lavac fired on the policemen when they went to his home to serve a warant because of his refusal to send his children to school for fear they would have to submit to smallpox vaccination.

In reversing the lower court and remanding the case, the Supreme court ruled that, since Policeman Svec was not in uniform, there was reasonable doubt that Lavac knew he had appeared to serve a warant.

Asa Keyes, Ex-Los Angeles District Attorney, Dying

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles county, who spent a term in San Quentin following conviction on charges of corruption and then returned to his home city to reëstablish his finances and popularity, tonight was near death. Keyes was stricken with a heart attack early this morning and has not recovered consciousness.

STATE STREET DAY TODAY TO DRAW THRONGS

Stores Add 1,500 to Stafs to Speed Service.

State street's annual bargain day is on today and a record number of shoppers is expected to descend upon the renowned thoroughfare this morning. By street cars, elevated lines, buses, trains, and automobiles they will pour into the eight shopping blocks between Congress and Lake streets from the three great sides of the city, from surrounding suburbs, and from many cities and towns in the central west.

The day will mark the approaching triumphant close of the World's Fair and will serve as an introduction to the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Almost 1,500 extra employés have been engaged for the day to provide expeditious service for the expected throngs. Every store, shop, and restaurant, large and small, had stafs spending the whole night in arranging stocks and displays.

The thousands of shoppers converging in the loop will find the famous street a colorful mass of flags and banners. The spirit of a carnival fair will greet them.

They will be met by welcoming committees in the entrances of the big stores. Most of the eighty restaurants in the eight blocks will serve special luncheons, and many of them will add the treat of music and entertainment.

A women's shopping race has been planned as the unique feature of the day. At noon, at Congress and State streets, a signal will start them off to make a purchase in every block.

The first three women reaching Lake street will be awarded prizes of $25, $15, and $10. All women shoppers are eligible.

Yesterday a committee of store executives selected a group of four from among their employés and their employés' households. The four chosen are to represent a typical American family. They are John S. Sears, 36 years old, 464 Washington boulevard, Oak Park; Mrs. Margaret Redpath, 34, of 18 East Elm street, and John and Marily Reynerston, 14 and 12, of 1126 North Austin avenue, Oak Park. The "family" was treated to a reception and dinner.

The annual Christmas season, according to an announcement yesterday, will open officially on Nov. 24 with a display of toys in all stores.

Well Fitting Evening Shirts

At Evening Functions there is always a surprisingly large number of men in poorly fitting dress shirts. Thus, the smart effect of their otherwise faultless attire is greatly impaired. This is not only embarrassing but is certain to reflect upon their taste and expresses a lack of personal pride.

Styles in shirts change just as in other items of apparel and one cannot expect to be well dressed with shirts that are now passé. Evening shirts require the utmost care in designing and expert fitting for which we are eminently renowned. Just the right collar, bow tie, studs and links are also essential to the becoming smartness of one's ensemble.

U. S. BUILDS UP 'INSIDE PICTURE' OF INSULL DEALS

Defense Fights Testimony at Every Step.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

If Samuel Insull and his 16 co-defendants, including the Halsey, Stuart & Co. group and directors such as Stanley Field, are convicted of using the United States mails in a "scheme and artifice" to defraud the half million stockholders of the Corporation Securities company, it must be through the records written by their subordinates in the books of their own companies.

A tremendous struggle began yesterday before the jury in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court to get the inside financial picture given in these thousands of books, papers and other records. The human touch was given by two government witnesses, agents of the department of justice and expert accountants. They attempted to interpret and piece together the figures so that the layman could understand the facts.

They were handicapped, however, through the constant objections of eight defense lawyers, and the result at the close of the day was somewhat confusing.

New Procedure Introduced.

New law as applied to the criminal trial of corporation executives is being made at this trial. The session bristled with novel procedure, such as the production of books and documents to back up each and any statement challenged by the defense and the cross-examinations interjected into the middle of the prosecution's examination of witnesses, with two or three attorneys participating.

A sort of compromise apparently has been reached in the legal aspects of the present phase of the trial, with a certain class of books admitted into evidence and another class held in abeyance. The government key witnesses are to be allowed to "summarize" what the books show, without conclusions and subject to constant challenge. The result is that the government case will be slowed up somewhat, although not to the extent of requiring witnesses to each book entry or transfer sheet.

The two government witnesses yesterday were Carl A. Herring and Fred B. Caldwell, special accountants for the department of justice who have spent about two years in studying the books of the various Insull companies. They each took up a different phase of the case.

Witness Tells of Researches.

The witness Caldwell, who went on the stand late in the afternoon, said he had investigated the books of Corporation Securities, the Utility Securities company, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Insull Utility Investments, Inc., Mississippi Valley Utilities, and Insull, Son & Co.

Under the questioning of Leslie S. Salter, special prosecutor, Caldwell said that Corporation Securities had sold $49,920,300 worth of allotment certificates to the public and dealers or exchanged them for other securities. During October and November, 1929, when the big drive was on, the company sold 486,280 units of stock at $36,460,000.

Taking up the sale of 1,250,000 shares of common stock of Corporation Securities to the public later, through the medium of the Utility Securities company, the witness testified that this amount of stock was first sold to Utility Securities by other Insull companies, Insull, Son & Co., and Corporation Syndicates, Inc. The stock was bought at $25 a share and sold at $25.50 a share, Caldwell testified. This made a profit of $599,497 to these inner syndicate groups.

Stock Sold to Brokers.

He testified further that Utility Securities sold the stock to a purchasing group of brokers, 398 in all, in 21 states and in Canada. From October, 1929, to April, 1932, the month of the Corporation Securities company's failure, he testified that Utility Securities purchased $32,772,187 of the common stock of Corporation Securities on various stock exchanges. During the same period it sold $4,254,782 of the same stock in the open market.

Utility Securities, Caldwell declared, sold at retail through distributing groups $13,334,376 of the stock of Corporation Securities.

"How much was sold by both Corporation Securities company and Utility Securities company together during this period?" he was asked.

"A total of $114,856,781," he replied.

"Was the stock that was repurchased by the company later sold to the public?"

"Yes."

Caldwell will conclude his testimony this morning. Other accountants and more Insull investors will follow him on the stand in the close of the government's case. Harold Huling, special accountant of the department of justice who has been in general charge of this investigation, will be the last important witness for the government, bringing the threads of the long story together.

Herring on the Stand.

Before Caldwell took the stand the other government witness of the day, Herring, attempted to tell the jury, out of his study of the books, that the Insull family turned in stock which cost them a little more than $5,000,000 to Utility Securities at a value of $14,246,444, but legal objections prevented this and it was ordered stricken from the record. It was uncertain whether the witness got the figures from a certain book or from some compilation made by himself.

"I don't know who put it in the files," said Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, Insull attorney. "The government agents have been at work on the files for two years."

"You don't mean to insinuate, do you?' 'asked Prosecutor Salter.

"I don't mean to insinuate anything; I state the facts," was the reply. "This is a typewritten document."

The court sustained the objection. Mr. Salter said later he would prove through the personal income tax returns of the Insulls that they paid only $5,464,000 for these securities.

An important point in the indictment, which charges that representations were made in selling Corporation Securities stock that 90 per cent of its holdings consisted of stock of the five Insull operating companies was touched through Herring's testimony. He said that Corporation Securities, an investment trust, never had more than 62.3 per cent of its assets in these good stocks. This percentage dropped to 56 by the end of 1930.

Two Charts Before Jury.

Two big charts were placed on a chair before the jury during the day. One showed the organization of Corporations Securities and the other was a description of the 14 interlocking Insull companies. The latter chart was sprinkled with arrows and stars and other indications of how the same persons were in control of many companies.

Attorney Thompson referred to it as a river, with a flow this way and that way, and admitted that the Insulls, father and son, were in the directorship of each one of the companies. Nevertheless, objection was made to the use of the word "interlocking" by the government artist at the head of the chart and this was snippd out with scissors.

Defense Attorney J. Fred Reeve attempted to show that many other directors of the various companies, including prominent Chicagoans, were left off the chart, but this did not come within the knowledge of the witness Herring and was not allowed.

The court during the day ruled that cross examination must be completed at the time it is begun, and not be interspersed throughout the testimony and then taken up again at the close of the government's presentation.

Traces Companies Formation.

Organization of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., on Dec. 27, 1928, was traced by Herring. He showed that the Insull family turned in $9,765,908 in securities, for which they received 754,000 shares of common stock and 40,00 shares of preferred stock.

The Insull family's contribution to the Corporation Securities company, organized Oct. 6, 1929, consisted of 154,000 shares of the common stock of Insull Utility Investments, on which they placed the valuation of $14,264,242, for which they received 1,000,000 shares of the common stock of Corporation Securities and 40,00 shares of preferred stock.

It was also shown through this witness that on Feb. 13, 1931, Corporation Securities sold Halsey-Stuart $1,500,00 of its serial gold notes; that on Aug. 21, 1931, it retired $8,000,000 of its notes; that on Sept. 30, 1931, it sold $533,000 of its notes to the Chicago Electric District Generator company and that, thereafter, it had $24,033,000 in notes outstanding out of an original issue of $40,000,000.

RIVER AUTHORITY BILL PASSED UNANIMOUSLY BY TEXAS SENATORS

Austin, Tex., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Texas senate today passed by unanimous vote the bill creating the Colorado river authority to take over and complete the $8,000,000 Buchanan or Hamilton power dam project in the Colorado river and to receive a $4,500,000 public works loan and grant already allotted to the project.

The bill was passed unchanged, as drafted by counsel of the Public Works administration. It sets up a way for securing further government financing for a series of six dams whose permits are all involved here.

The measure faces a stiff fight in the house of representatives, where it is scheduled to be taken tomorrow.

The senate today also voted final passage of the Brazos river development program to permit applying taxes to secure government loan which will be sought up to fifty million dollars, for water storage and power developmnt in 12 dams on the Brazos. The Brazos bill also will be acted upon in the house tomorrow.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, Wednesday, opened for consideration of the legislature in special session, the subject of taxation to provide for appropriations for the 1936 Texas centennial for which an appropriation of nine million dollars is pending.

HARVARD UNDERGRADS GET THEIR BEER BUT DO NOT DRINK MUCH

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—After fighting bitterly and valiantly for the right of drinking beer in university dining halls, the average Harvard undergraduate consumes approximately one bottle every three weeks, according to figures released today.

Nearly $1,500 in beer revenue is needed during the next three months to pay for the various licenses and bonds and the prospect of collecting such a sum is most slender.

The high beer mark in sales was reached in January, when the beverage was a welcome novelty, but since that time the rate of consumption by eligible students has slumped to an all time low. One bottle per eligible student every three weeks.

Train Kills Two on Track Entering Proviso Yards

Two men were killed last night on the Chicago and North Western railroad right of way when they were struck by a passenger train entering the Proviso yards west of Bellwood. Their bodies were taken to the Elmhurst station. The victims were Lloyd Erickson, 38, of Buffalo, N. Y., and John G. Dorn, 43, of Maywood, unemployed carpenter, father of five children.

SKIN DETOURS, LATEST METHOD, TOLD BY DOCTORS

Gains Against Cancer Also Reported.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A method of detouring living skin from one part of the body to another to improve plastic surgery was described to the American College of Surgeons here tonight by Sir Harold Gillies, London surgeon.

In detouring skin, without ever losing its living connection with the patient's own blood supply, it can be taken from virtually any part of the body, even the back, and transferred anywhere else, even from outside of the body to interior cavities

How Skin Is Detoured.

To detour abdominal skin to the face, a square section of abdominal skin first is loosened along two opposite sides, lifted and rolled into the form of a valise handle. Its other two ends remain attached to their original sites. This handle or flap remains fully alive nourished by blood vessels at each end, until it gets accustomed to its semi-independent form of life.

Next one end of the flap is cut free and grafted to the forearm, which can be placed near the abdomen. Meanwhile the other end of the flap remains connected to the abdomen. Over a period of several weeks the skin gets accustomed to this change, the first step in its detour.

Second Stage of Journey.

Then the flap handle end is detached from the abdomen, but left fastened to the forearm. The forearm then is free to be raised to the face, or wherever the new skin is wanted.

This transfer is the second step of the detour. The flap is left attached to the wrist, while its free end is grafted in place on the face. Again the skin gets accustomed to its new location. Then finally it is detached from the forearm and the grafting completed on the face.

Call Cancer Curable.

In the section devoted to the discussion of cancer, two papers read had the title "Cancer Is Curable."

Dr. Frederick C. Holden of New York, said many cases can be cured by diagnosis and surgery. He said "there is no cancer age."

Hubert A. Royster, M. D., of Raleigh, N. C., read a paper that stated "cancer of the breast is curable." Hugh Trout, M. D., of Roanoke, Va., said from 1920 to 1924 his clinic records showed 30 per cent of five year cures, and the years 1924 to 1928 a rise to 55 per cent five year cures.

A. C. Scott Jr., M. D., of Temple, Tex., said with the "hot knife," an electrical surgical instrument, 96.7 per cent of breast cancer cases out of 236 so treated are alive and well after five years or more. He held that the "hot knife" offers 10 to 20 per cent better chances for surgical cancer cures.

Tell of Other Cases.

Gordon B. New, M. D., and Frederick A. Figi, M. D., of the Mayo Clinic, reported on 1,374 malignant cancers of mouths, pharynx and larynx. Of those 745 are alive and apparently well five or more years after operation.

J. Shelton Horsley, M. D., of Richmond, Va., described operations for stomach cancer. He predicted many lives can be saved that are now given up. Previously at the present meeting increase in cures of stomach cancer have been reported.

Bethel Solomons, M. D., of Dublin, Ireland, described surgery to cure sterility. He said marriage should not be considered sterile until after 18 months. He asked a question as to whether "the babies are stronger with or without prohibition" of alcoholic beverages.

Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels Forced to Land in Plane

Tamaqua, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Ben Lyon and his wife, Bebe Daniels, both of Hollywood's motion picture colony, escaped uninjured as their airplane made a forced landing at the Honestown emergency field today. They were flying from San Francisco to New York, with Lyon at the controls.

YOUNG WOMAN IS SAVED FROM SUICIDE IN LAKE

A well dressed young woman, a brunette, about 24 years old, attempted to commit suicide yesterday afternoon by jumping into the lake at the foot of Oak street. She was rescued by Policeman John Pfieffer of the Chicago avenue station and taken to the county hospital.

Although unconscious when taken out of the lake, she became hysterical soon after arriving at the hospital and demanded her release. She refused to give her name, but cried over and over again, "I want to go home!" When questioned as to her husband's name she said she had no husband. Hospital authorities, fearing her mind is unbalanced, are holding her.

The girl's clothing, all of expensive materials, consisted of a royal blue crepe dress, trimmed with a braided band of blue and silver; two coats, one of light gray wool and the other of brown tweed; a black felt hat, black gloves, and navy blue kid oxfords bearing an I. Miller label. She wore a signet ring of twisted white gold bands on her left hand.

U. S. EASY MONEY BUYS N. Y. VOTES, CHARGE BY G. O. P.

Housing Project Is Called Patronage Mill.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The existence of an 8 million dollar patronage mill controled by Postmaster General Farley and Edward J. Flynn, Democrtic boss, who is known as President Roosevelt's advisor on New York City politics, was charged today in the sizzling gubernatorial campaign in the Empire state.

An 8 million dollar housing project in the Bronx, financed with federal money, is being used to give jobs to loyal Democrats who will work for the reëlection of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Robert Moses, Republican candidate for governor, declared. The General Builders Supply company, run by Farley's father-in-law, gets the fat contracts for the housing project, Moses asserted.

Funds From RFC.

The famed urbanity of Mr. Farley was reported to be sorely tried as a result of these disclosures. The accusations were regarded as a bombshell in the Lehman camp.

The development in question is a group of apartment houses to be operated by a limited dividend corporation. Funds have been supplied by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

President of the housing corporation is Nathan Straus Jr., who recently resigned as chief of the enforcement division of the National Recovery act after he had been subjected to embarrassing publicity concerning his prosecution of a Brooklyn mother who wanted to support her children by making flowers in her home.

The state housing board, which supervises the project, is under the direction of Flynn as secretary of state.

"Mr. Flynn supervises the jobs, Mr. Farley picks the contractors," said Moses. "Everybody knows that Jim Farley is in the building material supply business."

Farley's Berth Stays Vacant.

Harry B. Finnegan, Farley's brother-in-law and vice president of the General Builders Supply company, said that Farley had resigned as president of the concern but remains a stockholder. Strangely enough, the office of president has remained vacant since Farley's resignation.

"Ed Flynn is getting more patronage out of this housing project than in any other branch of state government," said Moses. "Everybody who gets a job there must go through the Bronx county organization which Flynn controls.

"Of course, the fact that Farley is mixed up in this is not surprising. He makes no bones about what he is after. He puts it in writing and his frankness is amusing.

"It is now easy to see that a certain contractor gets a contract. Under the NRA code, all bids must be alike. Mr. Flynn and Mr. Farley make sure that the favored contractor is a loyal contractor."

As proof of his contention that all federal jobs in New York are now on a patronage basis, Moses produced a letter written by a Democratic national committeeman to a man who had applied for a job with the Home Owners' Loan corporation.

How Jobs Are Filled.

"Positions outside of the civil service are filled out of a list of qualified persons whose loyalty and sympathy with the administration are established by indorsements of friendly political leaders," the letter read. "In your case it would be advisable to present a letter of indorsement from Vincent Dailey, Democratic state committee."

Dailey is chief aid to Farley. He has been mentioned as successor to Farley's position of Democratic state chairman.

Today's charges recalled exposures made last month and not contradicted which connected Farley's materials supply company with the building of a postoffice annex building here.

The company, it was revealed, was scheduled to supply $120,000 worth of materials for the postoffice building and had sold $75,000 worth of cement to the general contractors for the building and the federal courts building. On the courts building the company controled by Farley's brother-in-law also sold materials, approximating $185,000 in cost, to contractors.

Democrats Put in Santa Claus to Pinch Hit in Hot Iowa Congressional Campaign Fight

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Tammany's tiger now prowls the Iowa prairie looking for votes to devour. This is what Republicans here are shouting in a counter blast to efforts of the Democrats to capitalize politically the millions of dollars poured into the state under the New Deal.

As in Maine, the Democrats are playing up a golden flood of 354 million dollars that has gushed into Iowa since the Brain Trust smote the rock. They are following it with the argument that unless Democrats are elected Nov. 6 the fountain of doles and benefits may run dry.

Republican managers are denouncing the tactics as an effort to make political capital out of federal millions spent, supposedly, without basis of politics, for the relief of distress and stimulation of national recovery. "The Tammanyzing of Iowa" is the slogan the G. O. P. has raised over the Democratic argument of "why kill Santa Claus on Christmas eve?"

$143 for Each in State.

The 354 millions amounts to an average of $557 for each Iowa family or $143 for every man, woman, and child in the state.

At the polls the figures are expected to do much talking. As one Democrat remarked, "354 million bucks ought to have more eloquence than Demosthenes, Cicero, Daniel Webster, and Senator Dickinson combined."

The name of Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, the Republicans declare, is being utilized in some measure in the Democratic effort to capitalize the Christmas tree. In the current issue of Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead, on the mast head of which is a legend, "Henry A. Wallace, editor, on leave of absence as secretary of agriculture," appears a full page political advertisment by the Democrats. The New Dealers are also running it in the larger newspapers.

"What It Means in Cash."

After admonishing the readers to vote the Democratic ticket the advertisment lists Iowa's receipts from the New Deal as follows:

"What the New Deal means in dollars and cents.

"The following cash and credit benefits are the direct results of governmental leadership and planning for the people of Iowa:

"Corn loans enabled farms to hold 130 million bushels of corn off a 20 cent market and take advantage of present 70 cent market—net profit to farmers, 65 million dollars.

"Corn-hog benefits to 176,000 coöperating Iowa farmers, 73 million dollars.

Brag of Farm Refinancing.

"Refinancing of loans on 12,000 Iowa homes by Home Owners' Loan corporation, 24 millions.

"CCC camps affording work for 8,000 men in Iowa, preventing soil erosion and improving public lands. Expenditures for wages and supplies, 6 millions.

"Emergency Relief administration saved Iowa property owners a 30 per cent increase in taxes by providing, through state relief administration, a total of 26 million, 400 thousand dollars.

"Total of principal cash and credit benefits from New Deal, 354 million, 400 thousand dollars.

The main fight in Iowa is over the governorship and other state officers and election of nine members of congress. Gov. Clyde L. Herring, Democrat, is being opposed by Dan W. Turner, Republican, a former governor, who was beaten two years ago by Herring. This is a blistering battle, which is getting even warmer as cold weather approaches.

In accusing the Democrats of efforts to "Tammanyize" the corn-hog belt, the Republicans point to instructions recently given by the party managers to 5,000 Democratic workers over the radio, in which the workers were told the most important issue of all is:

"This election, beyond all doubt, will determine whether Iowa will continue to receive, through state and federal government agencies, the very liberal and much needed benefits coming to our people through these agencies."

G. O. P. Counters with Pledge.

At once the Republicans countered with a letter they had received from Harry L. Hopkins, in answer to a query as to whether the relief funds placed in Iowa would be influenced in any degree by the political affiliations of the state officials.

"We have the proof," declares the Republicans' literature, "that it does not matter so far as federal relief is concerned, whether Iowa elects Republicans or Democrats.

"Mr. Hopkins in his reply said: 'With regard to your inquiry concerning the basis of the allotment of federal funds for relief of unemployment, this administration, in its allotment of funds, is governed solely and exclusively by the need of relief on the part of the unemployed living in any given state or given country.'

"The Democrats should now accept the view that federal relief is not an issue in Iowa. They should acknowledge they made a mistake when they injected the relief question into the campaign. They cannot convince Iowa that it must purchase federal relief with votes."

On the state issues the Democrats set forth among chief accomplishments of the Herring administration, a 9 million dollar reduction in cost of government, a tax revision act which has given a new fiscal system with income, corporation and sales tax, a farm mortgage moratorium enabling farmers to hold their lands until federal refinancing could be done, an old age pension and a liquor control system. Even by some in the Republican camp Gov. Herring is accounted popular.

In the primary fight in which ex-Gov. Turner won the nomination a residium of factionalism is still stewing and simmering. Both camps declaim that the election is in the bag, but it's a hot fight. One factor is the presence of Wallace Short as a candidate on the Farm-Labor ticket for governor, after being beaten by Turner in the Republican primaries.

Short may poll 40,000 or more votes in northwest Iowa, the radical section, and whether he will cut into Turner more than into Herring or vice versa is a question.

WM. A. WHITE SEES PRESIDENCY AS ONE OF DEVIL'S INVENTIONS

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—William Allen White, widely known Kansas editor, observed that "the devil himself must have invented the presidency," as he met reporters in a New York club tonight.

White, editor of the Emporia Gazette, is in New York for the award next week of the Roosevelt medal, to be presented to him on the seventy-sixth anniversary of the birth of President Theodore Roosevelt.

"From the man in the White House," said the editor, "we require the patient futility of Sisyphus, the torture of Tantalus and the nervous tension of a man with ants in his pants.

"I supported Mr. Hoover, but it is no exhibition of loyalty to Hoover to be shooting at the pianist when he is doing his best. Roosevelt will either make good and be politically invulnerable for a time, or he will blow up all of a sudden.

"It is either hari kari or a tent in 'fame's eternal camping ground' for Franklin Roosevelt."

WIND UP AFFAIRS OF ZUTA ESTATE; ALL CASH SPENT

The estate of Jack Zuta, which had been in litigation since the gang chief was shot down by other gangsters in a Wisconsin resort on Aug. 1, 1930, was ordered closed yesterday by Walter W. L. Meyer, assistant to the probate judge.

A final report submitted by Public Administrator Halbert O. Crews showed assets totaling $13,173, all of which was used to satisfy claims filed against the estate. Chief of the assets were an insurance policy worth $8,765 and three parcels of real estate which were ordered sold.

U. S. ENVOY FINDS SOVIET SPIES DOG HIM IN MOSCOW

Bullitt Expected to Make Report to Roosevelt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 17.—American Ambassador William C. Bullitt, whose operations on the Warsaw ruble market considerably annoy some of his diplomatic colleagues, as recently revealed by THE TRIBUNE, has found that the life of a foreign diplomat in Moscow is no bed of roses.

American visitors passing through here on their way out of soviet Russia report that despite the cordial relations between the Kremlin and the White House, relations which Bullitt was largely responsible for establishing, he is encountering the same difficulties in trying to carry on official business with the soviet government that have embittered nearly all other foreign diplomatic representatives who have tried to work in Russia.

Bullitt, who is now on his way to the United States via Siberia and Japan, is expected upon his arrival at Washington to make a report to the White House on diplomatic difficulties in Moscow.

Expected Privileged Treatment.

While Bullitt was familiar with conditions before he took over the Moscow post, it is explained that he counted on receiving privileged treatment as an old friend of soviet Russia and because of the importance attached to good relations with America.

Consequently it was a bitter disillusionment for him to find that his confidential dispatches and letters were being opened, his telephones tapped and G. P. U. spies peeking at him from around every corner. It was just as if he had been the Japanese or the German ambassador instead of the ambassador of the New Deal.

Naturally, he found also that instead of being showered with caviar and vodka by the soviet government, he was encountering the customary hardships and difficulties in obtaining the most elementary supplies or services. But these are only trival annoyances.

Can't Get Business Done.

A much more serious complaint is that Bullitt cannot seem to get any business done. Apprehensive Americans who feared that Bullitt's enthusiasm for the Russian new deal and his confidential relations with President Roosevelt would involve America in highly equivocal and dangerous far eastern complications will be reassured to learn that now there are said to be between 40 and 50 notes from the state department lying somewhere unanswered around the offices of Comrade Maxim Litvinov's commissariat of foreign affairs.

One explanation for this curiously cavalier treatment of Uncle Sam and his distinguished Moscow representative is that Bullitt's closest bolshevik friend is the Red war lord, Voroshilov.

Fortunately or unfortunately, according to how you look at it, it appears that Voroshilov, although the second most powerful man in Russia, is not popular with the comrades on the diplomatic end. Bullitt has discovered that any one who is popular with Voroshilov is persona non grata around Litvinov's diggings. That may explain why those notes have never been answered.

The Burocratic Maze.

Furthermore, Bullitt has discovered that in the soviet burocracy, as in other burocracies, it is often very hard to find out just who is responsible for what, and when you do find out something mysterious may happen to prevent any contact.

Bullitt is said to have obtained a particularly enlightening glimpse of this phase of soviet life from the adventure which befell one of his colleagues, the Italian minister. The Italian minister had been carrying on some long and complicated negotiations and was so elated when his affair seemed to be coming to a conclusion that he invited the soviet official with whom he had been negotiating to lunch.

Guest Disappears.

In the middle of the lunch the guest was called to the telephone and came back saying that he would have to excuse himself for ten minutes. He never came back and no one knew what happened to him.

Bullitt was informed of the incident, and, since he knew the man, took occasion on his next visit to the foreign commissariat to inquire after him.

"Where is so-and-so?" Bullitt is said to have asked." I owe him some money from a bridge game the other night and I want to pay him."

"I don't think you need to worry about that bridge debt, Mr. Ambassador," replied the soviet official, smiling sweetly.

LET $700,000 COUNTY JOBS FOR PAVEMENTS, BRIDGES AND SEWER

The county board awarded yesterday contracts for the construction of 10.7 miles of pavement, three bridges, and one sewer job involving a total expenditure of $701,872. The paving projects are as follows:

CRAWFORD AVENUE [Pulaski road], Bryn Mawr avenue to Lincoln avenue.

GREENWOOD AVENUE, Busse road to Oakton street.

25TH AVENUE, King place to Lawrence avenue.

FERRIS AVENUE, Lincoln avenue to Dempster street.

26TH STREET, Desplaines avenue to Harlem avenue.

The bridge contracts are for all spans over the Skokie river, on Dundee road, River road, and Lincoln avenue. The sewer job is in Narragansett avenue from Berteau avenue to Montrose avenue.

Philippine Governor Asks Extradition of 23 Japs

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Disregarding the request of Japanese Consul General Atsushi Kimura to "leave the matter in Japan's hands," Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy today filed a request to Tokio for the extradition of 23 fishermen accused of attempting to slay three Filipino peace officers. He asked Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to make representations in accordance with the treaty of 1887, requesting the provisional arrest of the captain and 22 members of the crew of the vessel Kaiun Maru, now at Formosa.

MORE POVERTY CALLED GOAL OF SINCLAIR PLAN

G. O. P. "Brain Trust" Leads California Defense

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Socialist Upton Sinclair's EPIC not only has California by the ears in the most desperately fought election struggle in a generation or more, but it has the whole nation awaiting with bated breath the outcome of the battle.

The reason clearly enough is that the California election is universally recognized as a turning point. If Sinclair wins the governorship on his program of coöperative industry and agriculture, with attendant destruction of private enterprise and private property, the collectivist movement and radicalism generally will receive a tremendous impetus.

It will tend to cause the Roosevelt administration to swing even farther to the left. On the other hand if Sinclair is defeated the effect will be to check the spread of radicalism, for the time being at least.

Conservatives Are Fighting.

It thus falls out that the conservatives of California are waging not only their own fight but also that conservatives everywhere for the preservation of the institutions of private property, individual enterprise, the profit motive, and the capitalist structure of society generally.

While Sinclair is quoting the felicitations of Edward M. House and Samuel Untermeyer, who terms EPIC "sound and workable," the Republican candidate, Gov. Frank E. Merriam, quotes Raymond Moley of the Roosevelt brain trust, who said:

"I do not believe Upton Sinclair's plan to end poverty will end poverty. I do not believe it is sound and progressive economics. It ignores the tragic consequences of intrusting governmental power to an incompetent technician."

Sinclair slammed back at Moley's remark that the Epic barter scheme smacks of Jean Jacques Rousseau's back to nature gospel.

Believes Scrip Is Barred.

"Our unemployed," Sinclair said, "are going to work and they are going to produce goods and they are going to make them available to themselves in the simplest legal way that we can find; we talked about issuing scrip, but there appears to be a constitutional question as to whether a state can lawfully issue scrip; therefore we have talked of giving our farmers warehouse receipts for their goods and making these receipts exchangeable for taxes and for credit at our EPIC stores. We have talked of giving workers certificates of service, which also can be exchanged for credit at our stores; these arrangements will resemble as closely as possible what our people have always been accustomed to—that is, warehouse receipts which our banks accept and personal checks which circulate quite as freely as currency.

"I presume that Prof. Moley does not think of them as barter, and if this is true, there is no more reason why he should think of our EPIC system as barter.

May Use Barter, Too.

"Of course, it is perfectly possible that we may perform some barter activities. We will perform them at any time that we happen to find them more convenient. We can not grow coffee in Califronia, but we can produce oil, and if our people should find that they can exchange a shipload of oil for a shipload of coffee from some country in Central America, why should not they do it, and what will it have to do with Jean Jacques Rousseau two hundred years ago in France?"

Then the Republicans created a brain trust composed of "nonpolitical research experts and auditors" who analyzed the EPIC plan and rendered a lengthy report finding that the Sinclair scheme would result in a state deficit of 440 million dollars a year. Their report said that "Sinclair's EPIC plan would Russianize agriculture in California and its cost would be prohibitive. It is nothing but a soviet farm scheme tied up in a pink ribbon. This plan to be successful, would of necessity ruin the market for all private competitive agricultral products.

Russianizing of Industry.

"Industry would be Russianized in the same manner.

"Private factories," says the report, "could not compete with tax-financed state operation, conducted regardless of cost, and would of necessity shut down. Under Sinclair's EPIC plan each time a state factory opened up a private factory would have to close, each time a state store opened up the doors of private stores would shut. Each time the state hired a man, some other man in private industry would lose his job. There is only so much business, and the socialistic store, relief store, relieved of taxes and supported by taxpayers' money, could only succeed upon the wreckage of private industry.

Creating More Idleness.

"What would happen to the employés of stores and plants thus forced out of business? What could they do except to join the ranks of the unemployed?"

The heavy taxes proposed by Sinclair to effect the redistribution of wealth and destruction of private enterprise would drive capital and all forms of wealth out of the state, according to the report. In his book, "I, Governor of California," Sinclair said:

"Homes of from $3,000 to $5,000 pay a normal rate, and for each additional $5,000 we add one-half of one per cent. That means that if you live in a $100,000 home you will pay a tax of about 11 per cent, and if you don't care to pay that the state will take over your mansion."

With reference to this the Republican "Brain Trust" says: "Sinclair is a very clever word carpenter. In order to inflame the public he speaks of the few $100,000 homes in California. He very carefully says nothing as to the $100,000 factories, business buildings, hotels, ranches, dairies and all other taxable real property in the state of California, which must, under the federal constitution, be treated on exactly the same basis."

A $100,000 orange grove or dairy would, under Sinclair's plan, pay 11 per cent—$11,000 a year, on top of the city tax, the county tax, special assessments and the school district tax."

Cites Lessons of History.

Another section of the Republican Brain Trust has dug into history and unearthed all the failures of coöperative communities, such as Brook Farm, the communities of Indiana and elsewhere founded as a result of the theories of Robert Owen a century ago, the two farm colonies at Durham and Delhi, Cal., recently liquidated at a cost of 3 millions to the state, and Sinclair's own Helicon community in New Jersey. In his biography of Sinclair, Frank Harris quoted Sinclair as follows:

"Ultimately I look forward to maternity pensions, coöperative homes, such as I tried to found at Helicon hall, and community care of children, which will relax the present strict family régime. I mean it will set the parents free from being slaves to their children."

Colony for Professionals.

In his "lie factory" Sinclair says that Helicon hall "was a residential community occupied by professional people. There was not a single inch of farm land connected with it and not a single vegetable was ever grown on it. The fact is that Helicon home colony came to an end because it burned down one night."

Such is the fear that Sinclair, with his tremendous following in southern California and his labor following in northern California, will carry the state that 700 leading Californians of all parties met in San Francisco a few days ago and formed the "California League Against Sinclairism." One of the most powerful indictments of EPIC was the speech made at this meeting by former Gov. C. C. Young.

Fears Ruin of State.

"If I thought," Mr. Young said, "that Upton Sinclair could end poverty in California I should be shouting his name from the housetops. But if I thought that any man, through undermining our whole social and business structure, could end poverty in California I should be as unsound in my mental processes as is Mr. Sinclair. The four words of Mr. Sinclair's slogan are all correct, but he has placed them in the wrong order. EPIC really means 'End California in poverty.'

"A future prosperous California depends upon reduced taxes, enlarged industries, and a consequent increased employment for California citizens. The proposed plan, if carried out as proposed, can only mean confiscatory taxes, stifled industries, and still more labor thrown out of employment. This is no time for trying experiments which from their very nature must necessarily produce results exactly opposite to those promised."

GOV. MERRIAM NOW A 10 TO 8 FAVORITE TO DEFEAT SINCLAIR

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Frank F. Merriam was installed as a 10 to 8 favorite today to win the governorship from Upton Sinclair and Raymond Haight.

The odds, according to local betting commissioners, jumped to Mr. Merriam today after even money was the previous quotation. Betting until about a month ago was brisk, but has not been as active of late, it is said.

It was understood that some eastern money was available on Mr. Sinclair, but betters were reported having trouble locating much of it.

Odds of 10 to 6 were quoted on George J. Hatfield to become lieutenant governor over Sheridan Downey.

JOBLESS POURING IN

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The influx of unemployed to California has reached a daily average of about 100 persons, or approximately half the proportions of the famous gold rush of 1849, Russell Bevans, state registrar of motor vehicles, announced today.

Bevans, an appointee of the late Gov. James Rolph Jr., Republican, attributed the growing migration to hopes of the newcomers that Upton Sinclair, Democratic nominee, will be elected governor of California and inaugurate his "End poverty in California" plan.

"All base their hopes of relief on the election of Sinclair," Bevans said in a statement, adding that many told of being urged in other states to continue their journeys westward, because "California has the best economic conditions."

"Recovery in Two Years."

Sinclair, author and long time Socialist, proposes to end the depression in California in two years. The principal features of the plan call for placing California's 1,500,000 unemployed on idle farm lands and in idle factories with a system of barter between the two.

Bevans' conclusions were based on a study of trafic flowing through two of the largest seven motor vehicle checking stations which dot the eastern and northern borders of California. The survey covered the first 10 days of October.

In addition to counting arrivals at the stations of Fort Yuma and Dunsmuir, Bevans said clerks asked each person questions bearing upon whether he was employed, why he came, where he was from, his occupation and where he was going.

Bevans' figures showed an average of 88 unemployed men and women passed through the two stations daily, the greatest number of them coming from Oklahoma and Texas.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

POLITICAL BEANS SPILL; 2 PRIVATE PAPERS GET OUT

One Asks Relief Workers About Party Affiliation.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Within a few hours yesterday fate made public two examples of the sort of thing old timers in the political game say should never be put into writing. "By their writings they shall be undone," is an old political saying.

One of the documents was a printed questionnaire form, said to have been sent out by the Democratic state central committee to obtain political information about all relief workers in the downstate territory. The Republicans seized this as proof of their charges that their opponents are mingling politics and charity.

The second document was a facsimile typewritten letter over a facsimile signature of George F. Harding as treasurer of the Republican county central committee that included a promise of "introduction to high places" in exchange for a campaign contribution.

Author Finds Face Red.

The mailing of the letter was stopped by the committee before many copies had gone out. Mr. Harding did not write it, but considerable embarrassment is said to have been caused to the real author, a mysterious person, said to be a "big man" who offered to help raise campaign funds.

The report that the downstate Democrats are using relief lists to further their campaign came from the city of Marshall in Clark county, where much excitement was caused by published charges that Bruce A. Campbell, state chairman, had sent the printed questionnaires to Nick Hurst, chairman of the county committee.

The printed form was described as being headed with the words: "QUESTIONNAIRE FERA PERSONNEL," and the Republicans asserted that this caption was intended to create the impression that it was an official census being taken by the Federal Emergency Relief administration.

The instructions on the blank were that it was to be filled out in duplicate, with separate records for "each employé and each member of the relief committee."

Long List of Inquiries.

After the usual spaces for the name and address of the employé, his title and salary, there was a space for a statement of his "political affiliation."

Then appeared a long list of questions among which were the following:

"Has he or she ever been a candidate for, elected or appointed to, any political office?

"Have any of the relatives of the individual ever been a candidate for, elected or appointed to any political office?

"What relatives of employé's family are on county, state, or federal pay roll?

"Has employé criticized recovery program? State particulars briefly.

"What political party for state and congressional candidates will employé and relatives support this fall?

This questionnaire was to be signed by the Democratic county chairman or one of his aids.

The so-called Harding letter asking for Republican campaign contributions was described by Republicans who had seen it as "the work of some volunteer amateur" but his identity was concealed in order to spare his self-esteem.

The county leaders said little damage had been done as only a few letters had gone out before the blunder was discovered and the mailing stopped.

"You are invited to be recognized by the Cook county Republican central committee. That requires no effort on your part, but the recognition of supporting our cause at this time will eventually be of great help to you in the future.

"By filling in the enclosed [subscription] blank you indicate your approval of the honorable, time tested principles of the Republican party. Furthermore, we provide you with an effective card of introduction to high places.

Reflections on "High Places."

"A confidential duplicate card will be kept in the permanent files of the Republican headquarters. This card will be sent to you immediately upon receipt of your donation. The size of your donation is left entirely to your good judgment."

Republicans and Democrats alike smiled over the possibility of such a card serving as a source of influence in "high places" during a period when about the highest spot in the possession of the Republicans is the county headquarters on the second floor of the Ashland block.

WOMAN DIES AFTER FALL.

Candidates on Nov. 6 Ballot

Brief biographies are presented below of the three Republican and the three Democratic candidates at the Nov. 6 election for trustees of the University of Illinois:

Democrats

Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb has served one term as Cook county commissioner. She is a graduate of the Hyde Park High school and studied in the University of Chicago and Loyola university and the National Catholic Graduate School of Social Service in Washington, D. C. During the Alfred E. Smith campaign in 1928 she was director of the Illinois Progressive league and was director of the woman's division on the nonpartisan committee in the 1929 judicial elections. Mrs. Plumb was also active in the William E. Dever campaign.

Harold Pogue, whose home is in Decatur, graduated from the University of Illinois in 1916 after a football career in which "Pogue and Clark" was the slogan for substantial gridiron achievement. During the war he served in the army balloon corps. He is now chairman of the Alumni Fund association of the university. After Chicago banking experience and four years as secretary of the Decatur Association of Commerce he entered the lumber business in which he is now engaged.

Oscar G. Mayer is a son of Oscar Mayer, Chicago meat packer. He is a graduate of Harvard university and since 1925 has been president of the Mayer firm. During the war he was a lieutenant in the Illinois National Guard. He has served as director of the Chicago Public Library and as president of the Institute of American Meat Packers. His home is in Evanston.

Republicans

Mrs. Mary A. Wall, of Murphysboro, attended the Southern Illinois State Normal university at Carbondale and graduated in music from a St. Louis conservatory. She is now serving her third year as director for Illinois of the General Federation of Women's clubs and was Illinois state president for two years.

Merle J. Trees has been a trustee of the university for twelve years. He graduated from the engineering school in 1907 and is vice president of the Chicago Bridge and Iron works. Mr. Trees is a director of the Beverly State Savings bank and a member of several clubs. He is a past president of the American Bridge and Building association. From 1926 to 1928 he was president of the university trustees.

J. W. Armstrong of Rock Island has also served twelve years on the board of trustees. He was born in Stark county, Illinois and graduated from the University of Illinois in 1893. He is vice president and factory manager of the Illinois Oil company.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item yesterday told of the Appellate court's affirmation of the jail sentences of three women for vote count frauds. One of them is Martha Rabinovitz, who says she has already served her 15 day sentence.

CHARGE TRICKERY BY DEMOCRATS IN SENATE 'DEAL'

Democratic organization leaders and the Democratic state administration forces were charged yesterday with the responsibility for clearing the paths to reëlection for two Republican nominees to the state senate.

Under mysterious circumstances the office of Secretary of State Hughes, a Democrat, announced at Springfield that through an oversight withdrawals of the Democratic nominees against the two Republicans had not been announced in September when they were received. The nominees whose petitions were withdrawn are Norman H. Macpherson, First district, and Nicholas J. Mastro, Seventeenth.

The two beneficiaries of the announcement were Senator Daniel A. Serritella, First district, and Senator James B. Leonardo, 17th district. Both districts are in the Chicago "rotten borough" list and both senators have been assailed politically as members of the Capone group. Serritella is a Republican committeeman of the First ward, but is a close associate of Michael Kenna, Democratic committeeman.

RELIEF FAKER DRAWS 30 DAYS; MUST PAY BACK

Joseph Cardarella, 2855 South Union avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell and was ordered to make restitution of $328.24 to the Illinois emergency relief commission yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the Municipal court. He was charged with having obtained this amount of relief fraudulently between June 15, 1932, and Oct. 19, 1933. The vocational department of the relief organization discovered that Cardarella's wife was regularly employed.

authorities for counterfeiting, was planning to surrender soon.

Breen had served 13 years and 9 months of a murder sentence in the Stateville penitentiary and was paroled on Sept. 7. It was this confinement, police believe, that unbalanced his mind.

Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the county behavior clinic, examined Breen last night. He said the prisoner was a paranoiac with delusions of persecution.

A possibility that Breen's arrest would solve the murder of another employé of the water pipe extension department was given slight credence by police. The other victim was Joseph Adducci, 45 years old, shot to death as he was being shaved in a barber shop at 11857 South Michigan avenue on Sept. 16, nine days after Breen was released from prison.

At the time the belief was expressed that Adducci had been the victim of mistaken identity. Now police surmise that Breen might have mistaken Adducci for Walsh, both through unfamiliarity and through his unstable mental condition.

Career in Public Jobs.

Walsh had a varied career as a deputy coroner. He was suspended several times under both administrations in which he served for alleged irregularities in his conduct of inquests. Both coroners released him.

Coroner Hoffman suspended him indefinitly in August, 1922, alleging Walsh "whitewashed" George G. Florentine at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Mary Brown, a nurse killed by Florentine's automobile.

Coroner Wolff discharged Walsh for irregularities in the inquest into the death of Jennie Parr, a cabaret girl. Walsh presided at the inquest which resulted in the exoneration of Policeman John P. Mulcahy, suspected of criminal responsibility in the death.

Walsh had been employed by the city for the last four years.

Vets Group Gets Charter; Will Fight 'Bonus Racket'

The Chicago unit of the American Veterans' association, a national organization combating soldiers' bonus "racketeering," has received its charter and will hold its organization meeting at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at 76 East Monroe street, Thomas G. Cassady, who organized the Chicago group, said yesterday. There are 84 Chicago members of the association, which seeks to end the payment of bonuses to ex-soldiers without regard to their service qualifications.

FOUR INJURED IN CRASH AS YOUTHS FLEE POLICEMEN

No Motive Found for Attempted Escape.

Four persons were seriously injured yesterday when their automobile was struck by another car in which three youths were trying to escape police at Kolin avenue and Roosevelt road.

Joseph Monitz, 52 years old, 4324 West 13th street, suffered a skull fracture. His wife, Harriet, 44 years old; David Friedman, 45 years old, 1216 South Avers avenue, and Mr. Friedman's wife, Anna, 55 years old, also were seriously injured.

The three youths, none seriously injured, were taken into custody. They are Sam Cardaropli, 15 years old, 2109 West Congress street; Ray Donnini, 16 years old, 514 South Hoyne avenue, and Cuno Messina, 18 years old, 2109 West Congress street.

Messina had borrowed the car from a friend, and police said they had learned no reason why the youths fled when the police ordered them to halt.

A man tentively identified as Benjamin C. Long, 55 years old, 617 North Campbell avenue, was killed when his automobile collided with another car at Menard and Cornelia avenues.

The death of Long and three others yesterday brought Cook county's auto toll for 1934 to 968. The victims:

T. B. Weatherton, 58 years old, 1000 Greenwood avenue, Michigan City, Ind. Died at St. Bernard's hospital after being struck at 69th and State streets by an automobile driven by Walter Conlan, 32 years old, 5652 South Paulina street. Luloff Wilson, 63 years old, 6857 St. Lawrence avenue, suffered less severe injuries.

Rocco Pesko, 64, of 2416 Arthington street. Killed by an auto, whose driver's identity was not learned, at Western avenue near Taylor street.

Mrs. Leila Campbell, 52 years old. Died en route to St. Bernard's hospital after being struck at West 70th street and Vincennes avenue by a car driven by Kenneth Hart, 21 years old, 8059 South Marshfield avenue.

Fred Brismie, 45 years old, of Zion was killed yesterday by an automobile driven by Joseph Schuessler of Zion at Sheridan and Longview roads, Waukegan.

Barney Oldfield, 56 years old, veteran race track driver, was involved in a minor trafic accident last night. While driving south in the outer drive at 40th street with his niece and a woman friend of hers a speeding car approached on the left and forced his car to the curb. Oldfield's machine was damaged when it struck a light pole. No one was injured. Mr. Oldfield is in charge of a group of exhibition drivers at the Chrysler exhibit at the World's Fair.

$250,000 Fire Loss in Canadian Summer Resort

HUDSON, Que., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Fire caused damage estimated at $250,000 in this summer resort town tonight, destroying the luxurious clubhouse of the Hudson Yacht club. A number of homes were badly damaged and two Canadian Pacific railway refrigerator cars were burned.

the Wellman Process does this— ..it makes the tobacco milder

In the manufacture of Granger Rough Cut Pipe Tobacco the Wellman Process is used.

The Wellman Process is different from any other process or method and we believe it gives more enjoyment to pipe smokers.

...it gives the tobacco an extra flavor and aroma
...it makes the tobacco act right in a pipe—burn slower and smoke cooler
...it makes the tobacco milder
...it leaves a clean dry ash—no soggy residue or heel in the pipe bowl

Fine for Kidney and Bladder Weakness

Stop Getting Up Nights

Keep your kidneys free from waste matter, poisons and acid, and put healthy activity into kidneys and bladder and you'll live a healthier, happier and longer life.

One most efficient and harmless way to do this is to get from your druggist a 35 cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take them as directed—the swift results will surprise you.

Besides getting up nights, some symptoms of kidney trouble are backache, moist palms, leg cramps, and puffy eyes. If you want real results be sure to get GOLD MEDAL—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic—right from Haarlem in Holland. Give your kidneys a good cleaning once in a while.

CONSTIPATED? you must read this

IF you're constipated, what are you doing about it?

Are you taking a purgative that goes through you like dynamite? Does your laxative upset you? Does it give you actual pain—upsetting your digestion—leaving you weak after you take it? If you are taking rough measures, you may be sorry.

DON'T PUNISH YOURSELF WITH NASTY, VIOLENT PURGATIVES! YOU DON'T HAVE TO!

And the way to do it is to take gentle, effective Ex-Lax, the laxative that tastes just like delicious chocolate.

Ex-Lax does its work gently but surely—without pain, without upsetting you, without leaving you weak. Ex-Lax will not form a habit. You take it just when you need a laxative. And you don't have to keep on increasing the dose to get results.

At any drug store—in 10c and 25c boxes.

FIND 12 DAIRIES SELLING POOR QUALITY MILK

Inspectors Order Cut in Bacterial Count.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, disclosed yesterday that his investigators had discovered 12 Chicago dairies violating the city milk ordinance by selling fluid milk with a high bacterial content.

Under the ordinance it is illegal, between Oct. 1 and May 1, to sell pasteurized milk containing more than 50,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. From May 2 to Sept. 30 the law permits a bacterial count as high as 100,000 per cubic centimeter.

Dr. Bundesen made public the names of the twelve concerns whose milk, he asserted, had been found to contain bacteria from five to 60 times the maximum permissible. He added, however, that bacteriologists had not discovered disease producing organisms.

Complete Study in Week.

Staf men of the board of health make virtually continuous investigations of supplies of milk, that illegal sales may be eliminated and that the public may be assured that the milk sold is wholesome.

These men are visiting the plants and are making purchases from wagons. In the fall campaign about 75 per cent of the distributing agencies have come under inspection, and Dr. Bundesen said last night that the laboratories will speed scrutiny of specimens from the remaining 25 per cent. He expected to complete the examinations within a week.

One principal cause of high bacterial count, it was said, was the practice of some drivers who sell milk from three to six days old.

The board of health ordered all dairies whose milk was not up to the legal standard to determine what causes the excess of bacteria. The board's 32 inspectors are to continue their work and to see that all needed changes are made at once.

City Contains 148 Plants.

The twelve concerns accused of selling sub-standard milk—there are 142 distributors with 148 pasteurization plants doing business—are listed below. The samples on which the report was based were collected between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15.

The following preliminary report table is based on the 75 per cent of the dairies whose milk has been studied. The complete report is to be ready in a week. The table shows the name of the milk retailer, the bacterial count per cubic centimeter, the age of the milk in days, and where the samples were taken.

In commenting on the investigation last night, Dr. Bundesen said that with few exceptions Chicago has a wholesome and safe milk supply, as is evidenced by the fact that not one outbreak of disease traceable to milk has occurred in the city during the last ten years.

During the last two years Chicago has had the lowest baby death rate that has been recorded in the 100 years of its existence, added Dr. Bundesen. He pointed out that one of the first indications of unsafe milk is a high baby death rate.

At the suggestion of Mayor Kelly the city council recently approved the use of a $25,000 fund by the board of health in its special pure milk campaign and also amended the city milk ordinance. The added funds made it possible for the board of health to employ nineteen new milk inspectors, increasing its force of city and country inspectors to fifty-five.

The amended milk ordinance makes it illegal for stale milk, often containing an excessive number of bacteria, to be sold in Chicago.

NRA VIOLATOR

R. S. French, Middleville, Mich., coal dealer and brother-in-law of Senator A. H. Vandenberg, who was arrested and taken before federal judge at Grand Rapids on charge of violating court order forbidding him to violate the coal dealers' NRA code. He pleaded not guilty and refused to post bond, so was taken to jail.

BROWNSTEIN AND GENARO BROUGHT HERE AFTER RAID

Edward Brownstein, under indictment for arson, and Joseph [Pepe] Genaro, public enemy and murder suspect, were returned to Chicago yesterday from Rock Island, where they were seized in a raid on a rooming house Tuesday night. Both are suspected as former election terrorists in the Twentieth ward.

Brownstein was indicted with two others in connection with a fire at 9654 Avenue L last March 4. The others are James Santy, owner of the building, and William Jacobi. They are accused of having set the fire to collect insurance. Brownstein's case is scheduled for call in the Criminal court of Judge Harry Miller today.

State's attorney's police who assisted in the raid said they visited the rooming house in quest of Brownstein, but arrested Genaro when they found him there. They said he was wanted for questioning in a Calumet City murder, but the police there declared they do not want Genaro. He is a former south side associate of Al Capone and is a brother of Johnny Genaro, hoodlum slain by rival gangsters in 1931.

CHICAGO BANKER GETS NEW TRIAL IN FRAUD CASE

The State Supreme court yesterday ordered a new trial of Rudolph A. Cepak, former president of the defunct Millard State bank, who was convicted in Criminal court in October, 1932, of making false statements to bank examiners. The court sustained objections filed by Cepak's attorney to prejudicial remarks made by the assistant state's attorney, Donald Thompson, who prosecuted the case, and also held that there was error in instructions given the jury by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Cepak was convicted with John Havlicek, former cashier of the Millard bank, of juggling the bank's records to hide proof that the president had illegally borrowed $71,309 from the institution. Both men were sentenced to serve one to ten years in the penitentiary. Havlicek now is serving his sentence, but Cepak is free on bond.

First Offenders Pardoned After Doing 9 Months

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 28; recovered, 32; stripped, 1 [from police records for the 24 hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

After serving nine months of a one to twenty year sentence for automobile larceny Jack Andrews, 21 years old, and Norman Johnson, 20 years old, both of Chicago, were pardoned from the state penitentiary yesterday. Gov. Horner said he acted on the unanimous recommendation of the pardon board, which found the two were first offenders and had good records since their incarceration. The youths were sentenced Feb. 3 by Judge Harry B. Miller.

NRA IS LASTING, ASSERTS ONE OF ITS NEW BOSSES

Warns Chicago Business to Fall in Line.

Asserting that the NRA is here to stay, Arthur D. Whiteside, member of the new national industrial recovery board and president of Dun & Bradstreet, publishers of commercial credit reports, warned Chicago business men last night that they had better abandon their "hyper-critical attitude" and climb aboard the administration bandwagon.

"I'm just as positive as I am that I'm standing here," Mr. Whiteside told members of the Better Business bureau at a banquet in the Palmer house, "that the NRA is going to become a definite part of American economic life."

Small and nervous and speaking with great rapidity, Mr. Whiteside defended the NRA's past policies, asserted the new board would profit from the "hasty executive" mistakes which had been made occasionally, and briefly outlined the path of the NRA in the future.

Asks Constructive Criticism.

He seemed especially concerned with the criticisms which have been leveled at NRA. These, he said, should be of a constructive rather than a political and destructive nature if the proper results are to be gained.

"If you don't take the proper interest in your code problems," he warned, "other men not so capable of solving these problems will be put in charge. You must abandon your hyper-critical attitude and give us a coördinated expression of what you want."

Mr. Whiteside assured his audience that the spectacular days of the NRA are over.

"In talking with the President," he declared, "I was informed that the board would be allowed to sit for 60 or 90 days without rocking the boat to see if business will respond."

This "slow sure change" in industry under the new board, Mr. Whiteside added, will contrast in a marked degree with the "hasty executive and administrative orders" which he said have characterized NRA in the past.

"Section 7A to Stay."

Not only the NRA itself, but section 7A of the act, to which many employers have objected, is going to stay, Mr. Whiteside declared. This section covers collective bargaining of employés.

A new note in the government's attitude toward business was sounded by Mr. Whiteside when he declared that the ethical side of trade practices, formerly subject to burocratic regulation, were rightfully under the jurisdiction of such organizations as the Better Business bureau.

"The economic side of fair trade practice," he said, "is price control and I want to say I am unalterably against price fixing."

Many of the "absurd" trade restrictions written into codes last year will be taken out, Mr. Whiteside said. He declared that these had been put in because it was necessary to please business from which "we were asking higher wages and shorter hours."

Bruce MacLeish, president of the Better Business bureau, was chairman of the banquet meeting. Mayor Kelly was among the other speakers.

HENRY I. HARRIMAN URGES NEW RECOVERY ACT TO REPLACE NRA

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A proposed new act, embodying a definite formulation of a permanent economic policy, and differing sharply from the national industrial recovery measure, was outlined here today by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Harriman declared that the present NRA legislation "was enacted to meet an emergency." He said the codification of industry is now virtually completed and "the exigencies which called this measure into existence have largely passed."

Prejudice against the act, among business men, he said, is "very strong" because of a feeling that "the government is attempting to regiment all business," and that the act "has been conducive of unrest and strikes."

"My own conviction," he continued, "is that a permanent act can be drawn which will be of great value to industry and labor, and which will not improperly burden the consumer." The proposed law would be as far as possible "a civil rather than a criminal statute and should be enforceable through legal procedure as in the case of the act creating the federal trade commission," he said.

Atterbury Resigns Post on Rail Co-ordinating Unit

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, has resigned as a member of the Eastern Coördinating Committee of Railroads, it was learned today. It was believed probable that he would be succeeded by M. W. Clemenan, vice president of the Pennsylvania. The committee is one of three groups of railroad heads working with Coördinator Eastman.

NEW U. S. HOUSING PROGRAM ON WAY, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Praises FERA Plans to Provide Homes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt stated at his regular press conference today that a federal housing program with a great many ramifications undoubtedly would be submitted to the next congress and also would constitute an important part of the administration's future relief policy.

The President expressed approval of the latest undertaking of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, which is to develop small communities of from 100 to 500 families. The families are taken off the direct relief rolls and moved into small house,s where they are intended to become self-supporting on communal farms provided by the government.

Praises FERA Plans.

Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins has outlined such projects in West Virginia, Arkansas, and Texas, as well as the rural rehabilitation program for individual farmers, and the President gave the FERA fulsome praise. He said such enterprises were of great importance for two reasons—to get families off the relief rolls and, as he put it, to save humanity.

In response to questioning, Mr. Roosevelt denied that such a program of removing mountaineers, indigent share croppers, and miners onto farms provided by the government would conflict in any way with the crop reduction program of the Agricultural Adjustment administration. He said the objective was not the production of a surplus for sale but merely an opportunity for the families to become self-sustaining.

Surplus for Relief Uses.

Relief officials say the farmers so implanted by the government are encouraged to produce more than they can use, but that none of the surplus may be sold; it is turned into the local relief headquarters for distribution to the needy, and the farmers receive credit on their debt to the government for capital goods and subsistence advances.

The President indicated that federal housing in the future would receive a larger share of the federal public works expenditures. The PWA is already financing the subsistence homesteads and the low cost housing, or slum clearance projects, such as the 12½ million dollar development recently announced for Chicago. Options are now being taken for another 12½ million dollar Chicago project and PWA's total allotment for housing is 150 millions.

Moves Thousands to Farms.

The small community plan, in which the President expressed such great interest, is the third direction in which the government is proceeding with its housing. A project just completed near Houston, Tex., has 100 families each provided with a house, a 3 acre garden and a 12 acre plot on the communal farm.

In addition to these federally developed communities the FERA is moving thousands of individual farmers onto small farms leased or purchased at low cost in tax sales. The family is supplied with groceries, a work animal, a milk cow, and a few acres of ground, the cost ranging from $75 to $200.

ASSAILS REPORTED CHOICE OF HUTCHINS AS NRA 'ENFORCER'

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—E. Harold Cluett, Republican candidate for the United States senate, assailed the reported choice of President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago as the new head of NRA enforcement at a luncheon of the National Republican club today. Introduced by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, president of the club, Mr. Cluett said:

"I have nothing against the universities. I have a degree from one of them. But the way to reassure business would have been to put into this important labor relations post a man of business experience. What are we to get? A schoolmaster, one more professor."

Mr. Cluett said he stood for "regulated individualism," as opposed to "regimentation," and "rugged individualism," and referred to Senator Copeland, his Democratic opponent, as "a dear old journalistic doctor." Mr. Cluett insisted conditions were growing worse.

HAUPTMANN'S PLEA IN HIGHER COURTTOMORROW

New Jersey May Delay Murder Trial There.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The hearing on Bruno Hauptmann's extradition appeal was set for 2 p. m. Friday by Presiding Justice Edward R. Finch of the appellate division of the Supreme court today.

The time was set after a conference between Justice Finch and James M. Fawcett, Hauptmann's counsel, who announced he was prepared to carry Hauptmann's battle against extradition to the United States Supreme court, if necessary.

The appeal to be argued Friday is taken from Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer's dismissal last night of the habeas corpus writ through which the accused carpenter sought to escape trial in New Jersey for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Acts to Speed Appeal.

To speed the appeal, Justice Finch waived two court rules, one requiring the papers on appeal be printed and the other that five days' notice be given to the prosecutor's office.

Justice Hammer, after dismissing the petition for the writ last night, issued a temporary writ of supersedeas preventing the surrender of Hauptmann to New Jersey authorities before 4 p. m. Friday. Justice Finch did not issue a similar writ. He said, however, the lower court's writ would be extended through the life of the appeal.

Hauptmann, by Justice Hammer's direction, remains in the Bronx county jail pending the result of his appeal. If it is lost and no further stay is obtained, he then will be surrendered to Capt. John Lamb of the New Jersey state police, designated as the extradition officer.

Defense to Get Delay.

When Hauptmann goes to New Jersey he will be taken directly to the Hunterdon county jail at Flemington, Attorney General David T. Wilentz of that state announced. In all probability he will be given at least a month's delay to allow his counsel time to prepare his defense.

"The state of New Jersey wishes to allow Hauptmann every legal right he is entitled to," Wilentz explained.

Looking still farther ahead, if Hauptmann should be acquitted of the charge of murder in New Jersey, District Attorney Samuel F. Foley of the Bronx then will initiate extradition proceedings in New Jersey to bring the prisoner back to the Bronx for trial on the charge of extorting $50,000 ransom money from Col. Lindbergh.

Still Other Charges.

Should he be acquitted on that charge, too, he has himself admitted on the witness stand illegal possession of a revolver and a previous record for a crime of violence, for which he could be tried and, if convicted, sentenced to a long term of imprisonment.

Should he fail to be convicted on any of these counts, there still is some likelihood that he might be tried on a federal charge of possessing gold certificates, knowing that was illegal.

JUDGES TO FIGHT FEE DODGING BY PAUPER WRITS

Denouncing "racketeering lawyers" who invoke the pauper's writ to avoid payment of court fees, Superior and Circuit judges joined yesterday to stamp out the practice. They launched plans for a clearing house to work with the Municipal court, which recently inaugurated a similar campaign. The bureau will sift out fake pauper claims.

The plans were laid at a meeting attended by Chief Justice Joseph Burke and Clerk John Conroy of the Circuit court and Judge James J. Kelly and Clerk Frank Zintak of the Superior court. After the meeting the judges announced they would move at once toward collection of some $60,000 they say is due each court in unpaid fees over the last ten years.

"There are a lot of shifty fellows practicing law," Judge Kelly said. "They have worked out so many shady and crooked schemes for dodging court costs that we were driven to this campaign."

Recently he cited twenty-four lawyers on pauper's writ cases, and twenty-two of them paid back fees totaling $537, Judge Kelly said.

Voliva Awarded Abatement of $79,191 in Income Tax

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, yesterday was awarded an abatement of $79,191 in his income tax, it was announced by Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue in Washington. Of the total, $47,907 is for overassessment in 1927 and $31,284 for overassessment in 1928. Capt. Hubert E. Howard, 643 Walden road, Winnetka, former federal prohibition director for Illinois, yesterday petitioned the federal board of tax appeals in Washington for a redetermination of his 1931 income tax assessment of $17,452.

SEEKS DIVORCE

MONA LESLLIE.

"First she brings a lion to bed. Then she insists on sleeping with a raccoon. For Christmas, I think I'll get her a porcupine."

So lamented Fred C. Schwartz last July after he had leaped into a World's Fair lagoon to show his annoyance. His wife, the object of his tirade, is Mona Lesllie, or "Venus" to the Fair public. Attired in silver paint she performs a diving act nightly at "Neptune's Follies."

But yesterday it was Venus' turn. On the first anniversary of their wedding, Mrs. Schwartz filed suit for divorce in the Superior court. Cruelty and jealousy were the grounds. If it hadn't been for the husband, Mrs. Schwartz charged, her name would have been on Broadway's bright lights. He was even so jealous, she complained, that she found him cutting up her street clothes one day.

FAIR OFFICIALS CHEERED BY BIG OCTOBER CROWDS

Attendance Averages 100,287 Daily.

Officials and employés of the Fair seen about the Administration building are wearing smiles and walking with a springier tread these days. The explanation is the record of the first two weeks in October, when perfect Fair going weather and low railway fares produced an average daily attendance of 100,287.

"Railways report to us that their bookings for the last two weeks in October are heavier than they were for the first two weeks," said M. M. Tveter, controller for the Fair, yesterday. "With moderately good weather, we hope to better the attendance records for the first half of October during the remaining two weeks.

"The average expenditure for each Fair visitor during the first two weeks in October inside the gates, and exclusive of expenditures inside the villages, was $1.01 1-3, according to Mr. Tveter's estimate. The average expenditure of visitors from the beginning of the Fair to Aug. 31 last was $1.01½. Ordinarily when attendance figures go up the average expenditure is decreased," he said.

Pleasant weather continued yesterday, and at midnight 66,115 sightseers had entered the gates. More than 17,500 persons on the relief rolls were admitted free upon presentation of identification cards, which will be good for admissions again today. These persons were not counted as part of the official paid attendance.

Couple in Taylorville Married Fifty Years

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ebert, who reside near this city, are today celebrating their 51st wedding anniversary. Mrs. Eben is 72 and her husband 75.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The mound of vegetable and fruit oddities is growing at the Fourteenth street entrance, the depot for Harvest Home week at the Fair. Prizes for the largest specimens, freaks and others will be awarded at 4 p. m. Saturday. Entries include two oblong hen's eggs from South Holland, Ill.; a 100 pound pumpkin from Logan, O.; a 48 inch 9 pound Italian summer squash from River Forest, and sweet potatoes resembling a duckling, a gosling, and a snake from Mokena, Ill. Oddly shaped radishes and beets and enormous onions are included.

Clarence W. Ellerson, 45 years old, Whitney Point, N. Y., arrived yesterday with his wife for a week's stay at the Fair as the guest of the Lackawanna railroad. Mr. Ellerson was given the trip as a reward for averting a serious accident during a heavy storm in New York last month.

Although Victor Zacchini, the human cannonball, now a feature of the World's Fair Congress of Thrills, has been acting as a living projectile for seven years, he has never been injured. The human cannonball act is performed at 4 and 8:30 p. m. daily just east of the General Exhibits building.

Samuel A. Hastings, a director of the International Business Machine company, and F. R. Cowles, manager of the company's exhibit in the General Exhibits building, were hosts to consuls yesterday. Other guests included Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair; Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant of the Ninth naval district; Maj. Chester L. Fordney, Marine corps representative of the Fair; Dr. C. T. Murchison, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and George N. Peek, special advisor to the President on foreign trade.

William Randolph Hearst, publisher, paid the Fair a visit last night as he stopped off in the city waiting for train connections on a trip from New York to the west coast.

CONVICT DRUNKEN TRUCK DRIVER IN WOMAN'S DEATH

CRIMINAL COURT.

Everett Chapell, larceny, sentenced to one to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

Lester Herling, 32 years old, 3221 North Central Park avenue, was found guilty of manslaughter yesterday by a jury in the court of Judge John C. Lewe. The conviction carries a sentence of one to 14 years in the penitentiary, but sentence was delayed when a motion for a new trial was made. The hearing on the motion will be held Oct. 24.

Testimony showed that Herling was intoxicated Sept. 21 when he drove an automobile onto a safety island at Kilbourn and Fullerton avenues and struck Mrs. Mamie Jones, 58 years old, 4520 Nevada avenue, who was waiting for a street car. Mrs. Jones died of her injuries.

The case was prosecuted by Assistant State's Attorneys William J. Lancaster and Alexander Napolie.

Danville Woman Falls Dead on Visit to Fair

Mrs. Mattie English, 77 years old, of Danville, died after a heart attack yesterday at the Missouri exhibit in the Hall of States. Accompanying her was Mrs. Clyde S. Fee of Danville. She was pronounced dead by Dr. William Blender, also of Danville, who was nearby. The body was sent to Danville.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

WHAT KIND OF A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION?

Those who favor the summoning of a constitutional convention in Illinois have had many months in which to tell precisely what they expect the new state constitution to provide which the present one does not provide. Nov. 6 is fast approaching and still the information is lacking.

Perhaps there is a reason for this strange reticence. Perhaps some of those who want a convention desire to make changes which they would rather not talk about. Certainly that goes for all those who desire to destroy the liberties of the citizens by increasing the powers of the state government. In a world which within recent years has seen the rise of Stalin, Hitler, and Mussolini, and in this country has seen Tugwell, Huey Long, Bilbo, and Upton Sinclair in the ascendant, the peril of tampering with the constitution at this time is manifest. If Illinois has the bad fortune to acquire a counterpart of any one of these worthies—and the woods these days are full of little Hueys and Uptons—the changing of a few clauses in the state constitution may be regretted when it is too late.

A somewhat different sort of guile explains the reticence of a miscellaneous collection of reformers who want their pet schemes incorporated in the state's fundamental law By a kind of gentlemen's agreement they are saying little now because they know that their pet schemes are of doubtful popularity. If the calling of a convention were to become associated in the voters' mind with specific schemes of tax reform, judicial reform, banking reform, etc., the voters would not be likely to approve the call.

As a matter of fact, these reforming ladies and gentlemen even if they get their convention are not likely to get what they want from it. The convention will be made up of two members from each of the state's fifty-one senatorial districts. These districts have not been reapportioned in accordance with population for thirty-three years. Meanwhile there have been profound changes in the distribution of population in this state. The delegates sent by 29 per cent of the population will have a majority in the convention and this majority will come, without exception, from backward areas. Such delegates will be concerned less to permit the state to grow in a healthy fashion than to prevent further decay where decay is inevitable and even wholesome.

To expect the product of such an assembly to be an improvement on the present constitution, whatever its defects may be, is to expect a good deal. Most of the delegates will come from half deserted slums in Chicago and half deserted farming areas downstate. Most of the delegates will speak for the kind of citizen who has raised Huey Long to his present eminence in Louisiana. Happily for Illinois such people do not constitute a majority of the population, but they would have a majority in the convention.

The last convention, which met in January, 1920, suffered somewhat from the same type of personnel. The consequence was that the constitution drafted by the delegates was snowed under in the popular vote on Dec. 12, 1922. The vote all over the state was 5 to 1 against. The vote in Cook county was 19 to 1 against. Why waste half a million dollars to achieve the same result in 1935 or 1936? Whatever defects may exist in the present constitution can be corrected at far less expense by the amending process.

SANTA CLAUS & CO.

The head Santa Claus seems to be discovered in Mr. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC. Washington has a well balanced team of Santa Clauses with plenty of reserves and nearly all of them getting into the game at one time or another. Each is a good Santa in his own right. There is a Christmas tree in every letter of the alphabet.

Mr. Jones becomes the boss Santa Claus when he says that Uncle Sam as a lender of money doesn't want any of the borrowers to hurry to pay it back. "Keep it and use it," says Mr. Jones. The RFC does not want anybody to hurry or bother. Come around five years from now and we'll see about it. The debtor has obligations of citizenship, which are to take as much money as he can get and spend it as freely as he can. His contractual relations as a debtor are secondary to this. The government's business is the distribution of cheer checks.

America first heard of this idea from abroad and pretended not to like it when the debtor nations said they had higher obligations than paying back what they had borrowed. The American government protested at the time, but Europe's spirit was up and it persisted in its doctrin of the higher obligation.

Some citizens might have the wish that Mr. Morgenthau of the treasury department would feel an urge of the holiday spirit and tell the income tax payers not to bother with the next instalment, but to buy something they needed or wanted with their funds. Mr. Morgenthau's internal revenue department seems to be out of step. It has no Santa Claus. The fellow who owes Mr. Morgenthau's collectors some money had better pay it on the due date or he will be unpleasantly confronted. The income tax payer is the real Santa Claus, but the work doesn't make him very jolly. He is the fellow who is wondering how long he can keep on filling the sacks.

The Washington Santa Clauses hope that no one will misapprehend their purposes. No political meaning is to be attached to any of the distributions. Washington hopes that no one will go to the polls in November with any thought in his mind of the Christmas tree. The boys in the states are making a good deal of the necessity of electing deserving Democrats in order to get Washington benefits, but they do so against the professions of the head men in Washington. Santa Claus prefers to be unknown. The voter must think of him as a well wisher who does not wish to be recognized. The subsidy is not to be regarded as a slush fund, but as a free will contribution of an unknown philanthropist who desires nothing more than to know he has helped his fellow man.

THE BACKGROUND OF CRIME.

While the full truth of the Stoll kidnaping has not yet transpired, enough is known to place it among the most sensational developments of the alliance of corrupt politics and deliberate criminality. At this stage of inquiry the crime seems to have had a more fortunate outcome than was feared, but the natural relief occasioned by this result ought not to tempt us to forget the dreadful possibilities inherent in the crime or moderate the indignation which demands a full disclosure of all relevant facts and the stern punishment of every one contributing to the outrage directly or indirectly.

Especially important is the recognition by the public that this crime and, indeed, all such planned crimes are made possible by the notorious inefficiency of our defenses against criminal enterprise for which corrupt politics is primarily responsible. The circumstances in which the criminal Robinson was at large have not yet been thoroughly investigated and published. But enough is known to reveal a familiar situation. Why was a man of Robinson's sinister record at large? Why was he turned loose repeatedly after he had demonstrated his dangerous possibilities?

And the case of Robinson is anything but unique or even rare. Hardly a week goes by that the press does not report crimes committed by individuals who have demonstrated, often repeatedly, their unfitness to be at large. It is one of the crying scandals of our country. Public opinion protests futilely in most cases and forgets in all. We pass laws and they are evaded or left without enforcement. We establish institutions and systems of correction and control, but they are notoriously inadequate. Sentimental humanitarianism collaborates unintentionally but none the less effectually with the politics which finds profit in the evasion of law.

The former can be restrained in great measure, but the alliance of corrupt politics and deliberate crime remains the chief obstruction to competent restraint of criminal activity. Whether or not it is directly responsible in any given crime, it has produced a general inefficiency and unreliability in administration which encourages criminal enterprise.

THE MORRO CASTLE DISASTER.

In a preliminary report upon the Morro Castle disaster the steamboat inspection bureau censures the acting captain and four principal officers of the ship. The conditions reported by witnesses strongly support the findings of the board, but penalties imposed upon these officers for dereliction of duty and incompetence in dealing with a terrific situation will not satisfy justice or the interests of the public in safety at sea. As the report is announced as preliminary it may be hoped that it will be followed by a more comprehensive assignment of responsibilities and if possible a more satisfactory application of penalties.

The absence of discipline and competent management on the Morro Castle cannot be properly disposed of merely by the censuring of the officers. They were directly responsible, but who was responsible for them? The underlying fact is not incompetent management by the officers in charge of the ship, but incompetent selection of officers, and perhaps also the imposition upon them of restraints of conduct inconsistent with the safety of passengers. If it is clear, as it is, that individuals placed in charge of the ship were inadequate to their responsibilities, it is equally clear that their selection was faulty and that there was culpable ignorance or indifference as to the operating conditions on the ship.

This is a phase of the inquiry which no influence should be permitted to obscure. It touches the general credit of American shipping, at least of its passenger service, which ought to maintain the highest standards of discipline and reliability on all carriers. It is in their interest as well as in that of the traveling public that the Morro Castle disaster should be thoroughly investigated, responsibilities established, and measures taken for the correction of conditions disclosed. This requirement is not met by the punishment of subordinates however faulty in conduct.

Editorial of the Day

WHEN LEAR PLAYED ROMEO.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Edward West Browning died in New York Friday at the age of 63 years. He was better known as "Daddy" Browning because of his penchant for adopting or marrying young girls. His wealth widened his opportunities along these lines and increased the publicity on his mistakes.

Mr. Browning moved from one complication into another with a facility suggesting that he enjoyed the publicity. Rather than being humbled or abashed by these repeated failures to recapture a vanished youth he seemed intent upon revealing to an amused world his various emotional disturbances.

He was pathetic because he did not realize that he was ridiculous. It even is possible that his affliction fell properly under the term "nympholespsy," and that in the ardor of his admiration for youth he failed to place himself and his years in the proper perspective.

Oddly enough, "Daddy" Browning was never very heartily condemned, even by moralists. He was generous, sincere, and a remarkably good show. Perhaps in his conduct many persons recognized themselves without their inhibitions and profited from the revelation. And what several of his little friends did or tried to do to "Daddy" was a lesson to elderly sentimentalists.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MISS ANNE MORGAN told the ship reporters as she landed in New York the other day after a summer spent in Syria and the Isles of Greece that we Americans were too much concerned with our own "little era"; that we were all fussed with unemployment, low wages, high taxes, grocery bills, rent, and such matters, and that we should all remember that these things are very petty in the big scheme of history and what we need is the calm perspective of the orient. Well, if I could be in Syria or "the Isles of Greece, the Isles of Greece, where burning Sappho loved and sung," as Mr. Byron has so well said, I don't believe I would fuss much either about unemployment, low wages, high taxes, or the rent. As for my groceryman back here in Chicago, I would send him a note when he sent me his long overdue bill in which I would politely hint for him to try and get it. Yessir, I'm morally certain that after a summer spent in Syria and the Isles of Greece I would have such a calm, oriental perspective that I would make Great Salt lake look like a tidal wave in the Caribbean sea by comparison. Moral—It all depends on where you sit.

INVADERS.

Around the river bend
Hallooing, laughing they come,
Children, at Summer's end
Bearing ripe plunder home.
They startle the tranquil wood
With their frenzied ecstasy,
Clamber in joyous mood
To shake the clustered nuts free.

When the last gold thread is torn
From October's tapestry,
Dropped to the water and borne
Quietly down to the sea,
Only children dare to invade
With laughter the forest for Death arrayed.

"YES," the woman on the bus said to her companion, "my uncle died suddenly last July." "I am so sorry!" said her companion. "Did he die a natural death?" "Oh, yes, indeed," replied the first woman; "he was killed in an automobile accident." And, come to think it over, there's nothing more natural these days.

"M'GILL UNIVERSITY OPENS Bureau to Provide Girls with Dates."—Headline. Sakes alive! I've never noticed that a college girl had any trouble getting all the dates she wanted. I would have thought that universities had to hire platoons of stern faced matrons to chase all the dates away from the doors of the girls' dormitories so that the co-eds could do a little plain and common studying now and then.

IT'S GETTING AROUND TOWARDS Thanksgiving day and we don't hear anything about turkeys. Horrible thought—maybe the AAA has ordered the turkeys buried like it did the cotton and the wheat and the little piggies. Oh, all right; if the price for what turkeys are left goes up like other things have I couldn't buy the wishbone of a jaybird, anyhow. And, anyhow, said the old fox as he walked away, I would rather have a hot dog sandwich with plenty of mustard on it for my Thanksgiving day dinner than the drumstick of the biggest turkey that ever went ky-yak, ky-yak-ky-yak. Lykell, lykell, lykell!

THESE are the "flaying" days. The statesmen are flaying each other as fast as they can talk. That word "flays" is getting so monotonous. Wonder why some statesman can't burn up another statesman or run him into the river or skin him alive or give him the bum's rush or yank off his scalp or do something besides flaying him? There ought to be a law against it. Write to your congressman today.

OH, REGINALD! how perfectly lovely you look in your new topcoat! Yes, indeed, for the new overcoats (oh, dear, I meant to say topcoats; one must say topcoats) are quite long, much longer than the dresses the girls wear, and flare out in bell shape. How cunning, men, we will look in our new long, flaring topcoats! If only we could have a little lace around the edge, but that will come, no doubt, in time.

THE GOOD EARNEST SOULS who are striving to reduce the number of automobile fatalities are sprinkling the streets with admonitions to the speed demons and the hit-and-run boys to drive more slowly and to be more careful and to stop that silly weave-in-and-weave-out stuff. I hope the campaign does some good. BUT—did you ever try to catch a bird by putting salt on its tail? And wasn't it old Canute who went down by the sea and commanded the waves not to roll in!

CHICAGO . . .

The River.

By day she is a hag
In a soiled old green silk dress,
And boats and barges and tugs
Make crooked smiles
Across her face.

But at night,
In black seductive satin,
The bridges love her best.

Then she rests
In secret,
Under the caressment
Of their arms,
And their lights are Long stemmed red, red
On her breast!

I SAW a completely modern girl in church last Sunday. I regarded her as completely modern because she had the place for the responses and prayers marked by cigarets.

WHY THE TISSUES SWELL.

By swelling we understand that an abnormal amount of fluid has accumulated in the skin or in the tissues beneath. This is called edema or dropsy.

Sometimes edema is caused by inflammation. We are all familiar with the swelling that occurs in the vicinity of a boil. In such a condition bacterial inflammation has brought about a dilation of the capillaries with a pouring out of fluid from the blood. We are also familiar with the swelling that occurs if a rubber band or string is wound snugly around a finger. As a result of this procedure the return flow of venous blood is stopped. Disease or inflammation of the veins, such as phlebitis, may cause an obstruction to the return flow of blood and hence swelling. Again, if from injury or any other cause there has been a destruction of lymph channels, fluids will accumulate in the tissues.

One of the fairly common causes of swelling of the feet, ankles, and lower legs is the failure of the heart muscle to function normally. Whenever the heart does not pump blood through the circulating vessels with adequate power there is a slowing of the return flow. Failure of the heart may be caused by weakness of the muscle, or by improper functioning of the valves. This form of swelling is called circulatory edema. The patient usually complains of inability to take a full breath, and may notice that he tires easily.

In the earliest stages of circulatory edema swelling of the feet, noted in the evening, disappears after a night's rest in bed. After weeks or months or even a longer period the patient may notice that in the morning swelling of the ankles and feet has not entirely disappeared. Unless proper attention is given to this symptom, and the heart and circulatory system built up to take care of the load, the condition may increase to a point of real disability.

During the world war there were numerous cases of a peculiar type of edema that was found to be merely a food deficiency. It has since been learned that if an individual is deprived of protein, swelling of the tissues may follow. In practically all cases of this kind, if the patient is fed proper amounts of proteins and fats the edema disappears. This accounts, too, for a type of edema of kidney origin in which the loss of protein [albumin] via the kidneys is accompanied by swelling of the feet and legs. In many such cases of kidney disease a fairly generous feeding of protein relieves the symptom in spite of the continuous excretion of albumin.

Some mineral salts, such a common salt [sodium chloride], are prominent factors in edema. The chlorine part of salt appears to be harmless, but the sodium element holds water in the tissues. For this reason patients who have a tendency to edema are restricted in the use of sodium compounds. For such individuals food is prepared without the use of common salt, and potassium chloride serves as an entirely satisfactory seasoning. In any form of kidney disease, in which the power of the organ to excrete water has been impaired, edema may result.

Temporary swelling of tissues usually has little significance. However, should swelling persist, and occur in the same part of the body day after day, the symptom should be investigated. Correction of diet or omitting salt may be all that is required.

JAUNDICE.

A. J. H. writes: A 12 day old baby had yellow jaundice. The doctor said it was common and not serious, but if the skin remained yellow to call him in ten days. That evening the baby cried very hard, but soon stopped, and, after nursing, slept until 3 a. m., when she started to cry again. She died before a doctor could arrive. The discharge from the bowels after each crying spell was dark green. Up to this time she was well, strong, and active.

1. To what do you attribute the sudden death?
2. Would jaundice affect the heart?
3. Would this disease in such a young baby be due to faulty diet of the mother before and after the child's birth?
4. Will you say something about the cause, effect, and cure of this disease?
5. If the mother should have another baby would it be so affected? She is young and in good health.

REPLY.

1. A very high increase of bile pigment in the blood.
2. It would affect the heart muscle.
3. Probably not.
4. This may be due to fatty degeneration of the liver. This condition usually comes on about two or three days after birth. It is quite noticeable in the skin coloring. The real cause is not known. Some cases are curable, but others fail to recover in spite of everything that is done.
5. Much would depend on the mother's health during the period of pregnancy. The chances are that she would give birth to a normal child.

From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEIPZIG.—Prof. Walter von Wartburg of Leipzig university, who is considered one of the world's greatest authorities on Romance languages and on the making of dictionaries, will go to University of Chicago next winter for two months to lecture on lexicography and on the history of the French language.

His visit coincides with the making of the new American dictionary by the University of Chicago under the supervision of Sir William Craigie of Oxford.

"The method I employ does not only give the definition of a word but also every phase of its derivation," he said. "Not only does it tell where the root of a word comes from but also through what phases the work of dialects has taken it. Thus, for instance, a dictionary that I would make would explain why the word "no," the word "know," and the word "now" are pronounced as they are and why they are spelled thus.

"I shall first lecture at Chicago and later also at other American universities before returning to Germany."

THE MOTE AND THE BEAM.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—To see the beam in a neighbor's eye and overlook the mote in our own is a common human weakness. It is the usual method of the reformer. The members of the vast army of government employés, who plan to solve the country's problems, fall into this natural human error.

Why not ask those in the employ of the government to clean their own house first before tackling that of the business man?

One job would be the perfection of civil service. Another would be improvement of lawmaking technique, prevention of log rolling, etc. Another would be making government economical and balancing the budget. When the job of house cleaning is done, then it would be time to help us in the business world.

THE LOYOLA EXPRESS.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—My pet peeve is against those individuals who crowd themselves on the Loyola express between 5 and 6 o'clock each afternoon, get off at Loyola and wait on the platform for a southbound train to take them back two or three stations. The Loyola express trains are for the accommodation of those who live in the vicinity of that station and farther north, and are crowded enough with those people without the added burden of individuals living south of Loyola station.

One evening recently, after getting off an express, I made it a point to watch for a southbound train. I don't think I am the meanest person in the world at all when I say that I was very glad that the large crowd of people who had gotten off the Loyola express had to wait fully 12 minutes for the southbound train.

FOWLER ON "LOAN."

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The following statement concerning the word "loan" is by H. W. Fowler, co-editor of the Oxford English dictionary: "The verb has been expelled from idiomatic southern English by "lend," but was formerly current, and survives in the United States." Mr. Fowler's statement should carry more weight than that of any college professor.

CHARLES A. SHAW.

CROATIAN ACTIVITIES IN AMERICA.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 10.—Since the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia the newspapers have given many accounts which are not correct about the Croatian leaders outside of Croatia.

Since the killing of Stephan Radich and his cousin, Dr. Paul Radich, and Dr. J. Basarichek, the deputies of the Croatian Peasant party in the Belgrade parliament, Dr. Vladimir Machek has succeeded Stephan Radich as the president of the party which is fighting for the republican form of government in Croatia. It is a similar movement to that of Ireland. Dr. George Krnjevich, the secretary general of the Croatian Peasant party, and Engineer August Kosutich have been sent out by the party to represent the Croatian cause in the outside world.

The Croatian people have been so thoroughly organized that all attempts of King Alexander failed to break the resistance of the Croatians to the ambition of the king and of his militaristic supporters to melt out nationality and declare them all as a "great Serbia."

The Croatian Peasant party has organized branches throughout the world, wherever there are any Croatians, to support the Croatian cause from the outside. We have in the United States an organization known as the Croatian Republican Peasant League of America with branches in all Croatian American colonies in this country.

MARGARET JANKOVICH,
Secretary of the Croatian Woman's Club, Branch of the Croatian Peasant League of America.

COMPARISON.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 10.—The Federal Emergency Relief administration in the thirty days of September disbursed $100,000, of which $14,000 was for administration.

The city of Savannah, with 80,000 population, for the nine months ending Sept. 30, expended only $720,886 for its total operating expenses, which includes all salaries of its efficient police, fire department, general government and all other city expenses.

This comparison should be given wide publicity in the press of the United States.

CHARLES BERNARD.

THE SLAUGHTER AT STEAMBOAT SPRINGS.

Steamboat Springs, Colo., Oct. 10.—My attention has been called to a letter in a recent issue of your paper concerning the slaughter of 1,000 head of sheep at this place and telling how glad poor people would have been to have had this meat. It was implied that it was a great waste, etc.

I have looked into the matter thoroughly and wish to state the facts in justice to the community and officials.

Under the sheep buying program of the agricultural department, 23,386 ewes have been purchased in this county, the price being $2 a head. This was done under the supervision of the Routt county agent. A committee of two well known and responsible sheep men then inspected the herds and separated those tubercular, having scabies and other diseases making them unfit for human food, and these were slaughtered. The pelts were saved and will be tanned and used in relief work.

In these days of rumors and criticisms let's keep the record straight.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—1. If an American woman marries a man of foreign birth before he has obtained his final naturalization papers does she lose her citizenship? 2. If a man and woman of foreign birth are married before becoming naturalized, do both of them have to make application for citizenship papers or just the man?

L. C.

1. An American woman marrying an alien on or after Sept. 22, 1922, does not lose her citizenship.
2. It is assumed that the marriage date is after Sept. 22, 1922. In that case both of them, in order to become citizens, must apply for naturalization.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

PROPOSE TO LIMIT NAVIES TO HOME DEFENSE NEEDS

U.S. and Britain Awaiting Japanese Statement.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The three parties to the naval conversations about to begin in London were busy today studying their briefs. At Claridges' hotel Norman Davis, American ambassador at large, and Admiral William H. Standley, chief of United States naval operations, conferred with their aids and advisers, while at Grosvenor house Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto of Japan and Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, discussed Admiral Yamamoto's instructions.

In Downing street a meeting of the British cabinet, at which some naval experts were in attendance, was devoted chiefly to considering Great Britain's side of the case. Davis and Admiral Yamamoto left cards on the British officials and on each other, but no actual contact was expected before next week.

British to Meet Japs First.

The first meeting will be between the Japanese and the British. The British will, of course, communicate the Japanese proposals to the Americans immediately and a meeting may then be arranged to talk over the situation.

THE TRIBUNE learns that, like the Americans, the British are not averse to making it a round table conference of three powers instead of bilateral conversations, but the Japanese attitude still is unknown. Both the British and the Americans wish to discuss basic questions, which would take the talk out of the range of mere technical discussions and the framing of an agenda for next year's conference and predicates a discussion of important political questions.

THE TRIBUNE learns that the United States policy is unaltered since the discussion was suspended last July.

The United States still stands for progressive reduction and limitation of naval armaments within the limits of national safety and is willing to consider any proposals looking to that end.

Suggest "Relative Security."

It is pointed out in well informed circles that the Japanese insistence on abolition of the 5-5-3 ratio is not necessarily an insurmountable obstacle if, as has been suggested, it is merely a gesture of national pride on the part of the Japanese.

"Relative security" has been suggested as an alternative formula to the ratio. By this is meant that each nation, while jealously preserving its sovereign right to build as big and as many ships as it can build and pay for, might agree voluntarily to limit that sovereign right to a standard which would assure it against attack in its own waters. THE TRIBUNE has reason to believe that this formula will be put forward at the talks next week and may prove the solution.

Jap Explains Stand.

Admiral Yamamoto tonight said the Japanese attitude is that all countries concerned should enjoy equal rights as far as national security is concerned. Each should possess a minimum of armaments sufficient for national defense, but not large enough to menace any other country.

The Japanese government, he said, objected to the ratio system chiefly because it tied down the parties concerned to armaments that discriminated between the nations. This is interpreted as meaning that Japan will press for the adoption of the global tonnage principle.

Japs Want Big Increase.

Admiral Yamamoto declined to reveal the total tonnage of war vessels for which he will ask, but he left no doubt that it will represent a substantial increase in cruisers, destroyers, and submarines.

Japan is reluctant to tear up the Washington treaty in so far as this secures Tokio against further fortification of British and American bases in the Pacific, he said, and hopes to obtain the legal right to increase the strength of its "defensive" vessels.

He failed to explain, however, why Japan today requires greater forces for its own defense than in 1921. It seems possible that the Japanese will argue that extra forces are needed to defend Manchukuo, but it is believed this will receive little sympathy from American and British circles.

Asked if the plan proposed limitation of naval air forces, the admiral replied that aircraft carriers certainly would be discussed. He said such craft are "one of the most offensive armaments." Submarines, however, are "not in the same category," according to Yamamoto. He insisted that Japan needs them in large numbers.

Gen. Smuts Raps Dictatorships, Suppression of Human Rights

BY JOHN STEELE.

GEN. JAN C. SMUTS.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A bitter attack on dictatorships and suppression of human rights was made today by Gen Jan C. Smuts, former premier of the Union of South Africa and one of the greatest empire statesmen, during his rectorial address at St. Andrews university, Scotland. He scoffed at prophesies of another great world war.

Citing the grave dangers facing our civilization—the decay of principles and the decay of individual's responsibility and share in government, Gen. Smuts said that the feebleness of continental democracy and its ineffectiveness in a crisis has contributed to the defeatist attitude of the individual, with the result that the individualist as a prop to freedom is gone and freedom itself seems to be in danger.

Raises Issue of Freedom.

"The cult of force which in the great war we called Prussianism has for the moment triumphed," he said. "The issue of freedom must once more be squarely raised and cannot be evaded. The new tyranny, disguised in attractive, patriotic colors, is enticing youth everywhere into its service. Freedom must make a great counter stroke to save itself and our western civilization."

Turning his attack on dictators, he asserted:

"A new form of hero worship is arising which saps at the very foundation of individuality by making the individual prostrate himself before the national leader as before a god.

"I fear the new tyranny more than I fear the danger of another great war."

Gen. Smuts declared that the denial of free human rights must, in the long run, lead to cataclysm and dictatorship could only be tolerated as a temporary expedient and could never be a permanent substitute for free self government.

War Too Terrible.

He deplored the action of the scare mongers who, he declared, are doing their best to create a war atmosphere, thereby doing considerable mischief.

"In spite of them and the present lamentable failure of disarmament, in spite of the vogue of silly drilling and strutting about in uniforms and shirts of various colors, I do not find the real war temper anywhere," he said.

"Science," he said, "is making war more improbable since statesmen, more and more, will pause before they loose these new horrors on their peoples."

Gen. Smuts came to St. Andrews university for his induction into office as rector of the 500-year-old school. He was named to the post three years ago, but could not be present until today. His term soon expires.

Turkey to Pay $1,300,000 War Claims to Americans

Turner Machine Hit; Hop for Australia Saturday.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A bombshell was flung into the American camp at Mildenhall airdrome, Suffolk, tonight, where competitors are assembling for the London to Melbourne air race, when it was announced that three United States planes had failed to comply with the regulations.

With only two days before the start of the 12,000 mile event, the American machines, when weighed carrying the stipulated load of fuel, were found to be considerably heavier than the maximum given on the United States government's air worthiness certificates.

Turner Machine Overweight.

The machines are a Boeing transport, piloted by Col. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn; a Bellanca monoplane, piloted by Col. James C. Fitzmaurice and E. W. Bonar of the Irish Free State, and a Lockheed Vega, piloted by M. Woods.

In addition, one British machine, an Airspeed Envoy, piloted by Neville Stack and S. L. Turner, and an Australian machine, C. J. Melrose's De Havilland Puss Moth, also are overweight.

The explanation of the American ships' trouble is apparently in the fact that gasoline supplied in England is slightly heavier than that in the United States with which the machines were weighed before their departure.

Fight to Make Weight.

Desperate efforts are being made by the pilots and mechanics to cut down accessories, even sacrificing gas and thus reducing their range, in order to participate in the contest.

Col. Fitzmaurice, dapper Irish pilot of one of the machines which was ruled overweight, had announced earlier in the day that he believed he could make the trip to Australia in 60 hours. The present record for the distance is 6 days 17 hours 56 minutes, set last year by C. P. Ulm and three companions.

Nineteen teams have registered for the race thus far. These include, besides Col Turner and Pangborn, John Polando and Jack Rice, and Wesley Smith and Miss Jacqueline Cochran.

FRANCE MAY REQUEST DELAY OF SAAR VOTE TO AID FRAUD QUIZ

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 17.—A possibility that France may ask for postponement of the Saar plebiscite from Jan. 13 until later in the spring is being discussed.

The request would be based on the plebiscite commission's announcement that 520,000 persons has been registered as entitled to vote. This figure is out of all proportion to the population of the district, which was only 660,000 in 1920. But according to the Versailles treaty the right to vote is limited to persons of both sexes over 20 years of age when the vote is taken who were inhabitants of the district when the treaty was signed [1920]. The general calculation on this basis was that the voters would be between 250,000 and 300,000.

The conclusion seems to be there are at least 100,000 fraudulent inscriptions.

POPE INVITES ALL FAITHFUL IN U. S. TO MISSION RITES

Illinois Bishop Takes Part in Radio Ceremonies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 17.—Speaking in behalf of Pope Pius XI., Cardinal Fumasoni-Biondi, prefect of the sacred college of propaganda, broadcast an invitation tonight to all Roman Catholics in the United States to take part in the celebration of Mission day next Sunday.

Bishop James A. Griffin of Springfield, Ill., introduced the cardinal, formerly apostolic delegate to Washington, to radio listeners.

"In every great crisis in history God has raised up a leader, a deliverer, a savior to restore peace, establish order and save the nation," he said. "Our supreme pontiff, Pope Pius XI., is such a savior.

"By his encyclical letters, by radio, in his conferences and interviews with princes, Ambassadors, industrialists, bankers and men and women in every walk of life he has pleaded with all, through all, to return to the safe and sound program of Christianity which has brought so much peace, happiness and prosperity to the world at large and to our own beloved America in particular."

RIOT IN VIRGIN ISLANDS AS POLITICAL FOE OF GOVERNOR IS SEIZED

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Sticks, stones, chairs, and fists were used freely last night after a massmeeting of opponents of the administration of Gov. Paul M. Pearson.

Morris Davis, a political foe of Pearson, sought to lead the crowd to the dock to bid good-by to Paul Yates, who recently withdrew as the governor's executive assistant. Capt. Curren, a former United States army officer and director of police, refused to allow the crowd to parade through the streets, saying he feared disorders would result.

The crowd became excited and Curren placed Davis under arrest on charges of disobeying police orders and inciting the crowd. Supporters of Davis then crowded around him and fought with police. Davis escaped. The crowd, thinking Davis had been taken to jail, proceeded there and was dispersed only after Yates assured them Davis was not there.

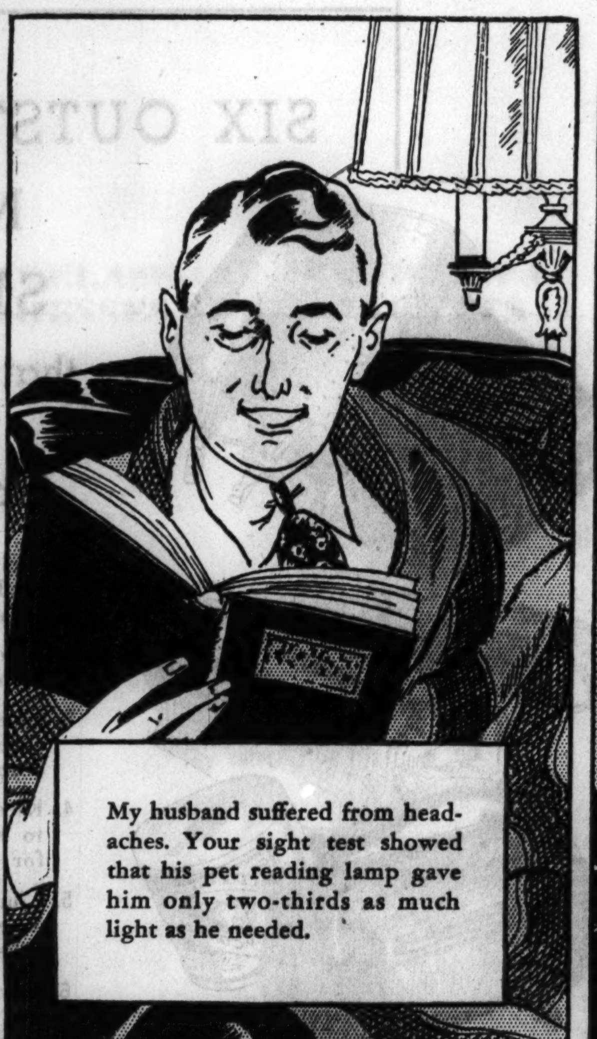
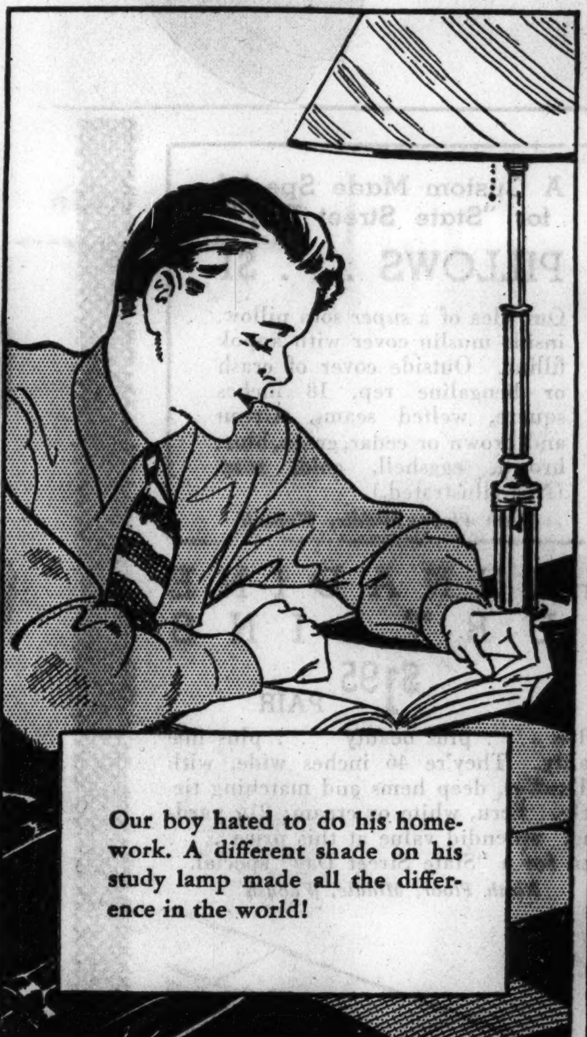
Three wrongs righted
three members of the family made happy
Simply by changing the lighting in our home



My husband suffered from headaches. Your sight test showed that his pet reading lamp gave him only two-thirds as much light as he needed.



Our boy hated to do his homework. A different shade on his study lamp made all the difference in the world!

Our girl had a bad habit of squinting. Within two weeks after we changed her reading lamp, the squint disappeared.

Avoid eye strain with proper light. Send today for our free lighting test of your home

IN many homes today, according to actual survey, incorrect lighting threatens eyes. To safeguard eyes and insure easy seeing from twenty to thirty foot-candles* of light should fall on the printed page. The light should be properly diffused, without glare. There should be no deep shadows, no sharp contrasts between light and darkness to cause eyes to change focus frequently. Under such lighting, eye tension is relieved. Your body relaxes. Your nerves relax, too.

Why many homes lack good lighting

Every woman desires to give her family safe lighting. She especially desires to protect the eyesight of her children. But without the means to measure the light her lamps give she mostly has to guess whether the light is good or poor. And so, night after night, eyes struggle on with danger of permanent injury.

Let us help you find the remedy. We will send you a lighting expert who, with an electric "Sight Meter," will show you how much light you get from your lamps and suggest how much you should have for comfortable seeing. Discuss your lighting problems with her.

New equipment not necessary

You may learn that a simple rearrangement of lamps, or the lowering or raising of a shade, or a change in the size of the bulbs will make a remarkable difference. For often poor lighting in the home is due to little things that can be easily and inexpensively remedied.

Write or phone your nearest Electric Shop today. Or, better, visit one of these shops and see the interesting demonstration of "right" and "wrong" lighting. You'll find in these Shops, also, new lamps especially designed to give light that is safe for comfortable seeing.

CHICAGO LEADS ENTIRE NATION IN DELINQUENT TAX

Citizens' Group Urged to Avert Levy Raise.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Chicago, which leads the country in reduction of public expenditures during the depression, also leads in the amount of its tax delinquencies, John O. Rees, director of the Committee on Public Expenditures, pointed out yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Union League club public affairs committee.

"Unless further steps are taken to restore tax collections to normal," said Mr. Rees, "local governments will have less and less money to spend and tax rates will keep rising nevertheless."

The 1933 tax bills, which go into collection in December, will be the smallest in Cook county since the world war years, he said. At the same time, he warned, there is grave danger that the 1934 levies may be increased 30 per cent over the 1933 bills.

Lists Ways to Halt Rise.

He outlined three steps by which this tax increase can be averted if civic groups, public officials, and bankers will coöperate.

The 1930 tax levies set the record for Cook county. They totaled $290,000,000. The 1933 bills as extended will total $185,000,000, a reduction of $105,000,000 in a four year period. The 1932 bills, as they were originally extended and before they were subjected to reductions by rate case decisions in the county court, the extent of which is yet to be determined, totaled $217,000,000.

The reductions in the 1933 levies below the previous year's level were accomplished in two stages, Mr. Rees told his audience. The first reductions were made when the annual budgets for the year were being drafted in December, 1932, at which appropriations for operations of the various local governments were pared.

Bond Issue Levies Voided.

This was followed within the last thirty days by action of the various governments to eliminate levies which they had voted for interest and principal payments on bond issues which were refunded after the original budgets had been passed. These cuts alone totaled about $24,000,000. A third reduction of $2,500,000 came in the elimination of the city's working cash fund levy. County Judge Jarecki, in a rate case, held that a similar levy for 1932 was illegal.

Discussing Judge Jarecki's 1931 and 1932 rate reductions, which, as they now stand, will benefit only those taxpayers who failed to pay their bills. Those who paid their bills on the mark were thus penalized and have shown symptoms of revolt.

Mr. Rees asserted that unless the courts adjust their rulings to present conditions, instead of being governed by precedents set under different conditions ten years ago, tax revenue will be dried up and the credit of local governments destroyed despite their efforts to preserve it through strict economy.

Cut Tax Collection Cost.

The major reductions granted by Judge Jarecki in the rate cases were cuts of allowances for loss and cost in tax collections from 10 to 11 per cent to about 4½ per cent. Mr. Rees analyzed the figures behind one of these cuts, that of 10 cents in the board of education educational fund rate for 1932. If applied to all tax bills, the rate cut would mean a reduction in revenue of almost $2,500,000.

The school board originally appropriated and spent $48,000,000 in the educational fund for 1932. Because assessments were reduced after its budget was passed, tax extensions for the fund were only $38,700,000. There was $5,000,000 in miscellanous revenue also available. Thus, if all of the tax bills had been collected in full, the board still would have had a deficit of $4,300,000.

Plan High Court Appeal.

Judge Jarecki's $2,500,000 reduction of a loss and cost reserve where no such reserve existed, merely increased the deficit by that amount. The rate reduction orders applying to loss and cost reserves of the various governments are to be appealed to the Supreme court.

The program which Mr. Rees presented for avoiding a 1934 tax increase consists of three parts, and if accomplished in full, would trim $55,000,000 from the tax bills. Even so, he pointed out, levies to retire bonds issued in connection with federal "easy money" projects would prevent any reduction below the 1933 level.

The three point program requires first the approval in the Nov. 6 election of the $30,000,000 relief bond issue. Otherwise the relief expenditures will be added to 1934 tax bills.

Seek Sales Tax Extension.

The second step necessary is extension of the Illinois sales tax to prevent levy of a 1934 property tax by the state. The third step of the program is the wholesale refunding of outstanding bond issues of local governments.

These bonds now total more than $400,000,000, and about half of them mature within the next five or six years. By flattening out this peak debt load through a general 20 year refunding program, between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 would be eliminated from bond and interest levies during the next few years, to be made up in subsequent levies.

Illinois Merchants Open Convention Here Today

The seventeenth annual convention of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce will open here today with more than 400 delegates, representing more than a third of all the merchants in the state, attending. The first meeting will be at luncheon in the Hotel Stevens, where speakers will discuss the position of the merchant in relation to the 2 per cent occupational sales tax. Last evening the outgoing officers and directors held their annual dinner at the Union League club.

2 NEW SCHOOLS TO BE BUILT AT $600,000 COST

Oakenwald, Leyden to House 1,874.

John C. Christensen, architect for the board of education, yesterday issued a call for bids for the construction of Oakenwald elementary school, 41st street and Lake Park avenue, and announced that he would receive bids on a new Leyden school, Roscoe street and Cornelia avenue, in mid-November.

The new elementary schools are to house 1,874 and will be built at a cost of $300,000 each. Funds for the construction will be provided from money saved in the present school building appropriations, and no new appropriations will be necessary, Mr. Christensen said.

Construction of the two buildings will get under way late next month, and nine months will be required for their completion. Approximately 100 men will be given work on the project for the nine month period, it was estimated.

The Oakenwald school will house 768 pupils and will eliminate 20 portable buildings which now compose the school plant. The Leyden school will be constructed for 1,106 pupils and will eliminate 26 portables.

"Originally it was estimated the two buildings would cost $450,000 each," Mr. Christensen said. "We have brought this cost to $300,000, but the buildings are in keeping with specifications for the other Chicago school structures."

WARNS AGAINST U. S. RESTRICTION ON ADVERTISING

Howard Davis, business manager of the New York Herald Tribune and chairman of the code authority of the daily newspaper publishing business, in an address yesterday before the Inland Press association at the Stevens hotel warned against federal restriction on newspaper advertising. He declared that advertising was a powerful means to increase consumption and employment, and that if advertising were destroyed a free press would be destroyed.

There must be no further restrictions placed on honest advertising, and those restrictions already imposed ought to be removed at once, he said.

"A tax on advertising was one of the favorite old world methods of destroying a free press," Mr. Davis stated. "The press of England did not become a free press until the advertising taxes on newspapers were removed about half a century ago.

"The United States is now threatened with such a tax in various states. If taxes are to follow restrictions on advertising, the free press of this country will be a thing of the past."

'Rebuild Dry Wall,' Is Plea at W. C. T. U. Convention

Calling on the W. C. T. U. to "rebuild the dry wall torn down by repeal," Mrs. W. L. Ferguson of Chicago, state president of the organization, launched an attack on the post-repeal situation in an address yesterday before delegates to the Illinois convention at Springfield. "There is more drunkenness, more crime and more bootlegging than during prohibition," Mrs. Ferguson declared.

For Bad Cough, Mix This Better Remedy, at Home

Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

EPISCOPALIAN BISHOPS FAVOR BIRTH CONTROL

Committee O. K.'s Report at Convention.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A favorable report on a resolution advocating the free dissemination of birth control information was made to the house of bishops at the 51st triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church today.

The resolution, offered by the Rt. Rev. S. Arthur Huston, bishop of Olympia, Wash., says:

"We indorse the efforts now being made to secure for licensed physicians, hospitals, and medical clinics freedom to convey such information as is in accord with the highest principles of eugenics and a more wholesome family life wherein parenthood may be undertaken with due respect for the health of mothers and the welfare of their children."

Jersey Bishop Defeated.

The Rt. Rev. Paul Matthews of Trenton, bishop of New Jersey, opposed the resolution and moved to set it aside. This was defeated and the resolution placed on the calendar for a later vote.

"Is it for this house to indorse so dubious a procedure?" Bishop Matthews asked. "If widespread dissemination of birth control information is going on let it go on."

Bishop Brewster said the social service committee has been unanimous in reporting the measure. The committee includes the Rt. Rev. Phillip Cook of Wilmington, bishop of Delaware; the Rt. Rev. William Scarlett of St. Louis, bishop of Missouri; the Rt. Rev. Charles K. Gilbert of New York, suffragan bishop of New York; the Rt. Rev. Clinton S. Quinn of Houston, bishop of Texas; the Rt. Rev. Frank William Sterrett, bishop of Bethlehem, Pa., and the Rt. Rev. Frederick Bingham Howden of Albuquerque, bishop of New Mexico.

Admits Control Is O. K.

"All these people with dubious propositions come along and want us to pat them on the back," Bishop Matthews said after the meeting. "Why should we do it? That doesn't mean, of course, that there is not a proper kind of birth control."

Bishop Brewster defended the measure with the statement that many doctors specializing in obstetrics favor broader legislation on the point.

"In my opinion illegal operations are resorted to by unscrupulous doctors which would not have been performed had better laws been in effect."

Both the house of bishops and the house of deputies, the bishops unanimously, the deputies by viva voce, voted to accept the financial schedule offered by the committee on budget and program, after a minimum of debate. The budget totals $2,315,000.

Must Incur No Debts.

The national council which administers the church's affairs in the interim between conventions was specifically instructed by the convention not "under any circumstances to incur debt should revenues fail to meet expectations."

Reductions as high as forty per cent and elimination of some items previously carried in the budget were provided in the schedule. Salaries, however, remained the same in concurrence with an earlier memorandum of the convention which declared that to cut them further would be "un social."

Four domestic departments which administer field work and publicity were cut 27 per cent, while the appropriations for all missions, domestic and foreign, were reduced ten per cent.

CHANCELLOR JR. SUSPENDED FROM PRACTICING LAW

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday suspended Justus Chancellor Jr., 549 Oak street, Winnetka, from the practice of law for two years on charges of unprofessional conduct. Accompanying the majority opinion of the court was a minority opinion by Justices Elwyn R. Shaw and Paul Farthing stating that the suspension should have been for a longer period, since they believed "the discipline imposed is not sufficient."

Chancellor was charged by the grievance committee of the Chicago Bar association with appropriating a portion of a $2,486 settlement he had accepted in a lawsuit he conducted for the American Terra Cotta company. Chancellor restored the sum to the company, according to the court records.

BOARDS' MERGER THREATENS SPLIT IN CHURCH GROUP

Disciples of Christ May Be Divided.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Another Protestant denomination probably will be added to the list of more than 200 by the time the international convention of the Disciples of Christ closes its annual sessions here on Sunday.

This at least is the present belief of both liberal and conservative leaders as they privately expressed themselves following the presentation of a report this morning. That report asks the disciples to yield some of that church's rugged individualism and congregational autonomy. The report, ordered by the Pittsburgh convention in 1933, advocates the unification of ten virtually autonomous missionary educational and philanthropic boards.

Regimentation Is Issue.

While theology undoubtedly lies beneath the impending rupture, with fundamentalism and modernism still seemingly irreconcilable, yet it is freely admitted that the debate over the unification report, together with its consequence, will spring directly from the issue which now affects all American institutions, political, economic, and social, as well as religious—regimentation.

The Disciples of Christ point with pride to three elements in their denominational life, all arising from rugged individualistic ideals. First is the amorphous character of their organization. Greater centralization, they say, would threaten freedom of individual conscience. Second, that delegates to their annual conventions are not elective but voluntary.

About 10,000 persons will register at this meeting, according to the secretary's report. The Disciples of Christ—numbering about 2,000,000 members—make up a denomination that sprung from a strictly American religious movement.

Now, according to leaders, that denomination is at the cross roads. Board after board has been autonomously organized. Some are in union with the convention, others, not in union, are representative of varying theological emphases, particularly those of fundamentalist leanings. The report on unification of ten of those boards, thus, will bring about the crisis.

May Form New Sect.

Asked what would happen if the report should be accepted by the convention, an Indianapolis delegate who asked not to be named, said dissenting members probably would petition the bureau of national census to recognize them as a new denomination. That would be as simple as that under Disciples of Christ policy, he said.

Those supporting the new unification measure, this informant added, would tend toward greater and greater centralization of authority in the continuing international convention, with the ultimate overthrow of individualistic religious idealism under which the church had its phenomenal growth throughout the central west and south. The dissenting group, already thoroughly organized, would carry on under the old individualistic religious ideal.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm By Bob Becker

It's Roosting Time.

October 17, 1934.

THE hour of sundown always develops a number of interesting things to watch around the poultry yard on the auxiliary farm. I was in the barnyard last night just as the chores were being finished and the sun was dropping below the oak woods where the sheep have been pastured this summer. To watch the manner in which the different varieties of fowls chose their roosting places for the night and the squabbles they had about preferred positions was good for several laughs.

When I arrived at the poultry yard Rawlings was just coming in from the chicken houses with the evening's collection of eggs. After he and Carl had held a short conference about a pasture for the sheep, we began to prowl around in the growing twilight to see what the turkeys and the guinea hens were doing.

There is something about the way fowls get ready for the night that dramatizes the end of another day. Just as the sunlight fades after a bright Indian summer day and a hazy purple twilight comes on, the hustle and bustle of the barnyard, the gobbling of the turkeys and the clatter of the guinea hens are stilled.

I watched the turkeys fly into a tree in the barnyard, flutter around, spar for a good roosting spot and then quiet down. About nine Barred Rock hens gathered on top of a small stack of hay in the sheep lot. When they started to get together on the stack they made a tremendous amount of noise. But within a few minutes they, too, were quiet, and by the time that it was almost dark every bird was nestled down literally ready to "hit the hay."

•

Many of the Muscovies, always a bit better mannered than the noisy guinea hens, silhouetted themselves against the yellow sunset sky by flying into an old apple tree in their yard and roosting there.

One of the most amusing things to watch was a small flock of guinea hens trying to make up their minds where to take up quarters for the night. They talked and chattered, ran here and there, and finally rushed way down to the far end of the poultry yard in the gathering darkness. They disturbed two turkeys in the yard that were busy eating their last snack.

•

Hitler Rejects Papen's Offer to Help Settle Church Fight

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Franz von Papen, former vice chancellor and former president of the Working Association of Catholics which was dissolved by the Nazi government, called on Chancellor Adolf Hitler today to urge him to intervene in the Protestant church fight. Chancellor Hitler refused.

Von Papen also spent two hours with Minister of Interior Wilhelm Frick extending his advice on how to settle the church feud.

Von Papen is in Berlin for a short visit to "settle a social obligation of long standing." He is not returning immediately to his post in Vienna, where, it is said, the atmosphere is not comfortable for him since Austrian officials are giving him the cold shoulder. Instead, he started a trip to Sweden to hunt elks with friends.

German Christians in Uproar.

Meanwhile, the German Christians are in an uproar and their leaders are attending a stormy conference in Berlin tonight. They are the ones who insist on purification of the gospel according to Nazi ideals and who heretofore imposed their wishes on National Bishop Ludwig Mueller through Dr. August Jaeger, whose official title is legal adviser to the national church ministry.

Dr. Jaeger has been "reorganizing" the Bavarian Protestant church. While taking over the business quarters and seizing the funds of Bishop Hans Meisser, whom he ousted with the aid of the secret police, Dr. Jaeger came across letters written to Bishop Meisser by his friends, Herrs Kinder, Christiansen, Birnbaum and Langman, who are leaders of the German Christians and connected with the national ministry.

In no uncertain terms they express dissatisfaction with Dr. Jaeger, who, they assured Bishop Meisser, would soon be ousted.

Dr. Jaeger hot-footed to Berlin and ousted the quartet. The national church ministry refused to confirm their dismissal, but it admits that "they are away and uncertain when they will return."

Dr. Jaeger called the leaders of the German Christians together for a showdown in Berlin.

Strengthen Meisser's Guard.

MUNICH, Germany, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The dismissal of twelve members of the Bavarian Protestant church council intensified today the rebellion against the Nazi religious administration.

The action was assailed vigorously at a protest meeting called by a dissident Protestant pastor which attracted a large flock of churchgoers.

At the same time Bishop Hans Meisser, recently deposed by Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller's command, was placed under strengthened guard at his home. Political police were brought from Berlin, it was learned, because Nazi churchmen here did not trust the Munich secret police.

HITLER CHEERED AND FISTS FLY AT INQUIRY ON NAZIS

Police Break Up Fight at Hearing.

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Cries of "heil Hitler!" by 200 members of the friends of the new Germany broke up the hearing of the congressional committee on un-American activities today.

Fist fights between Jewish and Nazi sympathizers were narrowly averted by police as the audience poured out of the hearing room.

Jeers and laughter had interrupted the proceedings several times at the afternoon session, but trouble broke out when Ludwig Werner, a witness, testified he was "kicked out" of the friends of the new Germany because "I was too smart to obey orders blindly."

Start Cheering Hitler.

Immediately the hearing room resounded with cries of "heil Hitler" from a bloc of the friends of the new Germany. Representative John W. McCormack of South Boston, Mass., chairman of the committee, adjourned the meeting and said:

"I desire to ask the people not to construe this action as representing Americans of German blood. Actions of this kind reflect discredit on the friends of the new Germany."

McCormack had said in the course of an earlier outbreak he had been informed that Antone Haegele, New York leader of the friends of new Germany, had advised his followers to attend today's sessions and create a disturbance.

Police Intervene.

As the crowd poured into the hall police intervened to prevent a clash between a group of Jewish spectators and the Nazi adherents.

Representative McCormack said no more hearings will be held in New York, but the committee will resume public hearings in Washington in December.

Werner, who was jeered the moment he appeared in the witness chair, said the "Storm Troop" unit of 120 members to which he belonged held regular military drills in a Brooklyn hall.

Illinois Physician Killed in Plunge from Hospital

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Dr. Leander D. Keith, 69 year old Anna, Ill., physician, fell or jumped from a third floor window in his room in the Missouri Baptist hospital tonight and was dead when found by hospital attachés. Dr. Keith was admitted to the hospital this morning for examination. Relatives who visited him 15 minutes before his body was found said he apparently was in good spirits.

U.S. SECRETARIES GET ORAL PAT ON BACK BY 'ROBBIE'

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Thousands of obscure secretaries who do much of the work for which their bosses get the credit were paid tribute tonight by Miss Frances Robinson, secretary to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

"People don't realize that the secretaries of business men do most of the job," she said.

Miss Robinson flew from Washington to inspect the national business show, along with hundreds of other office workers.

"The possibilities of secretarial work are very great and always will be," she added. "But the word 'secretary' is misused a lot.

"I think secretarial training is a fine foundation for women to enter any phase of life, although many girls just stop at being a secretary."

"Robbie," as she was known to many in her position of assistant to the former head of the NRA, is still Johnson's secretary. Her present task of collecting data on the history of the NRA will take her a couple of months, she estimated.

Questioned about Johnson's plans, she said that they were still indefinite.

"But I suppose, whatever he does, I will still be his secretary, if he will have me," she added.

CITY EMPLOYE SHOOTS SELF.

Sol Bonk, 46 years old, 2047 West 17th street, a laborer for the water pipe extension department, attempted to commit suicide early today. He shot himself in the abdomen. At the county hospital, where he was taken, physicians expected him to recover.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

It's Often Nothing More Serious Than a Touch of "Acid Stomach"
HOW TO RELIEVE IT

About forty, many people begin to look back on life. They notice they've lost "snap." Worry. Think they're "growing old."

They have headaches oftener. Feel tired and low a lot. Are subject to stomach upsets . . . nausea.

Well, scientists say it may not be so bad as it looks. That the real cause, in a great percentage of cases, is a tendency to an acid condition of the stomach. A condition that follows years, perhaps, of faulty diet. And that's very easy to relieve.

Do This

The thing to do, according to doctors, is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity. Which is very simple to do.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. And another time before you go to bed. Chances are, you will feel fewer headaches. Most of the pep and energy you think you've lost will come back. It's really remarkable.

Convenient New Phillips' Tablets

Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets — which you can carry anywhere. They're only 25c a big box, at all druggists! Also large family size, 200 tablets $1.00. Try them.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The little boy next me like to burst with excitement. As did about six other little boys on his other side. Don't tell ME westerns will ever go out! Not while there's a younger generation, they won't.

"Wagon Wheels" ought to get over pretty well with papas and mamas, too. On account it has some good laughs. The lank, simpering authoress who is "writing up" the trek of the wagon train is terribly funny when she sings about the beautiful, beautiful daisies. The two droll old scouts, Burch and O'Meary, have numerous laughable entries. And the Widow Wellington's little boy "Sonny" brings down the house when he puts ferocious redskins to flight with beans in their anatomy from his busy little bean shooter. . . .

Then there's some nice campfire singing of "Wagon Wheels" and a pleasantly developed romance between Mrs. Wellington and that stalwart head scout of the expedition, Clint Belmet. Randolph Scott is perfect for a lead of this kind. A thrilling sort of a bird with the nicest smile you ever saw. Gail Patrick's lovely! [What other actress DOES she remind me of? Her resemblance to some one—whose name persistently escapes me—is driving me nuts. Help-Help, with apologies to Harvey Woodruff.]

The photoplay was adapted from Zane Grey's story, "Fighting Caravans," and is concerned with the hardship and danger beset journey of a covered wagon caravan from eastern states to Oregon. Monte Blue, as a half-breed in the employ of a powerful fur traders' organization, persistently sics Indians on the unhappy travelers in the effort to make them go back where they started from. If you think he succeeds, you are, of course, crazy. . . .

KIND: Radio-kidding comedy. Introduces many well known air celebrities.

ACTING: Edmund Lowe takes the honors as "The Great Gabney"—master of ceremonies on a nation-wide broadcast of the "Triver's Chopped Chicken Livers" program. He becomes an overnight sensation—and can't take it. Inflated ego . . . loss of job . . . pretty girl who believes in him . . . comeback . . . H. E. That's the layout. . . .

DIRECTION: Good.

DIALOG: Plenty amusing in places.

STAGING, SOUND, ETC. Oke.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Quite a lot. The folks liked these musical numbers: "Blue Sky Heaven," "I Ain't Gonna Sin No More," and "Talking to Myself."

The musical "short," "La Cucharacha," which immediately precedes the feature, is a delightful number, done in technicolor. It is based on the song, "La Cucharacha"—[The Cockroach]. Featured are Steffi Duna, Don Alvarado, and Paul Porcasi.

Scenes are localed in a Mexican café where Chatita and Pancho are entertainers. Martinez, a theatrical producer seeking talent, finds them there. . . .

The dancing, in gorgeously hued native costumes, is something to dream about, and the music is thrilling.

See you soon!

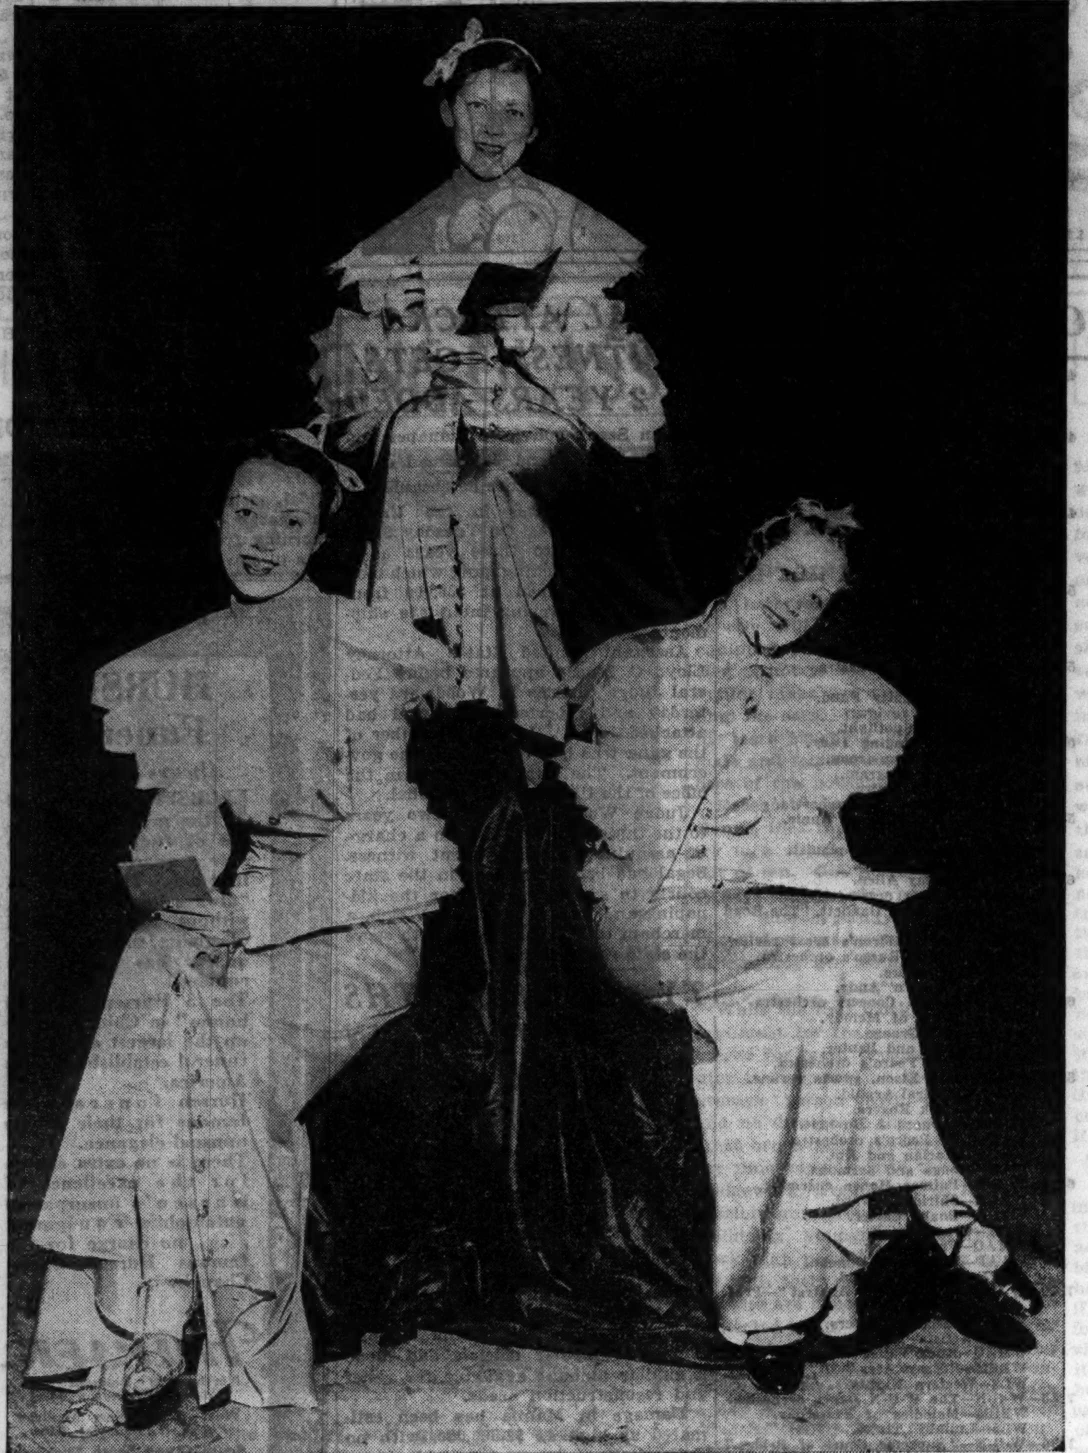
Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Hoover to Attend Parley

Boston, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt and her predecessor in the White House, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, will attend the opening of the 20th annual three day convention of the National Council of Girl Scouts which opens here Oct. 24, Scout officials announced today.

Scene from Service Club Revue



"Now, let me see," this trio seems to be saying, but it's you who will be seeing them if you go to the Service club's revue Saturday night at the Civic theater for they are three of the chorus girls. They are, left to right: Miss Charlotte Hubbart, Miss Ruth Rodormer, and Miss Marjorie Robinson. In these costumes of gray silk with cellophane collars and cuffs they represent secretaries in "Little Lady, What Next?" The proceeds of the performance will go to charity.

Each year the club contributes to fifty organized Chicago charities including the Red Cross, the North Avenue Day Nursery, the Children's Memorial hospital, the Lighthouse for the Blind, Emerson house, Madonna center, the De Paul Day Nursery, the Cradle, and the Eli Bates Settlement house, as well as to needy individuals. Mrs. John Dern is the president.

Professor Has Score Card of Beauty Points

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—It is now possible to make a scientific appraisal of a young woman's charms and estimate in mathematical percentages just how beautiful she is, according to a professor of hygiene at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The educator listed a number of "topics," told his students the number of points that should, in his opinion, be scored for each one, and instructed them to compile a point score for the beauty of their girl friends.

The topics outlined by the professor and the number of points allowed for each in measuring feminine beauty were:

Twenty points—Average weight for age and height.

Five points—Eyes—2, shining and alert, not dull or heavy; 1, not strained or with lines or frowns; 2, clear white of eyes, not muddy or yellow.

Five points—Teeth—3, if well cared for; 2, if teeth meet property.

Ten points—Skin—2, if clear; 2, for good color; 1, if smooth; 2, if tissues firm; 2, if skin under eyes is smooth and clear; 1, if cheeks and lips are natural color.

Five points—Hands—2, if immaculately clean; 1, if skin is smooth; 2, if nails and cuticle are clean and carefully cared for [no extremes can be counted for points].

Ten points—Feet—5, if normal, with inner border of bare foot a straight line from heel to end of big toe [big toe not bent toward other toes by pointed shoes, as this is likely to lead to a prominent joint at base of big toe], and all toes must be able to spread apart; 5 points, if feet properly shod [no extremes allowed, except in evening shoes].

Five points—Posture [standing]—1, if shoulders are level with each other; 1, if arms are relaxed; 1, if the body line is unbroken by abdomen; 1, for the position of the feet [should be slightly apart and parallel].

Two points—Good lines and grace [while seated]—1, if lower spine is against chair back; 1, if hands are in repose, knees almost touching each other and feet are parallel or one crossed over the other.

Three points—Harmony of movement while walking—1, for good rhythm of entire body; 1, if feet toe straight ahead; 1, if step is elastic, firm and not heavy.

Ten points—Health as a social asset—5, radiating good health and spirits, full of enthusiasm; 3, poise [perfect self control, inspiring others, with confidence]; 2, voice well placed and round; not high, thin or nasal.

Five points—Clothing adapted in line and color to the individual; suitable to season and occasion.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Noted Founder of Nurse Group Will Talk Here

Mrs. Breckinridge to Tell of Frontier Service.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A NOTE from Mrs. Frederic W. Upham brings the news that that gallant lady, Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, founder and director of the Frontier Nursing service, will be in Chicago later this month and will speak at the annual meeting of the Chicago committee of the service on Wednesday morning, Oct. 31, in the Drake hotel ballroom.

This is good news to all those interested in the work of the service for Mrs. Breckinridge fires every one with whom she comes in contact with enthusiasm and no one could hear her speak and not be interested in the work she and her co-workers are doing in the mountains of eastern Kentucky.

Five Chicago girls have acted as volunteer couriers in the service, which means that for six weeks they lived in isolated centers and spent all day every day riding on horseback as couriers of the service.

If the Chicago meeting were just two days later Miss Adelaide Atkin, who is a courier now, would be here for it, but unfortunately she will not arrive until Nov. 1 or 2. The other four who preceded her as couriers are Mrs. Edward Arpee [Katherine Trowbridge], Mrs. John J. Schreiner [Mary MacCaughey], Mrs. John B. Morse [Margaret McLennan] and Mrs. Paul Magnuson Jr. [Marianne Stevenson]. Mrs. Schreiner and Mrs. Arpee are chairman and vice chairman of the junior courier committee of Chicago and Mrs. Upham is chairman of the Chicago committee. The service is supported by voluntary contributions.

Symphony Season Will Open Tonight.

Orchestra hall will be the destination of many socialites tonight for the first concert of the season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is being played there then, and, as always, it will be a gala occasion. Many of the boxholders have planned dinner parties to precede the concert but they will be early dinners, you may be sure, for no music lover wants to be later than 8:15 in arriving at Orchestra hall, for that means that he will miss the first number which tonight will be Bach's Suite No. 3.

All of pretty Miss Jean Hyman's friends will have a chance to wish her happiness and to congratulate her fiancé, Lincoln S. Harris, Sunday afternoon at a party her mother and father, the Robert W. Hymans, are giving. The guests have been in-

HE was a gambler from the Mexican border—and he said so. He offered a coin as admittance to the gallery of Mexican art in the Mexican village, and Señor Valencia of the galleries looked at it doubtfully. It felt right, but it seemed queer somehow. However, he took it and gave back change. Señor Valencia looked again at the coin. Of course, Columbus. And on the reverse side the Santa Maria. Thus, then, did the gambler's Columbian souvenir half dollar of 1893 come back to the World's Fair of 1934.

A LARGE carton of candy was ordered as a treat for the children of the Christopher School for Crippled Children, to be distributed the day they made their trip to the Fair. It had not arrived by the preceding day and Mrs. Genevieve Langan, the teacher who was to distribute it, was worried about it. Seeing a man in the corridor with a large box she inquired anxiously:

"Are you the candy man?"

"No, ma'am, I'm real," was his reply.

A 65 YEAR OLD retired postman of Shelbyville, Ill., writes to say that a story printed recently in this space reminded him of one he heard 30 years ago. It concerned a woman whose husband had an aggravating way of dropping a hint; then, when she questioned him further, answering "That's a nut to crack." The woman treasured her wrath until her dying day, literally. When her husband sat at her bedside holding her head, she solemnly begged that he treat her son John as his own son.

Jewelry Used as Ornaments for Coiffures

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Hairlines make headlines of glittering glory this year.

Along with all the gala clothes, sparkling brocades, stiff picturesque taffetas and silks, come the twinkling hair ornaments to complete such enchanting costumes.

Just out of the tissue paper packing come dazzling jeweled Juliet caps, trifles of rhinestones to cover the top of your coiffure. And the shaped, sweeping sort of a halo that will make you look like Mary, Queen of Scots.

Of the classic wreath of laurel leaves done in rhinestones to accent a widow's peak. Or the simple narrow line of rhinestones to hold back the curls called a fillet. And the four band affair that can be used either in close formation or spread across the head from foreline to the back.

Tiny tufts of ostrich feather in every imaginable color are anchored to tiny combs and are called court feathers. These are used instead of clips to hold curls and waves in place, as well as something new for hairlines. Twinkling rhinestone stars, flowers, long leaves and other small designs are also fastened to small combs and tucked artfully among your head curls.

The newest of new costume jewelry is of metal—gleaming silver and gold stuff—bright accents that sparkle on wool and silk alike. Necklaces are long in single and double strands. Bracelets jangle smartly as well as noisily when you move. Look for the chain bracelets in old fashioned links, with necklaces to match, the wide flat gold metal bracelets, with large clips to match, or the long, narrow clips made of small gold beads, with a choker collar made the same way.

Gold metal costume jewelry steals the spotlight. You can wear it with green, with brown, and with black, and achieve some of the best looking combines in contrast you ever wore.

Opera Given Performance It Deserves.

THE CAST.

Lucia	Rosalinda Morini
Henry Ashton	Mostyn Thomas
Edgar	Dimitri Onofrei
Raymond	Leon Rothier
Norman	Fausto Bozza
Alice	Charlotte Bruno
Lord Arthur	Francesco Curci

Conductor—Carlo Peroni

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Lucia di Lammermoor" is one of the elderly operas in any company's répertoire. Yet, as it was presented by the San Carlo company last night, it proved several things: First, that, properly presented, it is worth hearing; second, that as a benefit performance—in this case for the Lighthouse for the Blind—it has values both for the cause and for the audience; finally, that in spite of its age, it is both dramatically and musically a work that deserves to remain on the permanent list of all operas in every season.

For this summary one does not always need to think of what Miss Morini accomplished so brilliantly in the Mad Scene. That particular episode can stand by itself and be accompanied by all the applause that it rightfully drew. It is an exhibition to be applauded at all times, never more so than last night. Miss Morini is an expert at that sort of thing. But, while considering her extraordinary execution here, let it be not forgotten that there was also unusually striking dramatic force in her scene with Mr. Onofrei in the first act and with Mr. Thomas in the second, in both of which the tenor and baritone sang just about as well, and this means high terms, as she.

Victor Chenkin, the singing actor, appeared in a recital, also to be classified as a benefit, last night at Orchestra hall. One regrets that it cannot be accurately reported, in spite of the fact that musically it was so delightful, because so much of it was in the language outside of the routine of the ordinary musical critic. It was vivid, striking, and eloquent, no matter the tongue. Mr. Chenkin is a personality, even if he sings in the most remote Russian language.

Janet Fairbank, a daughter of the socially prominent family, was yesterday engaged by Paul Longone, artistic director of the Chicago Grand Opera company, to sing soprano rôles in the season that opens at the Civic Opera house on Nov. 10, thereby joining forces with Edith Mason, Margery Maxwell, Florence Macbeth, and other American artists who are to sing prominent rôles during the season.

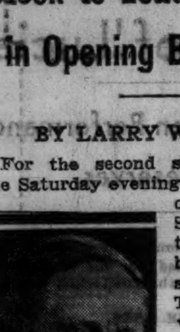
W-G-N WILL PUT NEW SYMPHONY SERIES ON AIR

Stock to Lead Orchestra in Opening Broadcast.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

For the second successive season the Saturday evening popular concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra are to be broadcast exclusively by W-G-N. The first program will be given next Saturday from 8:15 to 10 p. m. with Dr. Frederick Stock as conductor.



DR. FREDERICK STOCK.

The popular concerts are to follow at fortnightly intervals throughout the winter and spring until April 20. Thus 14 programs will be put on the air by THE TRIBUNE'S station in this series.

Edward Moore, music editor of THE TRIBUNE, again will be the commentator for these programs, and Pierre Andre, W-G-N staf announcer, will introduce them. Dr. Stock will have some remarks to make during the intermission on the opening program.

Concerts Are Increased.

The number of popular concerts has been increased this year largely because of the great response received through the broadcasts last season when THE TRIBUNE station carried seven concerts and one post season program exhibiting the symphony in an evening at play, one of the most unusual presentations ever made.

Music by the Chicago Symphony orchestra is practically a year around feature at W-G-N. Two months after the regular season closed last spring the Symphony moved to the Swift Bridge of Service at the Fair. From this spot W-G-N picked up the programs almost daily. During the orchestra's engagement there W-G-N carried 62 hours of symphonic music.

Noted Conductors Presented.

On these programs many distinguished conductors were presented. Among them were—in addition to Dr. Stock, Eric DeLamarter, assistant conductor of the orchestra, and Henry Weber, now music director of W-G-N—Sir Hamilton Harty, Henry Hadley, Karl Krueger and Willem Van Hoogstraaten.

On the opening broadcast of the Symphony over W-G-N Saturday night Dr. Stock will present this program:

Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" ....Nicolai
Lyric Suite, Opus 54....................Grieg
Perpetuum Mobile....................Paganini
Waltz, from "The Bat"....................Strauss

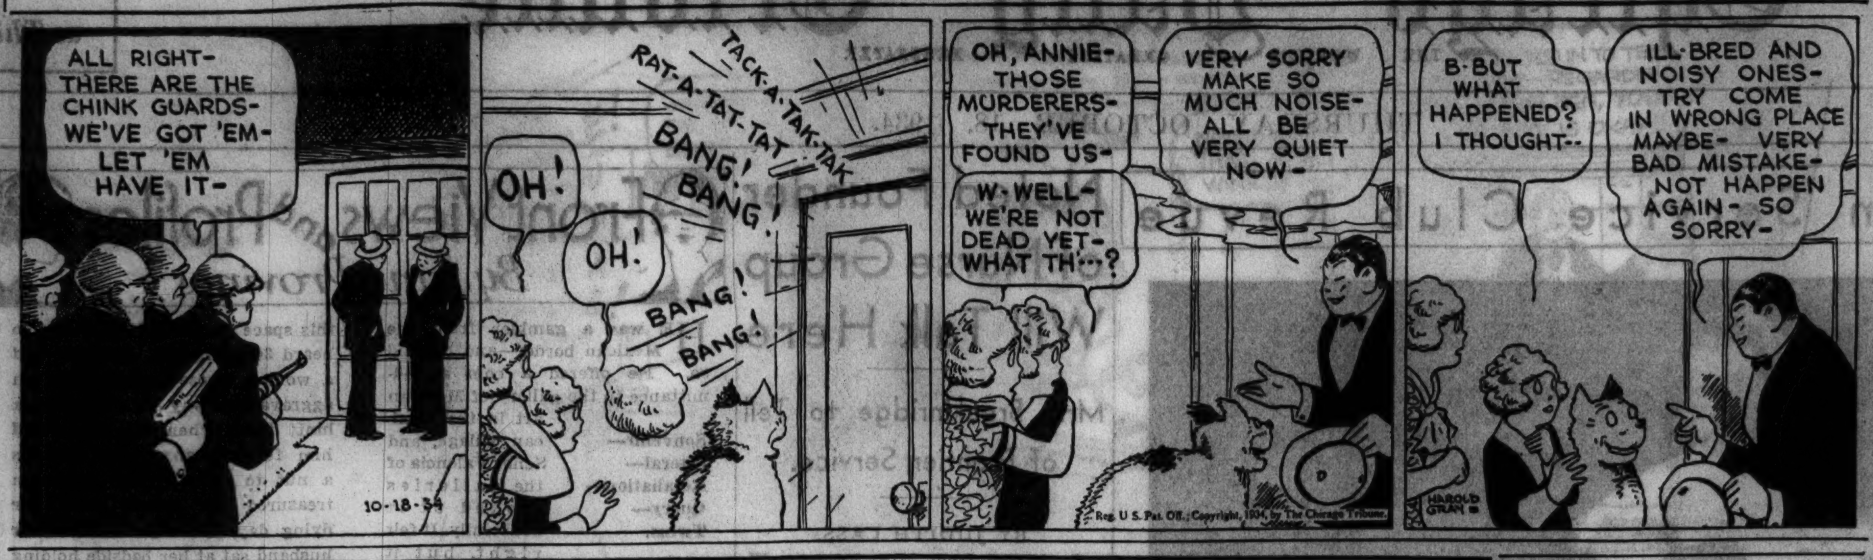
For the duration of the symphony season "Tomorrow's Tribune" and dramatic program, "Headlines of Other Days," will be presented at 8 p. m.

Hopper Busy on Radio.

De Wolf Hopper, dean of the American stage, is commuting between Kansas City and New York these days. On Sundays he appears as commentator on the NBC Kansas City Philharmonic broadcasts. And on Wednesdays he is appearing in New York on the CBS Broadway Varieties.

Jean Harlow will make a guest appearance tomorrow night on the CBS Hollywood Hotel broadcast, featuring Dick Powell and Ted Fio-Rito's orchestra regularly.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: So Sorry



Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1934, by The Chicago Tribune.

HANGS BY LEGS 15 MINUTES; SEES HIS PARTNER DIE

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—With his legs twisted around a rope supporting the end of a painter's scaffold, the other end of which had given way, plunging his partner to death fifteen stories below, Perry Fast, a young house painter, hung head downward for fifteen minutes between the fourteenth and fifteenth levels of an apartment house until he was rescued today.

The apartment house is seventeen stories high, and Fast and his partner, Joseph Alampi, 35, had been engaged to paint the outer wall and window frames.

Shortly after they went to work this morning Alampi, after calling out to Fast, lowered the right side of the scaffold to reach a new surface. Fast, who was at the left end, prepared to lower away when the scaffold bumped against an iron guard in a window of the apartment on the fifteenth floor.

The bump evidently unfastened a slip noose on Alampi's end of the scaffold. The wooden platform swung downward, dumping Alampi off. He fell to the street and was killed. Fast's end of the scaffold held. One of his hands was free. In the other he held a twenty pound bucket of paint. Working with his free hand, he managed to get his legs up to the rope and get a leg hold.

MICHIGAN FREES LIFE FOR A PINT VICTIM; ONE LEFT

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—One of the last two victims of Michigan's notorious "life for a pint law," long since modified, was ordered released today from the Marquette branch prison.

Tony Popish of Newberry, sentenced to life when convicted of a prohibition law violation, his fourth felony, in January, 1929, was the beneficiary. On order of the department of pardon and paroles, he was released as recommended by Judge Herbert Runnels of Schoolcraft county. The judge had sentenced Popish under the then mandatory law.

With Popish freed, Alonzo Noyes of Ionia remains the last surviving victim of the drastic law which brought Michigan a world wide reputation for prohibition intolerance. Noyes' minimum term under his commuted sentence expires Nov. 8, 1935. It is presumed he will be freed from the state prison at Jackson at that time.

Word was received in Aurora yesterday of the death at Irvington, N. J., of Thomas J. Reid, 67 years old, brother of Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora. Since his retirement three years ago as superintendent of the Aurora Foundry company, Mr. Reid has made his home in the eastern city.

In addition to Congressman Reid, he is survived by a son, Arthur, of Irvington; a daughter, Mrs. Roy Winser of Evanston; three other brothers, Joseph, Erving, and Will, and two sisters, Margaret Reid of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Mary Reid of Yonkers, N. Y. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Rites at St. Charles Today for Mrs. Viola Horne

The funeral of Mrs. Viola Horne, 67 years old, prominent in St. Charles social and civic affairs, will be held this afternoon at two o'clock from the Norris chapel at St. Charles. The Rev. F. M. Webster will officiate. Burial will be in Union cemetery. Mrs. Horne was the widow of J. B. Horne, who for many years was president of the St. Charles Fixture Manufacturing company. Surviving her are two sons and a daughter. They are Edward of St. Charles; Harry of Chicago, and Mrs. Hugh Stewart of Hammond.

SEGAL ATTACKS WITNESS; GETS 2 YEARS ADDED

Allen Segal, convicted kidnaper and hijacker, will spend 30 instead of 28 years in prison because he assaulted a government witness in the United States courthouse. On Tuesday Segal was sentenced to three years as a member of a hijacking gang which took merchandise valued at $35,000 from three trucks carrying interstate shipments.

Assistant United States Attorney Lloyd C. Moody appeared before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday and reported that Segal had attacked John A. Infield, a member of the gang who had testified for the government. The attack occurred in the office of the United States marshal.

Judge Woodward added two years to the three year sentence on a charge of assaulting a government witness. Segal had been sentenced in the state courts to serve 25 years for the kidnaping and torture of Harry Welch, a merchant of Toledo, O. He is to serve the state sentence first.

TYPHOON DEATHS MOUNT TO 43 IN MANILA REGION

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 18.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—While residents of Manila and nearby provinces worked today to restore order after the chaos wrought by Tuesday's disastrous typhoon, the Manila Tribune placed the storm death list at 43. Official reports came in more slowly, and showed a smaller total.

The house of the Philippine legislature voted $500,000 for relief work. Previously Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy and other insular officials had made a similar amount available for relief and reconstruction needs.

Damage in Manila has been estimated as high as $2,500,000, with no authoritative figures available from nearby provinces or from the storm swept area in northern Luzon. Telegraph communication with thirteen provinces remained disrupted, but highways and railroad tracks were rapidly being cleared.

EUGENE O'CONNOR DIES; KEWANEE'S MAYOR 2 TERMS

Eugene O'Connor, 75 years old, Rondout merchant and former mayor of Kewanee, Ill., died yesterday in his home in Rondout. He had suffered from a heart ailment.

After serving two terms as Kewanee mayor Mr. O'Connor moved to Rondout seventeen years ago. There he conducted a general store and was postmaster for several years. He is survived by his widow, Katherine; a son, Lawrence of Oakland, Cal., and a daughter, Mrs. Mark Bruen of Kewanee.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Joseph's church, Libertyville. Burial will be in Kewanee.

UNDERWOOD JR. PUT ON MEXICAN CLAIMS GROUP

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—A famous name again went on the rolls of government officials today as President Roosevelt appointed Oscar W. Underwood Jr. commissioner for the United States on the general claims commission to settle disputes with Mexico.

Underwood is the son of the late senator from Alabama, whose name became nationally known in the Democratic convention of 1920, at which the Alabama delegation cast its solid "24 votes for Oscar Underwood" through scores of ballots for a nominee.

Lawyer Identifies Five Young Men in Holdup

Five youths held by Sheffield police were identified last evening by Attorney Edward Marshall of 140 Kenilworth avenue, Kenilworth, as the robbers who took $30 from him on Oct. 10, after kidnaping him from Pine Grove and Wellington avenues. The five are Joseph Guttig, Harold Voegtle, Nicholas Rossman, Edward Peplinski, and George Congoran, who have confessed committing nineteen holdups.

RITES HELD FOR CHILD VICTIM OF FURNACE MURDER

Funeral services for Nancy Jane Costigan, five years old, victim of a "furnace murder" in Mount Vernon, N. Y., were conducted yesterday at the chapel at Oakridge cemetery. The child's ashes were brought here early yesterday, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Costigan.

Two weeks ago the Costigans returned to New York after a visit at the home of Mrs. Costigan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Worthington W. DeWolf, 1010 South Mansfield avenue. The body of the child was found Sunday in the oil burning furnace at the home of relatives, Mr. and Mrs. C. Russell Newhouse at Mount Vernon. Lawrence Stone, a discharged handyman and mental defective, confessed placing the little girl in the furnace while she still was alive.

Child's Manner Influenced by That of Adults

Pertness, Rudeness Vanish If Grownup Is Dignified.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A woman has a group of high school children come to her house every day for luncheon and sits down at the table with them. One of the boys who is quite sure of himself and a little aggressive was beginning to verge on impudence and rudeness. It wasn't exactly an overt sort of rudeness or impudence, so she couldn't reprove him or call him down for it. What to do?

As she thought about it she realized that she had been familiar in her manner, had argued as on the same level, "answered him back" half jokingly, and had been a little caustic [annoyed by his manner].

She knew the lad was all right underneath, but full of independence and a certain go-getting fearlessness. She decided that all she needed to do was to respond differently to him—to be the one to set the tone of their intercourse.

Still keeping warm and friendly, she treated the boy with quiet courtesy, talked about subjects of real interest to him, but without allowing herself to argue, treated literally those statements which might have been made to "bait" her, and met the cocksureness by not allowing the lad to monopolize the conversation.

It worked like magic.

A little girl of 6 went to visit some young, but grownup, relatives. There were occasions when she became pert—and isn't pertness unattractive in a child? It bothered the aunt a lot, as she realized what was happening. She said nothing, feeling that to reprove something so intangible that the child wouldn't know what she was talking about was silly. So she watched and discovered in no time at all that the child was pert to only one person—and that was to the young man cousin who always had a teasing, "baiting," pert way when with her. In self-defense the little girl repaid him in kind.

Children take their tone from you. Just watch and you'll find that, with a few temporary exceptions due to sudden changes in development or environment, this is true.

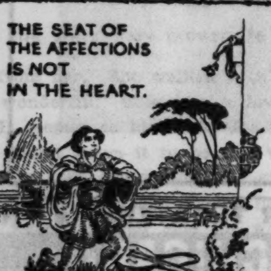
The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



THE SEAT OF THE AFFECTIONS IS NOT IN THE HEART.

On Valentine day we send hearts to our loved ones. However, the heart has nothing more to do with our affections than has the liver—or probably not as much. The heart is only a pump to keep the blood in circulation. A lover might just as well offer his stomach as his heart. No one knows exactly where the seat of the affections is, except that it is surely somewhere in the nervous system, and is also partially regulated by various glands. The entire emotional nature is involved in one's affections, and the emotions are affected by the functioning of nearly all the bodily organs, especially those of digestion.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Not the dead of winter, when the skin is tortured and peeling and you look like something dragged out of Aunt Em's trunk, but NOW is the time to do something about dryness. At the risk of being even more monotonous than usual we'd like to point out again that smooth, well nourished skin can be retained—but that regaining it is very much something else again.

Nine out of ten women can't overdo on the lubricating score at any season, but during the winter cream by the ton wouldn't be too much for most of us. It's the lack of humidity or some such thing.

There are a great many names for the treatment cream—some call it tissue cream, some call it nourishing cream and some call it skin food. In any case that's usually the cream that is not a cleanser; it's a rich emollient with the sole purpose of softening and oiling. It's the cream that's vitally important in skin preservation because wrinkles come where dry skin was before, you know.

One such on the market that may have escaped your attention is worthy of some notice. It's as rich as any we've ever tried—a pale yellow and so drippy and spready that a very little goes a long way. Its makers inform us that it has been irradiated with ultra-violet rays, which is certainly interesting to say the least.

There aren't any visible little violet rays popping out, naturally, but there's plenty of nourishing value in them thar jars. We found it especially beneficial to the type of skin that is dry—and consequently dull, the kind that makeup looks brittle on. Used as a night cream—with special attention to the tired mouth and eye corners—it seemed to restore the smoothness and glow that's so essential to complexion suavity.

Tooth Brushing Requires Three Minute's Time

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A bathroom without a time clock shortly will be viewed as a poorly equipped place. The bathroom clock idea is not to see how many seconds Junior takes for washcloth work behind the ears. It is to time Junior on his teeth brushing, all of the juniors, male and female; also the adult members of the household.

Research proves, among other things, that the tooth brushing industry is a slipshod one in nine homes out of ten. One noted dental authority says that the tidy housewife spends more time carefully washing thirty-two dishes, one by one, than she does in brushing her teeth.

While the time clock is not the final argument for the amount of time required for teeth brushing, three minutes is suggested as the rule for the average person with regular teeth and no disease of the gums. Others must brush until the teeth are clean, the time varying with the amount of bridgework, irregularity of teeth, and possible gum troubles.

Putting youngsters on the time clock plan promises little or no trouble with their mouths later, so far as diseases are concerned that come from neglected teeth. There are those who argue for the three-a-day brushing periods, but now it is generally conceded by dental authorities that twice a day is sufficient if the brushing is done efficiently and given the suggested three minutes, and more when necessary.

Another advance in the preservation and beauty of teeth is the treatment of gums in the brushing activity. Authorities say that if the toothbrush is used effectively gum disease will be prevented. More, it will restore in many instances health to the gum tissue that has become diseased. In directing youngsters in the brushing habits, instill into them the need of brushing the gums at the same time. The rotary motion now advocated for the cleaning job automatically brings beneficial action to the gums.

A suggestion about brushes, offered by Dr. W. M. Gardner, noted authority, is to immerse the new brush in a strong, cold salt solution for two hours before using. This removes the first harshness, making it more flexible and pliable. Boiling the new brush to sterilize it is inadvisable. In rinsing the brush after using use cold water. Hold brush downward under the faucet and let a strong force of water clear it off. Twenty-four hours should elapse before using one brush again, which makes it imperative for two brushes to be in use instead of the usual one.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

BELATED SUIT BIDDING.

Those of my readers who have been following these articles from the start will remember that I devoted a great deal of space to explanation of how four-card suits should be bid in developing a slam when the bidding was one no trump, two no trumps, four no trumps by the opening bidder. I suggested that the responding hand should then bid a four-card suit headed by two of the top three honors, which his partner could raise if holding four in it to the top three honors. In this manner some slams could be bid in a suit, and be certainties in the suit, whereas if bid in no trumps they would be dependent on a finesse or on the three-three split of one or more suits of which the declaring partners held four-three. These short suits were not bid in arriving at a game contract in no trumps; they were mentioned only when a slam try followed the game contract. We found that even when a trump suit of eight cards in the two hands, with all three top honors jointly held, had been located, slam would still be bid in no trumps if both hands were split [four-three-three-three], whereas with a four-four-three-two distribution either partner could steer the hand to the suit slam if preferring trump play.

The Procedure Is Exactly Similar.

When it is the responding hand who makes the slam try, the procedure is the same, with the rôles reversed. In accepting the slam try, the opening bidder should now bid a four-card suit headed by two of the top three honors, if he possesses one, and his hand calls for an acceptance of the slam try by virtue of its reserve primary values or its possession of three aces. Since, however, it is more likely that the partner's four-card holding is in one of the other three suits than in the same suit as the opener's, one must always expect that the slam will be bid in no trumps. Consequently, you must be very careful not to shade your values in any way because you accept the slam try by bidding a suit instead of having to raise in no trumps.

If, therefore, you have bid one no trump as dealer or second hand, and your partner slam tries with three no trumps, do not overbid your hand just because there is a K Q x x holding in it. Tell yourself that this suit is just an added chance which is not very likely to produce anything better than a response of four no trumps, but which once in a while will click and find a safer slam declaration. Assume that though you bid four in the suit in accepting the slam try, you will end up in six no trumps. Consequently, pass unless you have the full primary values which we found necessary for bidding four no trumps—namely, [a] three aces and altogether three and a half primary tricks in your hand, or [b] four primary tricks without any stipulation as to having more than one ace. Your partner will not assume that you have a five-card suit, because, as we have already seen, you would bid five in a suit of more than four cards if you had a concealed long suit and your hand justified acceptance of your partner's three no trump slam try.

The Distributional Factor.

Do not refrain from bidding your four-card suit because you yourself have a split hand. Your partner may have the four-four-three-two distribution which could decide him to slam in your suit. If the bidding goes one no trump, three no trumps, four clubs by you, five clubs by him, now he is asking you to decide between clubs and no trumps; with a split hand, bid five or six no trumps [depending on whether you have still anything in reserve]; with four-four-three-two, bid six clubs.

In Match-point Scoring Do Not Decide Hastily.

In tournament play, you must generally incline to no trumps rather than the suit, even if this involves some slight risk; at this point in the bidding, be guided not only by your distribution but also by the type of scoring under which you are playing. Give yourself plenty of time to think things over—let the opponents fidget if they must—and commune with yourself on the following lines: "I know my partner has four clubs for me with the missing top honor; presumably he has three-three-three in the other suits, and he has a total of three primary tricks. What are they likely to be? What important cards can he lack and still give me this bidding? Will six no trumps be almost as sure as six clubs? Could either contract depend on the same finesse or will I be able to ruff in clubs a card I must finesse against in no trumps? Do I need from my partner the equivalent of a Sims original unshaded no trumper to make six no trumps? If so, better slam in clubs, since my partner's slam try was three and not four no trumps. Have I the intermediaries and finesse or tenace holdings to give as good a play in no trumps as in clubs, needing only three primary tricks from partner? If so, let no trumps be the order of the day." Had your partner been able to give the decision, he would have bid six clubs or six no trumps over your four-club acceptance.

Tomorrow I will give you a most interesting hand from actual play, illustrating some of these points, and after that I will explain in detail the "four-no-trump" slam try, which I have so far referred to only in a negative manner.

A CHANGE
Doctors are Recommending
The usual care that a thoughtful mother gives her child, can be offset by this one mistake. Don't make it!
Read about a test which has told parents a lot.

Why does a mother's watchfulness and care sometimes fail to help the boy or girl whose bowels are not regular?

Often it's because the average mother gives any laxative the family may be using.

The doctor would give a liquid laxative of suitable ingredients, suitable strength, and in suitable amount.

Are You Making This Mistake?

It is not wise to give laxatives of adult strength to a child, just because you give them less frequently or in less amounts. Stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing boys and girls can often be traced to this unwise practice.

Try this, instead: Stop all use of mineral drugs, whether they are salts, pills, tablets, or "candy" form. Even once a month is too often to give any child a cathartic strong enough for adults.

Give that bilious boy or girl a gentle liquid laxative when constipated, and a little less if dose is repeated until bowels seem to be moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help.

What to Use

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Once you change to pure, unadulterated California Syrup of Figs instead of harsh medicines, you'll risk no more violence to your child's appetite, digestion, and general physical condition. You'll have a safer, more satisfactory result, too. Those little upsets and complaints just disappear, as a rule when this treatment is followed.

THE "LIQUID TEST"

This is the way to relieve occasional sluggishness, or constipation in a child of any age:

First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age, and condition. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is California Syrup of Figs which every druggist keeps in stock. Be certain that it is the genuine product, with "California" blown in the bottle.

Husband Is Ill; Miss Bennett Delays Divorce

Condition of Marquis Is Causing Worry.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Whatever the divorce intentions of Constance Bennett when she started the trip to Europe from which she recently returned, they may never be carried out because of the physical condition of her titled French husband, Marquis Henri de la Falaise.

The marquis, who is described as being in a condition to give his friends great worry, has been receiving constant nursing and medical care in the actress' home since their return from their reunion in Paris.

The marquis' condition is attributed to a fever and illness he contracted during his second film expedition to the East Indies which he recently completed with negatives for a second independent adventure picture backed by his wife's money.

Miss Bennett's investment in her husband's first Indian ocean island film was around $100,000. according to the figure quoted in Hollywood, and she has $70,000 or more tied up in the marquis' second film. Attorneys' conferences regarding this money invested in the two films which the marquis made and his wife financed, and the disposition of the films, were supposed to be held recently, but the unexpectedly threatening turn to De la Falaise's illness has shelved all talk of property and divorce matters at this time.

Mae Marsh, who had three children growing up, but who still is remembered for her rôle in "Birth of a Nation," gets an important rôle, that of Karen Morley's mother, in "Black Hell" with Paul Muni at Warner's. Muni is having his hair dyed a shade he calls "a dirty blond" to play a Slovene coal miner.

Bette Davis admired the fact that her husband, Harmon O. Nelson Jr., orchestra musician, was able to acquire an automobile which runs for only $17.50, but when it came time to motor to Boston to see the folks of both families back in the old home town she demurred at riding in it. So Nelson sold the ancient model for $25, a cash profit of $7.50, which caused Yankee Bette to admire her hubby more than ever. They started out by auto for the Bay state in a leisurely jaunt yesterday.

There are twelve 200 pound fan dancers in blond wigs doing a chorus act in Rudy Vallee's "Sweet Music" at Warner's. The dancers turn out to be the college football team doing male stage rôles in the college drama back on Rudy's old college campus.

Doris Kenyon, who makes her opera debut in "The Secret of Suzanne" next month, is fashioning her own costumes, most of them copied from an old enghteenth century edition of a Spanish volume.

Romance Needs Frequent Meeting, Companionship

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They love each other, really. He underscores the "really." But he has no time to "fly around for romance." The girl thinks a little flying around good for the health of their romance. Anyway, she complains to her Brummel that all business and no time for anything else isn't her idea of romance.

He phones her the last thing at night, and every night, and scores this up as something few men do. This, after he has completed his day, which runs on to midnight. Well, it's a nice little gesture, but hardly enough for a lovesick maid who has spent the hours from eight on wondering if the time will ever come when she'll get to a movie with her boy friend.

Why need one work from early morning late into the night every evening of the week? Saturday nights? Sundays and holidays? It isn't reasonable not to have time off to see a girl at least once a week, nor to expect her to be happy on lower entertainment rations. We picture the poor woman a few years hence, as this man's wife, just another victim of the all-work-and-no-play theory of living. It's a dull program and a senseless one.

Maybe, erroneously, we suspect an overpowering love of money where a man can't find time to take his best girl on an occasional spree, at least.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A revue called "The Gay Nineties," in the atmosphere of the old-time Bowery, is the chief item of stage entertainment on the current program of the State-Lake theater. Fifty singers, dancers and comedians are engaged in the frolic, which runs for a full hour and arouses a yearning among the customers for a return to the good old days when the American people sang such ditties as "A Bicyle Built for Two."

Among the principals are Andy Anderson, who impersonates the legendary Chuck Connors, king of the Bowery, as master of ceremonies; the Wilson Brothers, comedians who wear poliecemen's uniforms; the Mayfield trio, Apache dancers; Georgia Hall, contralto singer, and Mickey Carroll, a juvenile performer who does not seem to be more than four years old. A "beef trust" ballet, composed of eight heavyweight women, is a grotesque feature of the show.

Angna Enters, who neither dances, nor sings, nor talks, is billed for a program in the Blackstone theater next Sunday afternoon. She calls herself a "dance mime," and might also be described as a rhythmic pantomimist and interpreter of exotic character. She will give a second and different program on the following Sunday afternoon, Oct. 28. Her appearances are under the management of Playgoers, Inc., the organization which is now sponsoring "The Pursuit of Happiness" at the Blackstone.

The Old Globe theater at the Fair gave its 1,000th performance yesterday with the 4 p. m. bill of "As You Like It." Thus far more than 350,000 people have attended these short versions of Elizabethan drama.

The principal rôles in the revival of Johann Strauss' operetta, "Die Fledermaus," to be staged in the Civic Opera House Sunday night, Nov. 4, as a benefit, will be sung by Ilse Marvenga, Lucie Westen, George Trabert, and Miga March. Miss Marvenga is well known on the English speaking stage. She came from Germany in 1922 to originate the rôle of Kathie in "The Student Prince." She starred in a revival of Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" in 1930.

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Landis marries Cole Sanborn, fearless young outlaw and suspected train robber, within an hour after meeting him. Their marriage is one in name only in order to fight against their common enemy, Chet Radbourne, powerful boss in the country and owner of Circle 3 T ranch. He has been trying to force Mary to marry him and has been stealing cattle from her Lazy B ranch. Mary is captured and taken to Circle 3 T ranch. Slim Calhoun, a good looking young outlaw in Radbourne's employ, has a run in with Jerry Haskell, Chet's foreman, and leaves Circle 3 T ranch and joins Cole. Cole forces Chet Radbourne to surrender Mary and puts her under the protection of the Peters family in Jonesboro. Radbourne captures Rusty Hunter, one of Cole's trusted men, and a young boy named Morse. After giving Art Simmons a note to take to Mary in case anything happens to him, Cole captures Radbourne and forces him to make his men surrender Rusty. Then Cole and his men and Radbourne, their prisoner, wait the return of Jerry Haskell. They defend the house against Haskell until he fires it, and forces them to make a rush for the horse corral. Gray Shirt, as they call the hired killer, Faust, gets Simmons to give Cole's note to Mary. Mary sends Sherif Magruder to the rescue. In her anxiety for her husband's safety she rides after them alone. Besieged in the horse corral, Cole offers to settle the matter by a duel between Haskell and himself. Haskell is forced by his men to agree, but instead he leaps on his horse and flees. Haskell meets Mary and, to avenge himself against Cole, tries to make her go with him. She escapes but not before he whips her with his quirt.

INSTALMENT XLVI.

THE GOSSIP.

Mary stood beside her horse, a slender girlish figure, her gaze searching for some one in the huddles of shifting men.

A tall figure strode toward her.

"Cole," she cried, with a sob.

Her hands went out, as might those of a little child who has been lost and frightened and at last has found safety. Sanborn took them in his, looked into her haggard eyes, and drew his wife close.

Mary clung to him, much as a frightened infant does to its mother, fearful that some evil fate might still tear them apart. She was trembling like an aspen leaf in the breeze.

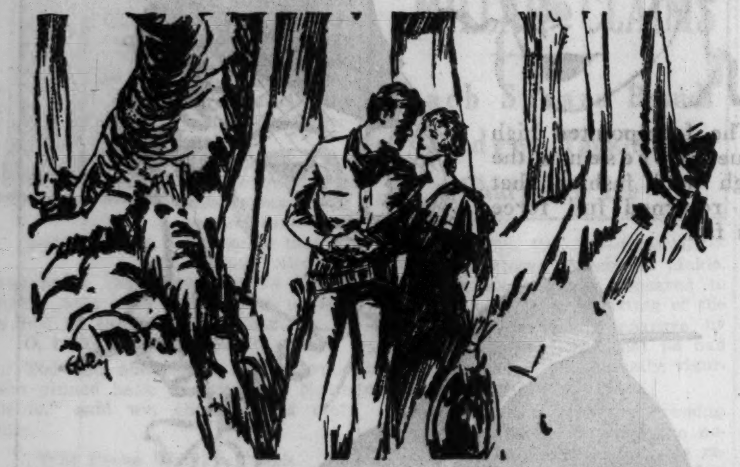
"I've been so afraid," she wailed. "Ever since I knew you had come here. I had to ride up. I thought—I didn't know——"

A well of joy surged up in Cole and for a moment choked him. He was a hard man, brought up in the outdoor frontier school of stoicism where strong men learn to ride their emotions with a tight rein. Imperturbably he had gone his own way, regardless of the approval of others. But he knew he could never be hard with her. His love for her had made some kind of chemical change in his being. It had affected profoundly his relations with his fellows. He was no longer playing a lone hand.

After the turbulent years he had been swept by strong currents into charted waters peaceful and serene. Fate had been driving him to happiness. This was far better than he had deserved, better than he had dared hope.

"It's all right," he said. "Everything—at last."

Under the stars they moved to the live oak which sheltered the blacksmith shop where the Circle 3 T did its horseshoeing. The weariness had fallen from her. She walked with the rhythmic grace of happy youth in a world wonderful. Cole was a lover, and her beauty and vitality stabbed him. It seemed to him that God spoke through her rapturous bloom.



Under the stars they moved to the live oaks that sheltered the shop.

"I didn't mean it to be this way," she said, making proud confession. "I was to take everything and give nothing. You ought to despise me." She laughed a little, ruefully but happily, wondering at her emotion. Because a man walked by her side the world had been reborn. "I thought some day I would marry a nice safe man, and we would do the proper things in the proper way. And instead—I get you. Would you call yourself safe and tame?"

Looking at him, so strong and forceful, an arresting and exciting personality, Mary smiled at her own question. Anything but safe, anything but tame. Life would be a risk, if she tried to match her steps with his. But it came to her, with a glowing warmth that swept through her, the certainty that one could not live in any reality except courageously. To decline danger was to reject life.

"Are you so set on doing the proper things in the proper way?" he asked, with fond derision. "You, who married the bogy man of this part of the country the first hour you met him?"

She answered that with a low, fullthroated laugh of happiness. He was kissing her with a keen edged hunger that stirred within her a clamor of the blood.

It was then she made a discovery.

"You're wounded."

"Nothing serious. A scratch. Some have been killed, others badly hurt. I have been lucky."

"But you must have it dressed by the doctor. Perhaps . . . one never knows about wounds. Infection. You don't know it isn't serious. And you must go to bed."

"The doctor will be busy for a while looking after those really hurt bad. He'll get round to me then. Don't you worry, honey. Pete Daggett washed this scratch and tied it up for me. Doc Burns couldn't have done any better. Out in this country so many buckaroos get arms and legs busted we all learn to be doctors."

None the less she took him back to the bunkhouse and had Dr. Burns look at the wound and dress it again. Cole submitted, a little sheepishly, with a whimsical smile. For the rest of his life he would be shepherded and mothered. He had given up his freedom and gone into captivity.

"Happier now?" Cole asked her aftre Dr. Burns had finished.

"Much. You don't take any care of yourself. You ought to go to bed, but I don't suppose I can get you to do that."

"Got too much to do just now. I'll get round to that after a while. In an hour or so we can start for Jonesboro."

He put an arm round her shoulder after they had left the hospital.

Mary winced. The pressure of her dress upon the wheals left by the quirt made the throbbing pain fiercer. In spite of herself she wriggled her body a little to shift the embrace. She dared do no more. Cole must never know what she had endured. Already she had made one mistake and had tried to rectify it. To the men who had found her sobbing in the desert she had let out the truth, but almost at once had asked them not to tell. They would talk about it among themselves of course. It would be gossiped about at every ranch for fifty miles. But since the parties concerned are the last to hear such stories she hoped that knowledge of the indignity would never come to her husband.

"I've got to go back now and help Dr. Burns," she said.

"Yes," he agreed, smiling warmly at her. "And soon as we can we'll take the trail to—Paradise."

She nodded, eyes gleaming. "That's a lovely name for an ugly little town like Jonesboro. Maybe Heaven hasn't any streets of gold. Maybe it is just any place where you and I are together."

With that she ran back into the bunkhouse and left him.

Gray Shirt drew Slim to one side. "Listen, fellow. There's something yore friend Sanborn doesn't know yet, and when he does know it he will see red. That cuss Haskell met up with Mrs. Sanborn down the road a ways and quirted her."

"He—what?"

Slim stared at the man incredulously.

Faust nodded. "Like I said. Seems he tried to take her with him. She cut him across the face and lit out. When he caught her he took the quirt and lashed her. The fool must have been crazy."

The eyes of the black haired Texan blazed. "Crazy or not, Cole will take after him and kill him."

"I've got another notion," Faust said. "Cole is wounded. I don't know how bad. That little girl of his will be worried sick if he takes off after Haskell now. You and I both owe that yellow coyote something. What say we get Magruder to deputize us to go after him? There seems no manner of doubt but that these U. S. deputy marshals have got it on him that be bossed that job of train robbing. If we find Haskell we'll drag him back to be hanged."

"You've got my company," Slim said promptly.

"How about that head you've got bandaged? I don't want any invalids with me."

"A scratch. We'd better see Magruder right off. Before Cole finds out what Haskell did to his wife."

In every large company there is an important fool who feels it his duty to spread news that will make trouble. One of them went to Cole now to express sympathy. He took it for granted that Mrs. Sanborn had told her husband what Haskell had done to her.

"That wolf ought to be shot—treating a woman the way he did your wife," the man said.

Cole looked at him, sized him up, and dismissed the fellow with the first casual remark that came to mind.

"Talk is cheap."

The man was disconcerted. "Sure. All I meant, for a skunk like that to lay hands on a good woman——"

"Lay hands on her?"

Cole's body stiffened and his eyes froze.

"Why, he tried to make her go with him, didn't he?"

"Did he?"

Noted Founder of Nurse Group Will Talk Here

Mrs. Breckinridge to Tell of Frontier Service.

vited between 4 and 7 o'clock to the Hymans' apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive.

Miss Cynthia Wilson, the new president of the Emerson house board; Mrs. Niblack Thorne, and Miss Lydia Swift are among the Emerson house members who are taking guests to dine and dance at the College inn in the Hotel Sherman tonight where the results of a contest that has been running this summer to benefit the settlement will be made known.

The board will give a tea next Thursday at the Casino for the provisional members. There will be a meeting the same day to decide the details of the annual Emerson house benefit party which will be held in January.

Woman's Athletic Club Dance Series.

Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey, Mrs. John J. Schreiner [Mary MacCaughey], Mrs. David Bremner, Mrs. Harry Drake [Alice Bremner], Mrs. Henry Veeder, Mrs. Frederic d'Aix, Mrs. Roy Keith, Mrs. Robert B. Cushing, Mrs. David Dunbar, and Miss Nettie Baumann are among those who have made reservations for the first Thursday night dinner-dance of the fall at the Woman's Athletic club tonight. Sammy at the piano is an added attraction to these informal parties, which were so popular last spring.

Twenty of the debutantes and their escorts will dine tomorrow night as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey at a party they are giving for Miss Gwendolyn Bowen, debutante daughter of the junior Joseph T. Bowens. The Harveys' unmarried son, Daggett, will act as host at the party, for his father and mother are going to another dinner party, one of dozens that will precede the premiere of "One Night of Love."

Young Mr. Harvey and his guests all will go to the Chicago theater after dinner, too, to see the new motion picture in which the Metropolitan star, Grace Moore, has scored such a sensational success. The mezzanine of the theater after 9:30 tonight will be filled with a fashionable audience, for literally "every one" is planning to be there.

New Orient Society to Elect Officers.

Mrs. Edward Warren Everett, who returned not long ago from a year in Japan, will talk before the members of the New Orient Society of America tomorrow at the annual meeting at noon at the Arts club. Admiral Mark L. Bristol of Washington, D. C., and Prof. Martin Sprengling of the Oriental institute, University of Chicago, are the candidates for president and vice president, respectively. Two directors will be elected to fill the places of Dr. Berthold Laufer and Dr. Edward Hume.

At a board meeting and tea of the Red, White, and Blue club this afternoon at Mrs. Temple McFayden's apartment at 55 East Elm street plans will be discussed for the benefit supper-dance the club is to have the evening of Nov. 1 in the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel. Sally Rand of fan dance fame, who is to give a performance gratis at the party, will be a guest at the tea.

News of Fall Trips, Vacations.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King is leaving today to join Mr. King in Santa Barbara, where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. Freeman Hinckley is in town for a brief stay before returning to her Brookline, Mass., home, where she will spend the winter. She has been with Mrs. John Adams Chapman, but today she is moving into her own apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive, which the Harvey Firestones occupied all summer.

The Bernard J. Mullaneys are among those enjoying autumn vacations. They are on a fortnight's motor trip through Kentucky and the Ozark mountains, and will not be back in Chicago until the end of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Seaverns will be leaving early next month for their winter home in Florida. They just returned recently to Lake Forest from their summer place near Eagle River, Wis., so their stay in Lake Forest is to be quite brief.

Mrs. Louise Rehm and her children, Roxanne La Roche and Charles La Roche, have gone to Pasadena for the winter. Mrs. Rehm's mother, Mrs. Frank Rehm, plans to remain at her home in Lake Geneva most of the winter.

Hales Returning from Japan.

What a lot of interesting experiences Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale will have to relate this week, for they just returned Sunday to their Winnetka home from a trip across the Pacific to Japan. They had the excitement of landing in Tokio simultaneously with the typhoon and tidal wave that destroyed a part of the oriental country. The Hales were accompanied on their trip by their two small daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair have leased their apartment at 70 Cedar street for the next three months to Mrs. Frank Stout, and the Blairs have moved to the Whitehall.

Moving vans are busy in May and again in October, and some of those who are keeping them busy this month are the C. Ross Cuthberts [Beatrice Kirk], who moved from Lake Forest to an apartment on East Walton place, and the Leonard M. Princes, who have moved from the city to a house at 797 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy are settling an apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive—they were at 900 Michigan last winter—after a summer in Lake Forest. Mrs. Cudahy is in New York now, but will be at home tomorrow or Saturday.

The Morris Leidy Johnstons, their debutante niece, Miss Ethel Johnston, and her brother, Hulburd Johnston, and sister and brother-in-law, the Conway H. Olmsteds, have all moved back to their respective domiciles in town after a summer in Lake Forest. The Chauncey B. Borlands and their debutante daughter, Miss Martha Borland, and Miss Harriet Borland are at home after a summer in the east.

Mrs. Robert G. McGann is installed in an apartment at the Drake hotel, where Mr. McGann, who is in the east now, will join her at the end of a week. They will be here for three months and then may return to California.

The John McLaren Simpsons will be moving from Lake Bluff into the Howard F. Gillettes' Astor street apartment on Nov. 1 and Mr. and Mrs. Gillette will go over to the Ambassador for the winter. Howard Gillette Jr., a senior at Harvard, is to serve as an usher on Nov. 8 at the wedding of Charles S. Sargent Jr., son of Charles S. Sargent of Cedarhurst, L. I., and Miss Bridget McBurney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Raymond Noyes of East Islip, L. I., which will take place at St. Mark's church, East Islip. Dr. William G. Thayer, former headmaster of St. Mark's school, will officiate. Mrs. Gillette has just returned from a gay round of visits in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis will move into town Nov. 1, too, with their children, from their Lake Forest house. Mrs. Cabot Brown, Mrs. Aldis' sister, returned to San Francisco Saturday after a brief visit here with Mrs. Aldis and another sister, Mrs. Luther S. Hammond Jr., who is in a sanitarium at Naperville, to remain until Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark [Inez Cunningham] are moving into town today from Geneva, where they spent the summer. They have taken an apartment at 237 East Delaware place.

Mrs. John E. Dana Here to See Fair.

Mrs. John E. Dana of Washington, D. C., and Palm Beach, who has many friends in Chicago, is here at the Ambassador for a week, principally to see the Fair.

John B. Ryerson, who has spent a couple of weeks here with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Bischof, was the guest of Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, his aunt, in Lake Forest over the week-end. He returned to the Bischofs' yesterday for another day or two before returning to Cooperstown, N. Y., where he lives.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSE.

One of the first things noted in a blouse is the neckline, and a scarf, like the one in this model, can be most flattering. This blouse can be worn as an over-blouse or as a tuck-in style. Duvetyns, foulard prints, wool challis in bright, plain colors, and silk crêpes are smart fabrics for practical day wear. For afternoon, metallics, satin crêpe, and velvet are favorites.

The pattern, No. 3104, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

WEDDINGS

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Marie Louise Paxton, daughter of Edwin J. Paxton of Paducah, Ky., and Michael Edward White Jr. of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Edward White of Milwaukee, yesterday morning in St. Francis de Sales church, Paducah. Mr. White and his bride will reside in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rosenberg of St. Louis announce the approaching marriage of their daughter Dorothy to Harold M. Bloch, son of A. L. Bloch of Chicago, which will take place Sunday at the Park Plaza hotel in St. Louis.

Menus for Fall Days Promote the Pot Roast

Must Be Brown, Juicy, and with Savory Gravy.

"Two Mouth to Feed," a booklet containing recipes and suggestions for cooking for two, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

With the coming of the crisp fall days, the homemaker's thoughts turn to cool weather favorites, and right up at the head of the list are pot roasts and some of the other more leisurely cooked meat dishes.

A pot roast is a chunky piece of beef or veal cooked in a covered pan—on top of the stove, if you will; in the oven, if you'd rather. It is not where but how you cook a piece of meat that makes a pot roast. The meat selected for a beef pot roast may come from the chuck, or from the rump, or the round. A veal pot roast may be from the shoulder or the leg.

A pot roast may be a glad or a sorry dish. It depends on the cook. Tender, juicy, and brown, with rich, savory gravy, is the way it should be, and the way to accomplish that end is simple.

Brown the meat on all sides in hot fat, after sprinkling with flour. Add salt and pepper and any other desired seasoning, a little; O, exceedingly little water. Then cover closely and cook slowly until the meat is tender. An average sized pot roast will require about three and one-half hours. It may be necessary to add more water from time to time, as that in the kettle cooks out, but let it be a little many times if necessary, not a lot just once. Too much moisture will "wash off" the nice brown color. Let the pot roast tell you when it needs more water. It will sizzle when the water is all cooked out. Turn the meat now and again so that it will cook evenly.

Seasonings add variety to pot roasts so that the next may be different from the last. A bit of bayleaf is a happy thought. And the masculine side of the family will vote for horseradish. Instead of adding any liquid, pour a small bottle of prepared horseradish over the meat. The flavor is delicious and the gravy will really be a horseradish sause. Onions and carrots are good old stand-bys. Dried apricots or prunes are a bit more unusual.

Veal pot roast may be served with broad noodles, boiled, and then mixed with the pan gravy. Sour cream instead of water as the liquid in cooking veal pot roasts is the last word in flavors.

Larded Pot Roast.

4 pound larded pot roast.
Salt and pepper.

Larded pot roasts may be made from the chuck, rump, or the round. Brown the meat well in a kettle containing fat. Season with salt and pepper. Add a small amount of hot water, cover the kettle, and reduce the heat so that the meat will cook slowly until done, about 3 hours. To make a tasty gravy add the following ingredients to the liquor on the meat:

Leaves of 1 stalk celery.
½ gingersnap.
¼ cup sour cream.
1 tablespoon catsup.
4 tablespoons caramelized sugar.
Pepper, paprika, and salt to taste.

When the gravy material has again come to a boil, add enough flour, which has been smoothed with cold water, to make a thick gravy, and cook 15 to 20 minutes.

Pot Roast with Prunes.

3 to 4 pounds chuck or rump pot roast.
3 tablespoons lard.
⅓ pound dry prunes, soaked.
[illegible] onions, sliced.
4 whole cloves.
1 cup cider.
1 cup water.
Salt and pepper.

Brown the meat on all sides in hot lard. Add onions, and when the meat and onions are both browned, add the soaked prunes, cloves, salt, pepper, water, and cider. Reduce the temperature, cover, and let simmer slowly, adding more water from time to time if necessary. Serve with potato pancakes or buttered noodles.

If cider is not available, diluted vinegar may be used.

First See These Three Carson Coats

at $69.75

They've Qualified for This Event by Fashion, Fur, and Fabric as Well as Low Price!

Every one lives up to this season's ruling for slim, straight lines and smooth, close-fitting shoulders. Every one is fashioned of the new jacquard weave fabric; and each has chosen one of the foremost furs of the season—fox, beaver, and caracul.

BLUE dyed red fox frames your face most flatteringly—spreading into wide lapels in front and fitting snug and close in back. Black, brown, green or carioca. 12 to 20. $69.75.

2.

GLOSSY caracul ripples into a graceful jabot collar on this all black coat. The muff repeats the ripple, and has a zip pocket which acts as a purse. 12 to 20. It is priced at $69.75.

3.

DARK lustrous beaver forms a double upstanding collar on this slim belted coat which comes in brown and green. Note the interesting cuff detail. Sizes 12 to 20. Priced at $69.75.

Misses' Moderate Price Coats, Fourth Floor.

QUALITY FROM TOP-TO-TOE, AND SMART, TOO

Two Favorite Styles in Service Silk Hosiery

78c and 95c pair

More and more smart women are turning to Carson's Service Silk Hosiery for everyday wear because Carson's Service Silk Hosiery has a reputation for style and wear. We're offering two well known styles at a very special price for State Street Day.

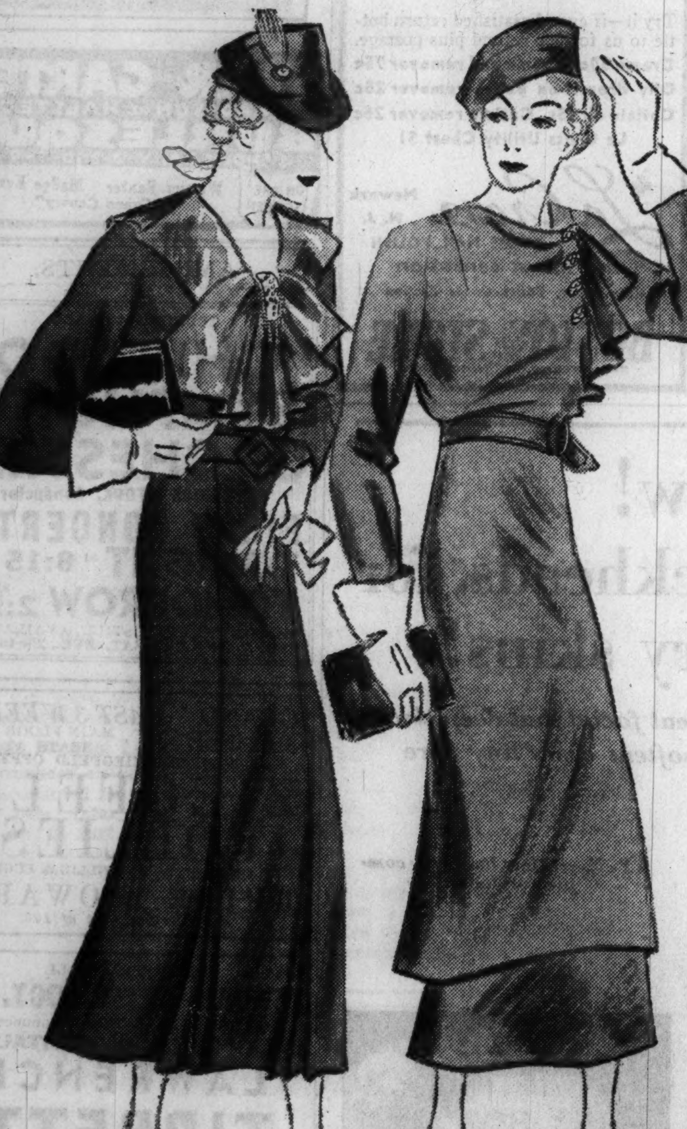
Service weight silk hosiery with flexible cotton garter tops and soles, 78c pair. Silk-to-top service weight silk hosiery, reinforced with lisle on the inside, and at the toes, heels, and soles, 95c pair. Darker fall shades in both styles.

If You Prefer Sheer Hosiery, a State Street Special in "Ringless" Chiffon, 88c Pair

Hosiery, First Floor.

THE WEAVE'S THE THING! MATELASSE AND ALPACA

$17.75



Alpaca weave crepe, a material that has become all-important this season, fashions this slender frock, with its youthful moire taffeta collar and big bow to match. There's a prystal clip at the neck. Black, navy, green; rust with brown. 35½ to 43½.

Matelasse crepe, one of the outstanding fabrics of the season, fashions the smart tunic frock. It has a becoming side-closing neckline with a frill and glittery buttons. Green, black, rust, blackberry. 36 to 42.

Women's Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

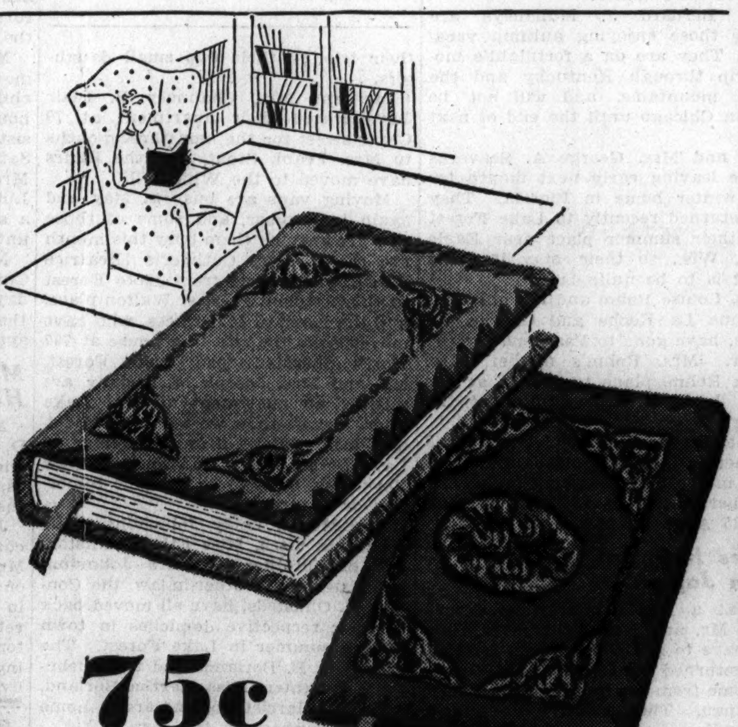
A super special, this traveling or sports bag. One zip, and it's open. No wonder it is a "best seller" with men for sports or traveling. It's a full-cut topgrain cowhide bag that will hold almost everything. Note the stitched handles, the wood bottom, the Irish linen lining, and the two pockets. Black or brown. Size 18 or 20 inches.

Luggage, First Floor, Wabash.



75c

Sale of leather book covers! Just the kind of leather book covers you bring back from Europe for envious friends to admire. They come from Italy, and Italy is famous for fine leather. Hand-tooled, if you please, with laced edges and colored flowered designs. Brown, blue, green, and tan. Better buy one for yourself, and tuck several away for Christmas.

BEARS BEAT PACKERS IN 4TH QUARTER, 10-6

PURDUE FORGETS DEFEATS; SEES SUCCESS IN BIG TEN

HOPE TO REGAIN WINNING WAYS IN BADGER GAME

Cheerful Despite Big Ailing List.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 17.—Forget it if you are visualizing a sad Purdue. Rice and Notre Dame, recent conquerors of the gold and black, are mighty fine institutions and their football boys are just dandy athletes and sportsmen, but after all they are not in the Big Ten, and a Big Ten championship is as usual the goal of the Boilermakers.

NOBLE KIZER.

Coach Noble Kizer's greeting to this sympathetic author may give you some idea as to how folks feel hereabouts, the attitude of the Boilermaker boss man being more or less typical of the general feeling.

"O, hello!" said Mr. Kizer.

"Too bad about you getting your ears pinned back by Rice and Notre Dame," said we, cheerily and tactfully.

Will Prove They're Tough.

"Think nothing of it," said Mr. Kizer. "Those matters were just what we needed to make us fight Wisconsin Saturday. Maybe we were a little bit smug or something. But now we're like the Irishman you hear about in the anecdotes—the more we get knocked down the better fighters we think we are.

"Two knockdowns in a row, however, are enough to serve the purposes of the comparison, and now we not only think we are tough, but are anxious to prove it Saturday."

And try as we would, we could not get the Boilermaker coach to sob in the approved fashion of most Big Ten football directors. We were determined to hear a few moans, however, and we succeeded by calling on Robert Woodworth, Purdue's astute statistician, publicist, and a great hospital fan during football season.

Data Rich in Information.

For many years it has been our custom on our first meeting with Mr. Woodworth each fall to encourage him to enumerate his thoughts. At first blush, especially when a defeat has preceded our visit, the log of Mr. Woodworth's cerebrum seems something of a hodgepodge, but careful analysis inevitably has shown his data rich in information about Purdue football. We consider the following thoughts very good and informative, but please don't worry about unity and coherence:

Purdue may have been handed a couple of defeats in the current season, but the boys are far from licked. Injuries have hit the Boilermakers at vital spots, but even so their losses can be accounted for in great part by lax tackling and blocking, momentary letups that are more or less typical of an inexperienced team.

That Hospital List.

Duane Purvis [star half back] caught his cleat in turf while kicking Monday before season opened and pulled muscles above his right ankle. Appeared not at all against Rice and less than half against Notre Dame. Barring unexpected recovery, will not appear against the Badgers.

Dick Sandefur [full back], a doubly broken nose. Broken two days before Notre Dame, and smashed again in game.

Jim Carter [half back] twisted knee, but has been going great guns, and will be in there against Wisconsin.

Blanked Once in 50 Games.

Frank Haas, only senior veteran end. Shoulder hurt early in season. Saw few minutes service against Notre

FORCED TO PLAY DESPITE INJURY, MILLAR CLAIMS

Coach Spears Brands Badger Tackle's Charges a Lie

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Bill Millar, veteran Wisconsin tackle, and Coach Doc Spears appeared to have come to a definite parting of the ways tonight, following charges by Millar in an open letter that he had been mistreated and an equally vigorous denial by Spears.

Millar walked out of the dressing room Monday afternoon when he noticed he had been demoted to the reserve squad. In an open letter today he charged that he had been forced to scrimmage despite severe injuries. Parts of the letter follow:

"Early in the season I received an injury to my right leg which necessitated my being in the university infirmary for five days. After much persuasion I obtained my release by telling the doctors I would not play football for at least a week.

"Two days later I reported for football and was immediately put into scrimmage. Upon being kicked again on the injured leg, I talked to Coach Spears and was told to play football or turn in my suit.

"At the present time the leg injury has not fully healed, and other injuries to my back and arm are still troublesome. I wish to deny that I quit football because I was demoted."

In answer to the charges, Coach Spears said, "It's a lie. What I did tell Millar was to report for practice or turn in his suit. I never made him scrimmage when he was injured severely.

"Millar did not scrimmage for about 10 days after he suffered a leg injury. He injured his back in the freshman game Sept. 29, and we sent him over to have it X-rayed. It proved to be a muscle strain. I asked him before the Marquette game if he thought he could play and he said he did."

Capt. Jack Bender and the players supported Coach Spears this afternoon.

"Millar never was picked on, and I don't think his loss will weaken the team a bit," Bender said.

Meantime the Badgers went through a light but snappy drill this afternoon in preparation for the Purdue game Saturday.

George Dehnert, who scored two of the touchdowns against South Dakota State from a full back position, was being tried at quarter back, with Bill Parrott going to the reserves as a full back.

INDIANA-CHICAGO GAME PROMISES OFFENSIVE DUEL

Both Use Spectacular Style of Attack.

The "avenging" Maroons of 1934, who have settled at least one score, with Michigan, won't be possessed of any such holy zeal of retribution when they meet Indiana at Stagg field Saturday. Instead, they'll have to depend for inspiration of the historical sort on the weight of tradition.

Only twice since 1902, when Chicago first met Indiana, have the Hoosiers won. The Maroons have won 19 times, and have piled up a point advantage of 483 to 104. These figures disregard the round-robin half game played for charity after the regular season of 1931, which went to Indiana, 6 to 0. The regular game that year was won by Indiana, 32 to 6. In 1932, Coach Stagg's last year at the Midway, Chicago won its only Big Ten game at the expense of the Crimson team. Last year the teams tied, 7 to 7, when Indiana scored early on a long pass and the Maroons counted on a march.

Action Is Promised.

The Chicago and Indiana teams which take the field this week will differ from most of their predecessors, however. Both lean to the spectacular, Indiana with its five man back field and tricky passing offense, and Chicago with two fancy ball carriers in Jay Berwanger and Ned Bartlett. The two coaches, Bo McMillin and Clark Shaughnessy, stress offense, in the best tradition of the south, from which both came to the Big Ten.

Capt. Ell Patterson of the Maroons, who is still somewhat dizzy from the effects of a tackle he made early in the Michigan game, returned to the practice field yesterday but did not participate.

Reserves Get Attention.

The Maroons reverted to offense during the afternoon's business after two days of defensive operations and the varsity and reserves ran through short scrimmages against freshmen.

Improvements in Jay Berwanger's punting has heartened Chicago partisans. The Dubuque boy averaged 39 yards against Michigan despite one squib.

McMILLIN SHIFTS HOOSIERS.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Bo McMillin, Indiana coach, today tried several experiments with his five man back field, shifting Tatum, speedy reserve center, to one of the half back positions and giving Keck and Burton, blocking full backs, a chance to carry the ball more often. Roe and Hecko, ends, and Stevenson worked in the tackle job formerly held by Vercuski, who is suffering from a leg injury. Ray Fox, quarter back, who has an injured shoulder, showed improvement today and probably will share quarter back duties with Don Yoder against Chicago Saturday.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

CHARLES GOODWIN of West Virginia is considered one of the best ends in the east and the nearest thing to Dizzy Dean in football. . . . Greasy Neale, his first coach at West Virginia, disciplined Goodwin in his freshman year by making him walk around the campus for a week carrying a sign reading: "I'm cocky." . . . The next week Goodwin carried another sign of his own design reading: "I'm still cocky." . . . Mrs. Robert Zuppke never discusses football with the Illinois coach during season. . . . She gets all her information about the team from newspapers or friends. . . . Joe Cronin and Rick Ferrell celebrated their 28th birthdays this week. . . . Gene Sarazen's specially made shoes cost $[illegible] and he has 30 pairs. . . . Princeton's entire football coaching staf comes from the Big Ten. . . . Fritz Crisler and Campbell Dickson are from Chicago, Earl Martineau from Minnesota, and Tad Wieman from Michigan. . . . Maybe that's why Princeton has been dominating eastern football of late. . . .

FRITZ CRISLER.

RICK FERRELL.

Bill Harley, manager of the Mills semi-pro team, used ten dozen baseballs in the game Sunday when the Dean brothers pitched his club to victory over the Kansas City Monarchs. . . . Mike Gonzales, coach of the Cardinals, accompanied the St. Louis pitchers on their barnstorming tour. . . . Eddie Erdalatz, end on the St. Mary eleven which plays Fordham Saturday, is an accomplished artist and pantomimist, champion swimmer, basketball guard, baseball player, and varsity boxer. . . . In his spare time he serves as staf cartoonist for the campus weekly. . . . Thirty-three per cent of the 223 players in the National Professional Football league are from the middle west. . . . There are only three players in the organization without collegiate background, Mose Kelsch and Harp Vaughn of Pittsburgh and Dick Lackman of Philadelphia. . . . The list does not include John Doehring, the Bears' southpaw passer, who is a holdout. . . .

The California athletic commission ranks young Peter Jackson, colored, as the No. 1 challenger for Barney Ross' lightweight title. . . . The Londos-Dean wrestling match in Los Angeles, which first was reported to have drawn more than 38,000, actually had less than 28,000 and the receipts were $42,575, less than half the gate for the Londos-Lewis match at Wrigley field Sept. 20. . . . Notre Dame players said after last Saturday's game Duane Purvis turned so fast that Purdue's spinner plays were without deception and easy to diagnose. . . . Northwestern has a freshman full back who is recalling memories of Tiny Lewis. . . . He is Fred Vanzo, 225 pounds, from Clinton, Ind. . . . The day before the Ohio State game the Illinois ticket office sold twice as many tickets for the encounter with the Army, Nov. 3, as for the Buckeye engagement. . . . The big news of the football season will come when Jack Manders of the Bears misses a place kick. . . .

Purdue and Northwestern may as well blame this department if they have unsuccessful football seasons. . . . Noble Kizer and Dick Hanley reached peak condition in August—the night of the Bears-All-Star game. . . . As King Levinsky completed a "dese, dem and dose" radio broadcast in Milwaukee recently he couldn't resist his favorite gag: "Pardon my southern accent." . . . Eddie McGroarty, sophomore center at Marquette, is the best punter on the squad, but isn't being used in that capacity because of his position. . . . Bo McMillin, Indiana football coach, is a natural optimist. . . . After his team had won from Ohio university he said: "That's one more game than we expected to win all season." . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Red Grange scored five touchdowns as Illinois defeated Michigan, 39 to 14. . . . Notre Dame's powerful running attack defeated the Army, 13 to 7. . . . Wisconsin tied Minnesota, 7 to 7. . . . Purdue defeated Northwestern, 7 to 3. . . . Chicago beat Indiana, 23 to 0. . . . Yale and Dartmouth battled to 14 to 14 tie. . . . Wise Counsellor won the fourth international race at Laurel from Epinard.

GOPHERS LEAVE FOR PITT TODAY ON TITLE QUEST

End Drill with Long Scrimmage.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Five full teams of Minnesota football players ran through a spirited workout today, their last drill before the Gophers leave for Pittsburgh tomorrow to battle the Pitt Panthers on Saturday in a game which may decide the national collegiate football championship.

If there was any incentive needed to spur on the Gophers tomorrow's trip provided it. Coach Bierman kept the names of the squad secret to arouse those taking things a bit too lightly.

The Gophers will run through a workout tomorrow morning and entrain at noon. The band and student body will gather at the station to give the squad a sendoff.

The special train will arrive in Chicago at 10:20 tomorrow night. A stop will be made at Youngstown, O., at 8:15 Friday morning, and the team will arrive at Pittsburgh at 9:30 o'clock. It will go by buses to Shadyside academy and return there after a workout in Pitt stadium Friday afternoon.

A scrimmage was held today as Bierman sought to pick out the remaining members of his squad. Twenty-nine men had been selected, but he was in doubt about the four other men to be taken.

PITT BEARS DOWN.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Coach Jock Sutherland sent the Pitt football squad through another hard drill today in preparation for the Minnesota game Saturday.

It was reported that Sutherland is working the squad harder for the Gophers than he did for Southern California last week.

Mike Nicksick, left half back, was back in the lineup tonight. He was injured in Saturday's game and there was some uncertainty whether he would be in shape.

Much time is being devoted to substitute linemen, coaches asserting they'll probably be needed to help repulse the power of Minnesota.

THROW LATERAL PASSES AND WIN A CHAMPIONSHIP

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The lateral pass remains the one offensive weapon in football which offers the greatest possibility of development. Some few teams have demonstrated the advantages of a lateral pass beyond the line of scrimmage from a forward pass play. In recent years, the forward-lateral has had its greatest number of followers in the south.

Illinois, under the direction of Coach Zuppke, and the Chicago Bears, under Ralph Jones and later under George Halas, have done more with lateral passes behind the line of scrimmage than other teams in college and professional football.

When the football code was changed to declare a fumbled lateral pass dead at the point of recovery, if recovered by the defense, the change was intended to encourage use of lateral pass plays. So far the coaches have not taken advantage of the change to the extent it was intended.

Since the fundamental asset for any offense is blocking, just as the fundamental for defense is tackling, many coaches never have opportunity to include lateral passes in the repertoire of plays for their teams. Their time is devoted to improvement of blocking, so that straight line plays, end runs, reverses, and other accepted forms of attack can be made successful.

Many coaches also believe that too great a stress on passing, forward and laterally, tends to make players indifferent in their blocking. This has been most noticeable in the southwest, where attack has centered on passing until it is unusual for a team to have a running and plunging offense which can march from mid-field to the goal line.

If the threat of running plays or plunges is lessened the defense naturally can cope with passes better than if it is forced to divide its attention between passes and the ball carriers. An example is the present Northwestern eleven.

In George Potter, Northwestern has an exceptional passer. The receivers are above the average. Yet, against major opponents, who recognize the Wildcats' indifferent running and plunging, the passes will not succeed as well as if they were backed with a continual threat from the ball carriers.

Iowa, after the first quarter, concentrated on stopping Northwestern passes. In the first period the Wildcats scored by passing, but when Iowa changed its defense to protect primarily against passes, and Northwestern couldn't counter with a running attack, the issue was decided.

Probably the ideal defense is a six man line, backed by a center and full back who can go into the line as the runners or plungers carry the ball, but who also are in position to cover their immediate territory or assigned men for forward passes. This has been Michigan's system of defense, but it can be used only when the guards and tackles are superlative players. Otherwise these defensive men need help.

The lateral pass attack, either behind the line of scrimmage, or beyond, depends on experienced players. This is why such tactics fit professional football. Illinois has found the lateral pass profitable because Zuppke isn't afraid to use it and his players have acquired confidence from him. Also, Lindberg and Beynon, exceptional passers, are ideal for this style.

One use of the lateral pass, which college teams have not adopted at all, is the "improvised" lateral. By this we mean that the runner in the open field, if faced by a single tackler, throws the ball laterally or behind him to any team mate in position to receive such a pass.

Obviously this play rests entirely on the initiative of the ball carrier. And most coaches discourage their players from attempting such a play as too hazardous. The penalty for a fumble is loss of the ball. Sometimes the lateral pass is accidentally thrown forward. In this event the ball is brought back to the point of the previous down and the play counts as one down.

FEATHERS RUNS FIFTEEN YARDS FOR TOUCHDOWN

Manders' Field Goal Clinches Victory.

BY CHARLES NEVADA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 17.—The Chicago Bears, champions of the National Professional Football league, tonight made it six straight over the Green Bay Packers since 1932 by winning, 10 to 6, in an exhibition game before eight thousand.

JACK MANDERS.

The victory was the result of Jack Manders' field goal and a touchdown sprint by Beattie Feathers, both in the last quarter. Green Bay scored in the last two minutes with a forward pass attack.

A fumble led to the Bears' first score, Bob Monnett dropping a punt by Keith Molesworth. Ted Rosequist recovered for Chicago on the Packers' 21 yard line. After two line plays yielded very little, Manders dropped back to the 26 yard line and made a placement kick from a slight angle and against the wind.

Green Bay Starts Passing.

A fumble also figured in the Bears' touchdown. This time Clark Hinkle let the ball fall from his hands on fourth down. The Bears were given the ball on Green Bay's 19 yard line. After Corbett moved the ball to the 15 yard line in one try, Feathers slashed off tackle for the score. Manders added the extra point with a place kick.

Green Bay's score followed. Hinkle returned the next kickoff to his 36 yard line. Then Arnie Herber started shooting passes all over the field. Three were completed, together with a fine run by the same player, for four first downs. This advanced the ball to the one foot line, from where Joe Laws went around his end to score. Hank Bruder's kick for the extra point was blocked.

Manders Misses One.

The Bears failed to take advantage of a scoring opportunity in the second quarter. After taking the ball on Green Bay's 36 yard line following a punt by Hinkle, the Chicagoans, led by Feathers and Brumbaugh, made two first downs, which advanced the ball to the 12 yard line. Four attempts by Ronzani and Feathers gained only eight yards and the Bears yielded the ball on the four yard line.

Manders, the kicking specialist, was sent into the game in the last minute of the first half. He tried a field goal from the Green Bay 42 yard line, but it was short.

DETROIT, 24; BOSTON, 0

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Detroit Lions tonight defeated the Boston Redskins, 24 to 0, for their fifth straight National Professional league victory by a shutout score. About 12,000 saw the game.

Leading at the half by virtue of Dutch Clark's 38 yard drop kick in the second quarter, the Lions opened up in the third quarter. In nine plays they drove from their own 4 yard line to a touchdown, and within a few minutes scored another after a march which started with a 30 yard pass, Clark to Ebbing, which put the ball on the Redskins' 25 yard marker.

Boston never seriously threatened. In the first period Cliff Battles' punting kept the ball in Lion territory, but whenever the Redskin backs did reel off a substantial gain the Lion forward wall tightened. Lineup:

Students Demand Ward Be Allowed to Face Georgia

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—A movement designed to force the Michigan coaching staf to use Willis Ward, Negro star, in the Georgia Tech game Saturday appeared to be growing tonight. Petitions demanding that Ward play had 1,500 signatures, it was said, and arrangements were being made for a mass meeting Friday night.

Speakers at the meeting will include Prof. Harold McFarlan of the engineering college; Rev. H. P. Marley, Unitarian minister, and several students. The movement is being sponsored by an organization of radical students.

FISH COMPANY HOOKS LEVINSKY IN SUIT FOR $940

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Lakeside Fish and Oyster company of Chicago shadow boxed its way to a court victory today over King Levinsky, former fish peddler and fighter of that city.

Judge Clement Nye, in the absence of the Kingfish, awarded the company a default judgment for $940 plus interest for alleged business dealings with the heavyweight fighter. The knockout was only technical, since no money was available here to satisfy judgment.

Three Year Rule Costs Drake Team a Half Back

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Drake university athletic council today announced that Chuck Swan of Valley Junction, a half back, will be ineligible for further athletic competition for violation of a Missouri Valley conference rule. Swan, it was revealed, played at Penn college two years before he matriculated at Drake in 1932, thus breaking the three year competition rule.

Seven U. S. Golf Stars on Coast for Australia Trip

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Seven of the country's leading professional golfers gathered here tonight to embark on the S. S. Mariposa for Australia and an exhibition tour. The party included Leo Diegel, Paul Runyan, Harry Cooper, Denny Shute, Ky Laffoon, Craig Wood, Jimmy Thomson.

BETS ON TIGERS FOR SPITE; GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Elaine Morgan of St. Louis, who said she bet on the Detroit Tigers during the world series "just for spite" after a quarrel with a friend who plays for the Cardinals, and then couldn't pay her hotel bill when she lost, was sentenced to serve 90 days in the Detroit House of Correction today.

Recorder's Judge John P. Scallen, who sentenced her, was told that her record showed other arrests for issuing worthless checks and the like.

In the Wake of the News

CHICAGO'S MAROONS.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, I have an unusual request to make. I'd like to report a University of Chicago football game and see in action those surprising young fellows from the middle west and southern California. Don't suppose you've had a request like that since 1927, because of late years most of your staf have felt that going to Stagg field was like a baseball player being sent to the minor leagues.

Anyway, perhaps you didn't know, Arch, that I once attended the University of Chicago. My residence was so short that I never acquired the true alumni afflatus. In fact, I never called it "our team" when the Maroons won and "Stagg's team" when they lost.

As a matter of fact, I didn't learn much, if anything, on the Midway, but that wasn't exactly the university's fault. I took rather peculiar courses. You see, I was trying to work my way through college by doing newspaper work at the same time, so I didn't have much time for study. Being of average intelligence rather than an intellectual giant, I decided it would be fitting to take the same courses as did the football players. You see, in those days there were not so many required subjects, but one could take what he most needed.

And what were those courses? You'd be surprised, Arch, and I am now, except that some people called them "snaps," and the football heroes always were eligible. Well, my courses were Old Norse, Roman law, and botany. Looking back to see of what benefit they were in later life, I recall that my Old Norse never was of much service, even on the northwest side.

That Roman law, however, was a pip. It was very interesting at the time, but the only thing I retained and carried through life was that under the Roman code one couldn't marry his maternal aunt, but I don't remember why. Although very fond of mother's sisters, the idea of marrying one never occurred, so I didn't get much practical benefit out of that course, either.

That leaves only botany. It was hard for me to remember all those Latin names, and I worried about the final ex. Well, the prof., a fine fellow and a gentleman, also had a kind heart. He gave us the questions and said to save classroom time we might prepare our papers at home. He said he'd prefer we didn't consult our text books in writing our answers, but if we were in doubt as to the spelling of any term it would be all right to look it up in the book. Nobody failed to pass.

And did I learn any botany? Sure I did. I learned the term polyphyllous. So in later years, when the little Wakes, knowing I once had studied, or rather "taken" botany at college, asked the name of some flower or shrub, I'd reply, "That's of the polyphyllous family—I don't remember the exact species." That went over big until they studied botany themselves and realized I was just a bluff, then I had to increase their allowances to set myself up right with them again.

However, I didn't intend to write so much about my studies which I didn't study. I might add I also went out once for the football team; but I had my present height of 6 feet and weighed only 148 pounds in the days of 190 pound quarter backs. So, following the first scrimmage, after I had been reassembled, the freshman coach told me I better go out for the debating team. At the time I didn't realize it was sarcasm, so I went out for the debating team, made it, and we lost to the University of Iowa.

O yes, I also was there long enough to join a fraternity, so I'm eligible as a "loyal brother" to contribute shortly after each New Year to the fund to repair the plumbing because the boys forgot to turn off the water when they let the furnace go out and went home for the Christmas holidays so the pipes froze up and burst, with considerable damage also to the living room walls.

So you can understand, Arch, how my heart is surging with loyalty at the renaissance of "our team" and why I'd like to see them play, even if I am only an "ex" on the college records, but a full time eligible alumnus for endowment or scholarship fund drives. Please let me know if any Maroon game is open. Hoping you are the same. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

Three of Four Top Point Getters in Lineup.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Three of the four ranking scorers of the Little Nineteen conference will be in the Millikin lineup which Saturday plays against Illinois Wesleyan in the Titans' homecoming game. Capt. John Heinlein, half back from Chicago, leads conference scorers with four touchdowns. His teammate, Earl Weise of Wyanet, half back, is second among point getters with 19. Carl Burgener, freshman full back from Assumption, is tied for third place with three touchdowns.

Coach Leo Johnson of Millikin has two back fields which are about on a par. Heinlein, Weise, Burgener and Steve Lenich of Salem, freshman quarter back, comprise one back field. The other is composed of Elmer Fawley, senior from Marshall, and Dean Trainer, Blue Mound, both half backs and letter men, and two freshmen, Ralph Allan of Collinsville, quarter back, and Roy Hindman of Salem, full back.

Rolinaitis Kicking Star.

Veterans predominate in the line. Joe Rolinaitis of Nokomis and Paul Lipinski, Mount Olive, are guards who have played for two years regularly. Rolinaitis is Millikin's star kicker. He has kicked seven points after touchdowns in Millikin's two conference games. Fred Christman, junior letter man, and Wilbur Gilbert, one-armed 200 pound freshman from Casey, are the first string tackles. Melroy Ross of Tuscola, a veteran, is an excellent tackle. Loyle Davis of Sullivan and Bill Giraitis from Benld, ends, rate among the best in the conference. The center is Pete Rademacker, a letter man.

Against this array Illinois Wesleyan has probably the two best tackles in the conference, Co-Capts. Tony Blazine of Chicago and Ernie Henry of Benton. Wayne Hawkins of Champaign and Dale McMackin of Bloomington are experienced ends. George Kasovilka of Christopher is the only experienced guard. Veteran backs on the Wesleyan squad include:

Willard Benson of La Salle, quarter back; Jim Velde of Chicago, full back; Frank Leach, Galesburg; Paul Weger, Lawrenceville, and Carl Oestman, Downers Grove, half backs.

The Wesleyan varsity scrimmaged against Millikin plays today, but failed to please Coach Norman Elliott. Scrimmage tomorrow will end work prior to Wesleyan's first home game Saturday.

Injuries Bother Normal.

Injuries continued to jinx the State Normal squad as it prepared for its third conference battle of the year at Eureka college Saturday. Coach Howard Hancock anonunced today that Art Miller, first string tackle from Atlanta, would be out of the Eureka game with a painful side injury, while Lavern Christensen, regular end from Dwight, will probably miss Saturday's contest because of a pulled muscle in his leg.

John Dohm, former Trinity High school star, was shifted from full back on the second string to right end today to fill the vacancy left by Christensen. Ralph Hanson ran at Miller's place at left tackle.

Only three lettermen are expected to start against Eureka. They are Capt. Harold Dennis, guard; Les Murray, quarter back, and Paul Custer, half back. The other eight will be Dohm and Smith, ends; Hanson and Bates, tackles; Moore, guard; Lesnik, center; Stambach, half back, and Aleks, full back.

KNOX AT JACKSONVILLE.

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Illinois college's third Little Nineteen conference opponent of the year, Knox college, will appear here Saturday. Coach Ray Nusspickel is stressing pass defense this week for the Knox captain, Lou Vitale, is a fine receiver.

Illinois college lost to Macomb Teachers last week, 7 to 0, in the last ten seconds of play.

Illinois college has a heavy line this year, led by Abe Deduris, 230 pound tackle. The back field is very light, however, all of the regulars scaling under 165 pounds.

COCKER SPANIELS LEAD ENTRIES IN WESTERN SHOW

The cocker spaniel may become America's most popular dog, it was indicated by the number to be shown in the Western Specialty club's show when entries closed yesterday for the event, which opens Saturday at the Coliseum. More than 130 cockers will enter the judging rings.

Among the cocker spaniel entries are several from the east, including Champion Wilmarland Starlight from the Mardamere kennels, Long Island, N. Y.

Almost as many doberman pinschers have been entered from eastern and western kennels to compete in the various classes for this breed, including obedience and trick exhibitions. The Doberman-Pinscher Club of America is sponsoring this competition.

Next in point of entries are wire and smooth haired fox terriers, Boston bull terriers, and German shepherds.

Seventy-eight springer spaniels, more than have appeared in any show in the last decade, will be judged. Entries from other cities in the springer spaniel show include Champion Chessman's Brown Wisdom, owned by Fred H. Hadley of Buffalo, N. Y.

Among the twelve other breeds entered are great danes, collies, airedales, pomeranians and scotties, making a total of more than 1,500 entries. S. S. Van Dine, well known writer of detective stories, has entered his prize scottie, Heather Reveller of Sporren.

Deans Are All In, but Dizzy Can Still Talk

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Those Dean boys, who are about as silly as a certified check, have finally broken under the strain on their parade of triumph.

"Boy," sighed Dizzy wearily today as he swept into Manhattan with his brother Paul, "if we wasn't Dizzy, we sure are in a whirlwind now!"

They've been on a dead run ever since they conquered the Detroit Tigers four times in the world series. And are they weary?

Runner Steals Home on Diz.

The Dean brothers, abetted by Joe Medwick, played with the Bushwicks, a semi-pro team, and lost to the Black Yankees, 6 to 0, before a crowd of 10,000 at Dexter park tonight.

Dizzy hurled the third, fourth, and fifth innings and then supplanted Brother Paul in right field for two innings. The Yankees got to Dizzy for one run and two hits, one of the hits being a pop triple into the territory patroled by Paul. Catcher Chet Thomas, who got the hit, then stole home, much to the surprise of Dizzy.

Satchel Page, the Yankees' hurler, fanned Dizzy once and struck out Medwick twice. Medwick went hitless. Dizzy suffered further humiliation when the umpire called the first balk of the season on the world series hero.

Paul Must Pass.

Paul has a sore arm and a doctor in Philadelphia told him he mustn't throw a ball for two months. Dizzy is weary right down to his soul.

"When this is over," he said, "ah'm goin' down to Bradenton, Fla., and lock every durn door in mah house. They're goin' to have to shove mah fish into me through a stove pipe."

"Me too," said Paul, though he's going visiting first to Houston, Tex.

But tired, or no, they're the same Dean boys, grinning and happy, voluble, quaint as ever, born showmen—Dizzy doing the talking, brother Paul agreeing.

"Ah'm gittin' to shudder every time ah see a camera," said Diz as the flashlights flared. "Ah'm so sore ah can't bend."

"Me too," said Paul.

"The night we came in from Chicago to Philadelphia in one of them sleeper planes, ah thought mah ears like to break up," continued Dizzy. "Ah come up astandin' hollerin' to let me out at the next stop, and ah woke up the man in the next berth.

"'Shut up yo' mouth,' he yelled at me. 'You done woke me up.'

"'You keep quiet,' ah yelled back at him. 'Ah done bought some of this bird too. Lemme out of here.'"

Dizzy Is Real Pleased.

Dizzy is still chuckling over his series conquests, particularly his twin triumphs of the final day when he made two hits in the seven-run rally in the third and went on to clinch the Cardinal triumph with a shutout.

"Boy, ah had a great time runnin' those bases," he said.

Their tour ends Oct. 23 in Pittsburgh. They don't know how much they'll make or how much they'll ask for pitching for the Cardinals next season.

"It'll be plenty, shore 'nuff," said Dizzy.

"Shore 'nuff," agreed Paul.

And as for one of them being traded, Dizzy says absolutely "no," not for Carl Hubbell of the Giants or anyone else.

"Hubbell told me out in Oklahoma City the other day his arm goes dead after three innings," Diz said. "The Cards won't trade Paul for him."

Would he mind hitting against Paul, if Paul were traded?

"Boy," said Dizzy, with a beam, "ah hit him like ah owned him."

Red Grange's Cousin Bud Can Carry That Ball, Too

Moorefield, Neb., Oct. 17.—(AP)—That Grange scoring habit runs in the family. Bud Harwick, cousin of Red Grange, is a member of the high school football team here this year and has scored eight times in two games.

PLAY NIGHT GAME.

The Maywood Athletic club football team will play the Austin Bears in a night game at the Proviso High school stadium next Wednesday night.

Woods and Waters

By Bob Becker

The migration moon is getting bigger every night in the October sky. It is the moon that sees the migration of countless millions of birds. Although the September moon may properly lay claim to being a migration moon, during October we have the most spectacular march of birds, since this is the month that sees the wild geese, the puddler ducks, the open water ducks, jacksnipe, and other species on the move.

The October moon is the one watched by bird students who want to see waterfowl in flight after dark. We know of few episodes connected with the autumn migration so thrilling as training a telescope on the rising full moon and waiting for flying waterfowl to be silhouetted between you and the big yellow planet. Bird students have been doing this for many years in order to learn more about the habits of migrating birds.

A few years ago we tried this stunt at Williams Bay, Wis., through the courtesy of Prof. Edwin B. Frost, at that time in charge of Yerkes observatory. Prof. Frost had the 12-inch telescope trained on the rising moon and then set so that as the moon rose the telescope followed it automatically. It was unnecessary to touch the instrument during our vigil. An electrical timing device elevated it gradually to keep the moon in line with our eyes.

A skilled observer not only can guess quite accurately regarding the species of birds seen flying across the face of the moon but it also is possible to figure the distance of the bird from the telescope. Although computations of this sort were beyond us since they involved all sorts of high pressure arithmetic, trigonometry, calculus, and the projecting of angles, Prof. Frost took our observations and quickly gave us conclusions without recourse to pencil and paper.

It is surprising how many birds travel by night during their migrations. The jacksnipe is one game bird noted for this method of traveling. Ducks, of course, may fly either by night or by day. The geese also are unafraid to take to the air and fly by day.

Bird fans who want information on some of the most intriguing phases of the migration of birds will find it in THE TRIBUNE's handbook entitled "Birds and Birdhouses," which is on sale at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Copies of the book may be obtained by mail for 30 cents each.

Battered Iowa Squad Given Severe Drill

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa's battered football squad was sent through another vicious scrimmage today in a desperate attempt to correct flaws for the Iowa State game Saturday.

Four regulars were still out of the lineup with injuries, but Fred Radloff, tackle, and Bill Secl, guard, reported for light drill. Dr. A. S. Fourt, medical adviser, said that they would be available for Saturday's game if they escaped further bumps in practice.

Still Experiments with Line.

Today's scrimmage, the third this week, found Coach Ossie Solem still experimenting with the varsity lineup. On the line, Floyd McDowell, Jim Kelley, and Rudolph Leytze were given a trial at the guard and tackle jobs for the first time.

John Hild, Sheldon, Gordinier, and Bob Moore, all sophomores, alternated at a half back position and may replace Capt. Fisher in the starting lineup Saturday. Dwight Hoover is almost certain to replace Herman Schneidman, senior half back, who is out for the season.

Polish Passing Plays.

Solem gave the Hawkeyes a thorough lesson in defense, but polished forward passing plays and trick formations late in the period.

Although the squad has suffered physically from the Nebraska encounter, it seemed likely that the defeat would put the Hawkeyes in a fighting mood for the next two games with Iowa State and Minnesota.

IOWA STATE SCRIMMAGES.

Ames, Ia., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Scrimmage against Iowa plays, to the tune of hammer and saw, occupied the Iowa State practice today as workmen began erecting temporary bleachers for the intrastate game Saturday.

Cochrane Gets $10,000 Bonus for Detroit Pennant

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—A $10,000 bonus is the reward Manager Mickey Cochrane received for leading the Detroit Tigers to their first pennant in 25 years, it was announced today. The check was presented to the Tiger leader and catcher by Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit American league club.

Cochrane, who was obtained by the Tigers last year from the Philadelphia Athletics for a reported price of $100,000, has a contract with one more year. The contract, according to reports, is for $25,000 a year.

Purdue Heals Wounds; Eyes Big Ten Race

Dame, but probably will start against the Badgers.

Purdue has scored one or more touchdowns in 49 out of its last 50 games. They failed only against Rice on Oct. 6. The feeling persists among Purdue supporters that if the blocking and tackling improve the Boilermakers will hit their old touchdown stride.

Badgers Supply Thrills.

As an even year homecoming foe, Wisconsin has supplied everything that could be desired in the way of thrills for the cash customers, and Saturday promises to be no exception. With the Badgers as the foe for the last four even year reunions, Purdue has won two and tied two, and never more than a single point has separated the two elevens at the final gun. In 1930 and 1932 Purdue won, 7 to 6; in 1928 came the famous 19 to 19 tie, and in 1926 a scoreless tie.

It might be mentioned that the odd year games at Madison have shared in the thrills. In 1925 when the series was renewed on an annual basis Wisconsin won, 7 to 0, and in 1927 the Badgers repeated, 12 to 6. In 1929 Purdue grabbed a 13 to 0 decision, the only time in the last nine years that more than a touchdown has separated the two elevens, but in 1931 Wisconsin came bouncing back to score three touchdowns in the first ten minutes of play and win, 21 to 14.

Purdue's homecoming festivities will start Friday night with a banquet in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the dedication of the Ross-Ade stadium. Members of the 1924 eleven that played in the dedicatory game will be among the guests of honor along with donors to the stadium fund. Special reunions of the 1914, 1904, and 1894 elevens also are planned.

Carter Elusive as Ever.

Jim Carter, the half back flash, has been the spark plug of the Purdue running attack, displaying all of his old elusiveness despite his knee injury. Carter twisted through Rice and Notre Dame for 110 yards in 21 tries for an average of better than five yards per attempt.

Kizer is hopeful that experience gained in the Rice and Notre Dame games will result in more effective forward wall play against the Badgers.

The Boilermakers probably will depend on the same trio of ball carriers that staged the courageous fourth quarter touchdown drive against Notre Dame, with Jim Carter and Leon Dailey at half back and John Drake at full back. Drake, a sophomore, has turned in two outstanding games, while Dailey did a beautiful job of kicking against Notre Dame. Wayne Gift, another sophomore, seems due to draw the quarter back assignment.

And that's all of the Woodworth log. Tomorrow we'll do the work ourself.

New Wrestlers Appear on Card at Loyola Gym

Four newcomers will appear on the wrestling show at the Loyola university gymnasium, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, tomorrow night. Jim McMillen of Chicago and Abie Coleman of New York will meet in the one and one-half hour windup match.

The newcomers are Fred Grubmier, Halan, Ia., and Dr. Karl Sarpolis, former Chicago physician, who will meet in the 30 minute semi-windup, and Karl Davis, Columbus, O., and Orville Brown of Kansas, who clash in one of the 30 minute preliminaries.

Sonny Whitney to Race Stables in California

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Cornelius V. [Sonny] Whitney stated today he intends to race the Whitney thoroughbred stables in California and not in Florida with the opening of the new Santa Anita track near Los Angeles this winter. Whitney announced his plans shortly before he boarded a passenger plane for New York.

NOTRE DAME 2D TEAM MAY FACE CARNEGIE TECH

Layden Fights Overconfidence of Varsity.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Fearful lest the Notre Dame varsity may let down Saturday against Carnegie Tech, Coach Elmer Layden drove his second team through a long scrimmage today against Tech plays.

The Carnegie team, impersonated by the cockiest group of freshmen Notre Dame has had in years, scored two touchdowns early in the drill, carrying the ball down the field on short passes. The varsity scored once on a long run by Mike Layden, left half back.

Coaches Drive Team.

The spirit which marked drills up until this week was missing and coaches drove the team hard in an effort to make the players realize the seriousness of the game. Carnegie held Michigan State's strong team scoreless in the first half and lost in the second, 13 to 0, on a touchdown and two field goals.

May Change Lineup.

Assistant Coach Tom Conley, who scouted Carnegie last week, said it was not keyed for the Michigan State game, but that it undoubtedly would be this week.

Layden intimated today he may make some lineup changes or let the second team do the work Saturday if the varsity shows signs of disintegrating as it did in last year's 7 to 0 defeat at the hands of Carnegie.

WOLVERINES LACK DASH.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Working on its pass offense and defense, the Michigan squad did little more than go through the motions—at least so far as effectiveness was concerned—this afternoon.

Joe Ellis and Whitey Aug worked in the passing rôle and both seemed to have a desire to throw the ball as far as they could regardless of the fact that receivers had no chance in getting down under their tosses. Mike Savage, still limping badly, and little Ferris Jennings clicked on a few, but otherwise the work appeared to be just so much time wasted. On the other hand, the first stringers broke up Georgia Tech passes, as demonstrated by the reserves, with regularity.

Savage returned to the line today, but Willard Hildebrand, guard and tackle, was out of uniform. Hildebrand was suffering from a bad gash in his leg. Chester Beard and Bud Hanshue worked in his place.

Don George Signs to Wrestle at Coliseum

Don George, heavyweight wrestler, has been signed by Promoter Maurice Feldman to headline the opening show at the Coliseum on Oct. 29. His opponent has not been chosen. George recently extended Jim Londos, the champion, wrestling him to a draw twice.

Michigan State Leaves Today for Manhattan Game

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Michigan State college football team will leave tomorrow afternoon for New York City to meet Manhattan college Saturday. The Spartans will arrive in time to hold a workout at Ebbets field Friday afternoon.

State scouts have brought back a report that Manhattan has a husky squad composed mostly of sophomores that is gaining power as the season progresses.

Michigan State's passing combination of Warmbein to Klewicki has not been stopped this season, but Coach Charles Bachman is taking no chances and has been giving Russ Reynolds and Steve Sebo long workouts in passing.

Colored All Stars to Meet Collegians Sunday

Duke Slater's colored All-Stars will open its semi-pro football season Sunday against the All-Collegians at Spencer Coal field. On Slater's eleven are Jesse Babb and Fitzhugh Lyons, Indiana university stars last year; Shag Jones, Fiske college quarter back; Buzz Holder, Coe college tackle, and Pete Bluitt, tackle. The Collegians, coached by Bob Koehler, are composed of former Chicago Shamrock, McKerr Booster, and college stars.

HARVARD TAKES LAST HARD DRILL FOR HOLY CROSS

All Except Moseley Ready to Play Saturday.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Harvard went through its last hard workout of the week today for the Holy Cross game with the indication that Chet Litman, veteran half back who did not play last week, would assume the rôle of running back. With the exception of Freddy Moseley, who injured his leg in the Brown game, every member of the Crimson is in good shape physically for Saturday's battle.

PRINCETON HALTS "FOES."

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Three Princeton teams went through an intensive drill against Washington and Lee plays today as Coach Fritz Crisler prepared the Tigers for the invasion of the heavy southern eleven Saturday. The Tigers seemed to have little difficulty solving the Generals' attack as staged by the scrubs and on the offense ripped through for long gains with Paul Pauk, Les Kaufman, Jim Miller, and Joe Grassi doing most of the ball lugging.

LITTLE DRIVES COLUMBIA.

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Coach Lou Little gave Columbia a three hour drill, with the first and second teams opposing the freshmen using Navy plays. There was a lot of passing with the varsity receiving a long drill on defense against aerials. Ed Brominski again was in the lineup and indicated he would be in condition to start in the back field.

ARMY BATTLES PLEBES.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Coach Gar Davidson ordered the plebe team down on the plains for a 30 minute scrimmage with the varsity. The varsity was on the defensive for the first half of the period, with Joe Stancook standing out with his tackling. On the offense the regulars scored two touchdowns, Goldenberg and King going over the line with the ball. Army plays Sewanee Saturday.

TACKLE REJOINS DARTMOUTH.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Don Erion, 200 pound veteran tackle, occupied his old position as Coach Earl Blaik sent the Dartmouth first stringers against the scrubs using Virginia formations. Erion has been out most of the season with a shoulder injury.

SETBACK FOR VILLANOVA.

CORNELL PLAYERS SHIFTED.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The expected shifts in Cornell's varsity lineup materialized when Coach Gil Dobie scrambled the first two teams during a long scrimmage against the plays Princeton is expected to use in their encounter Oct. 27. Scott, alone of the regulars, remained in the back field on the varsity.

SYRACUSE SEEKS TIMING.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Seeking to perfect the timing of plays, Coach Vic Hanson sent the Syracuse regulars through a long signal drill following a dummy scrimmage against Ohio Wesleyan plays as enacted by the freshman eleven.

FORDHAM BRUSHES UP.

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—While St. Mary's was receiving most of the attention, Coach Jim Crowley went quietly about the task of preparing the Fordham Rams for Saturday's test with the west coast eleven. The Rams went through a hard drill, looking over the Gaels' plays in a lengthy scrimmage.

FEAR HARVARD PASSES.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—In an expectation of a strong aerial attack by Harvard on Saturday, Holy Cross spent considerable time on pass defense in a drill that also included polishing of the running and passing attack.

MANHATTAN EYES STATE.

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Chick Meehan expressed himself as satisfied with the Manhattan squad as he drilled the players on passing and defense against Michigan State aerials.

YALE HALTS FROSH.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 17.—(AP)—For more than three hours Coach Ducky Pond sent Yale's first and second teams tearing at each other. After devoting considerable time to a passing defense he ordered the regulars to line up in front of the goal posts and stop the reserves from scoring. They did.

BROWN STAR AILING.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Perry Elrod, Brown's triple threat back, sprained an ankle in a scrimmage and may not be able to play against Harvard Saturday. Coach Tuss McLaughry drove the team through one of the longest drills of the season, working under the floodlights.

CHICAGO HORSES IN STEEPLECHASE AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Twelve steeplechase horses, including several entered by Chicago and New York sportsmen, will compete in the Mississippi valley gold cup Saturday.

Tim Durant of New York, and Ben Leslie Behr of Chicago, arrived today, Durant with his horses, Dan Rock and Young Prince. Behr has entered Outlaw, As Fair, and Dan McGee. Mrs. John Hay Whitney, who will send two horses, Old Bachelor and Hopeful Jim, from her Upperville, Va., stables, is expected to attend the races.

Other contenders for the cup will be Arcade, 1933 winner, sold by Durant to Percy Orthwein and Edward Rowan of St. Louis, and Senorita Mejico from the stables of Carlos Martinez-Zorilla, Mexico, D. F.

Kieckhefer Runs Eight to Win 3 Cushion Match

Augie Kieckhefer defeated Charles Barrett, 50 to 43, in 40 innings in a three cushion billiard match at the Kieckhefer recreation last night. High runs were Kieckhefer 8, Barrett 5. Kieckhefer will meet Harry Ticks at 8 o'clock tonight.

FRANZ DEULBERG, GERMAN STAR, TO RIDE IN BIKE RACE

Franz Deulberg, leading six day bicycle rider of Germany, will compete in the six day bicycle race which opens in the Stadium on Nov. 11. Deulberg has won four six day races, finished second in three, third in four, and fourth in one. Deulberg is a good sprinter and jammer.

The six day bike riders are in Philadelphia now to compete in a six day race there in the Arena.

NORTH CENTRAL DRILLS DEFENSE FOR LAKE FOREST

Encouraged by a 53 to 0 victory over Wheaton last week the North Central college football squad is concentrating on defensive measures with which it hopes to stop the powerful Lake Forest team Saturday.

The regulars were sent through a stiff scrimmage yesterday against a reserve team which demonstrated the Lake Forest style of play. The remainder of the week will be spent in dummy drill and fundamentals.

The game Saturday will be the 21st meeting of the two teams, affair having originated in 1913 when Lake Forest defeated North Central, 45 to 7. The series has been consecutive with the exception of 1918. To date the Lake Forest elevens have won twelve games. North Central won six while two games were tied. Lake Forest this year is coached by Ralph Jones, formerly of the Chicago Bears.

TUSKEGEE SQUAD DUE TODAY FOR GAME SATURDAY

Tuskeegee institute's football team, which meets Wilberforce university in the sixth annual game between the teams at Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon, will arrive in Chicago this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The squad will parade from the Union station to the Vincennes hotel, where it will be quartered during its Chicago visit.

The 50 piece Tuskegee band will arrive by bus tomorrow. Wilberforce's team will leave Xenia, O., tomorrow afternoon and will arrive Saturday morning. In the five games which have been played the teams have tied three times and each has scored one victory.

ANGRY WILDCATS TIRED OF BEING PUSHED AROUND

That strenuous practice which Northwestern's football team has been anticipating ever since the Stanford defeat materialized yesterday. It proved to be all that the players had expected, and it was long after sundown before the squad was sent to the showers.

Coach Dick Hanley wasted little time getting down to the business of preparing for the Ohio State game a week from Saturday. A long, kicking tackling drill was followed by drills on new plays and formations. Considerable attention was devoted to trying out players at new positions, since the lineup that will start against Ohio State will be vastly different from the one which has been in previous games.

Vexed by the pushing around they have received on two successive weekends, the players went through their workout with a determination that bodes ill for opponents. Such important fundamentals as blocking, tackling, kicking, and passing came in for considerable attention. The Wildcats showed need of improvement in all these departments against Stanford.

From here on out the Wildcat attack will concentrate around Bob Swisher, lightweight half back, who proved in the Stanford game that he is a runner to be reckoned with. Other sophomore backs who are to be given a chance to break into the lineup are Don Geyer, light but hard hitting full back; Bob Schwartz, another full back of promise, and Eino Hayskar, who turned in the best performance from scrimmage in the Stanford game.

The Wildcats returned to Chicago yesterday morning.

ILLINI BACK AT WORK.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.] Most of the Illinois regulars reported for practice today after two days' rest from the strenuous engagement with Ohio State and scrimmaged against the freshmen who portrayed Michigan formations.

Bob Wright, end, who had not scrimmaged since the Washington game, appeared at a wing position to contend with Ken Nelson and Gene Dykstra. Wright is one of the best pass receivers on the squad and it is not improbable that he may win a berth as a regular. Last year Wright caught a pass for a touchdown against Ohio State.

Continuing his search for center timber, Zuppke used John Lippold, hitherto a full back, at the pivot position. Lippold, a stocky 170 pound sophomore, won his freshman numerals last year but reported late this season.

Wilbur Henry, sub quarter back, may be shifted to half bac for the Michigan game as he appeared in a back field for which Cliff Gano called signals. Howie Carson, big sophomore full back, who did not appear against Washington or Ohio State, was in the game and will probably strengthen the full back forces for the Wolverines.

OHIO STILL FUMBLES.

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Francis A. Schmidt today, for the first time since he became Ohio State's coach, appeared to be worried. The attack of fumbling which saw the Buckeyes bobble 12 times in the Indiana game, then cut it to a half dozen in the Illinois game, still persisted in tonight's practice. The backs, preparing for their third game of the season, repeatedly lost the ball through fumbling.

Then the freshman team, demonstrating plays Colgate is expected to use Saturday, completed many forward passes, some with laterals attached.

In the back field he wants to use Buzz Wetzel in place of Kabealo at full back. This change depends on whether Karcher replaces Capt. Monahan at left guard. Karcher is a good kicker and should he start, Wetzel probably will start in the back field.

Antenucci, Niles, O., half back, is to take the place of the injured Jack Smith and Franklin Boucher. Smith's knee still is in a cast and Boucher has not fully recovered from the effects of the Illinois game.

Sigilio's Fight Posters Err, but He Sees Way to Right 'Em

Willie Capodanno, manager of Frank Sigilio, will appear at the Illinois athletic commission Monday to ask permission to change the Cicero junior welterweight contender's fighting name to Frank Sagilio. The move was instigated by Joe Foley, promoter of the return bout between Sigilio and Davey Day at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 2, who already has spent considerable money on posters and other advertising matter billing Sigilio as Sagilio.

Sigilio, who was christened Francesco Sicilia on March 25, 1914, was known by the former name as a boxer until he became prominent a few months ago. Then some enterprising press agent failed to remember if the name was spelled with an a or an i, so spelled it Sagilio. As a result, other Chicago newspapers spelled it Sagilio one day and Sigilio another.

Hayden [Young] Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., middleweight, is being sought to box Frank Battaglia in the 10 round semi-final at the Stadium.

Nick Michaelson, Indianapolis, Ind., yesterday was signed to meet Battling Mike Gizzy in a supporting eight round bout on the card headed by Eddie Vik and Toots Bernstein at Cicero stadium tomorrow night. Bus Breese, Manhattan, Kas., lightweight, who has whipped Jackie Sharkey twice, and Paul Dazzo and Le Roy [Sailor] Born in four local appearances, wound up boxing yesterday by going six rounds with three sparmates in preparation for his eight rounder against Scotty Scotten.

Hugh Allen and Bill Reardon, Chicago lightweights, will be the contending warriors in one of two contests at four rounds. Walter Karpinski, Grand Rapids, Mich., heavyweight, will appear against a suitable opponent in the other.

Critics who watched Art Sykes of Elmira, N. Y., box three rounds with Walt Karpinski yesterday expressed the opinion that Sykes may outbox Joe Louis when they clash for 10 rounds in the main event at Arcadia Gardens next Wednesday. . . . Young Joe Gans, stablemate of Louis, has been signed to fight in a preliminary engagement. . . . Jackie Schwartz, Detroit middleweight, will meet Bill Brown, Indianapolis, in a four round encounter at Milwaukee, Wis., Monday. . . . Johnny Phagan and Tony Bruno clash for the second time in an eight round feature conflict. . . . They battled to a draw several weeks ago.

Sherald Kennard, Fargo, N. D., 147 pounder, and Nestor Bruggman of the Catholic Youth organization have been matched in the six round semi-final to the eight round windup between Mickey Beal and Sammy Mosco at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Willie Dudlack will encounter Sammy Scoglio in a four rounder. . . . Bob La Monte, west side welterweight, has been discharged from the hospital after receiving treatments there two weeks for a cold which affected his heart.

King Levinsky yesterday tentatively accepted an offer to meet Art Lasky at New York in November. . . . Everett [Young] Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., and Jimmy Christy, C. Y. O., will collide in an eight round main event at Midway arena on Oct. 29. . . . Tony Zale and Frank Misko are paired for the main bout at the Midway Monday. . . . Henry Rothier, Golden Gloves graduate, will be idle for at least three weeks because of poor health.

Al Pahl, Minneapolis, Minn., junior welterweight, and Eddie Chinski, Kankakee, Ill., are to fight five rounds tonight at the Coverant club, 10 North Dearborn street. Four round scraps will bring together Joey Bozak and Augie Mandell, Sammy Scoglio and Pat Kennedy, and George Williams and Jack Charvez. F. M.

Evergold Clips Track Mark in Laurel Sprint

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Evergold, the veteran sprinter from the Shandon Farm stable owned by Richard and Patrick Nash of Chicago, was the sensation of the racing at the Laurel track this afternoon.

He was a starter in the Royal Oak handicap at six furlongs engaging the best sprinters quartered here. He was away from the barrier flying, fought it out gamely with the favorite, Happy Go, for the entire trip, and won by a head. Happy Go finished second and Hope to Do, owned by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, was third.

Evergold, at $13.20 in the mutuel betting, ran the six furlongs in 1:11, which clipped a fifth of a second off the track record. He was ridden by Jocky Eddie Arcaro.

Another Chicago victory came in the Michael purse at six furlongs engaging a high class band of 2 year olds. The winner was Advantage, star juvenile in the stable of Ald. John Coughlin. He scored easily by two lengths after leading all the way from Diablerie, owned by H. C. Phipps. Nice Talk, from the stable of Mrs. J. H. Whitney, was third.

Advantage carried 113 pounds and ran the six furlongs in 1:12. He was at $7.50 in the $2 betting.

Stein Signs for Two More Bowling Matches Saturday

Otto Stein of St. Louis, national match game bowling champion, has been booked for two more Chicago engagements Saturday. At 7 p. m. he will meet Bill Goldammer at the Harding alleys, and at 9:30 he will roll Pete Petersen at the Garden Recreation.

Player Reveals Bribe Offer to Miss Tulsa Game

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Alphonse [Tuffy] Leemans, a star back of the George Washington university football team, reported to university authorities today that he had received a letter offering him $300 to stay out of Friday night's game with Tulsa university.

The letter, which Leemans said he received today, said that three one hundred dollar bills would be torn in half and that he would receive three of the halves Friday night and the other three Saturday morning if he would fake an injury in practice tomorrow which would keep him out of the game with Tulsa.

University officials were seeking to ascertain whether the letter was an attempt to bribe Leemans or was intended as a joke.

It was signed "Jimmie," and said the writer was a heavy loser on football games and saw a good chance to recoup if Tulsa won Friday night.

HEYDLER SAYS NO BARNSTORMING BAN DISCUSSED

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—President John Heydler said tonight a ban on barnstorming has not been discussed by the National league.

"It is the first time I have ever heard of the matter," he said when told President William Harridge of the American League was advocating such a move.

Heydler stated the National league had voted against a trip to the Orient for National league players for several reasons, such as the chances of injury. Only American league players make the trip now.

C. Y. O. LIFTS BAN ON CHAMPIONS IN '34 TOURNEY

The champions of the 1933 tournament will be among the hundreds of amateur boxers who will compete in the fourth annual Catholic Youth organization boxing tournament, which opens next Monday night, Packey McFarland, tournament director, announced yesterday.

At yesterday's meeting of the tournament boxing committee it was decided to rescind the regulation in effect last year which barred any boy who had won a C. Y. O. title. Feeling that this regulation deprived many youngsters of a chance to continue careers in amateur boxing, the committee repealed the regulation.

Wozniak Brothers Enter.

Among the first of the 1933 title holders to enter this year's tournament were Ray and Charlie Wozniak and Andy Scrivani. Ray Wozniak won the light heavyweight championship last season while his brother Charlie triumphed in the 160 pound class. The brothers enabled St. Alexander of Villa Park to tie with Our Lady of Mount Carmel for the team championship.

Andy Scrivani, hard punching Italian youngster, was one of the surprises of last year's tourney, when, with one year of boxing, he went on to win the 118 pound title. Scrivani later reached the final round of the Golden Gloves tournament. He has grown heavier and will compete as a featherweight this year.

Finals on Dec. 5.

Nearly 1,500 are enrolled in the tourney. The deadline for entries is set for Saturday. The tournament opens Monday night with preliminary rounds for west section boxers at the West Side Community center, 4721 West Madison street. Sectional trials of three nights' duration also will be held in the south, west, and Joliet sections with quarter-final rounds opening at the C. Y. O. center, Nov. 6. The finals will be held in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday, Dec. 5.

MONARCHS WIN 3 MORE CLASSIC LEAGUE GAMES

The Monarch Beers, who defeated the Classics, were the only team to win three games in the Classic Bowling league matches at the Schueneman Logan Square alleys last night. The Monarch's 2,926 series was high, as was their 1,047 game, which was equaled by Edelweiss.

COULTER BOYS TO FORM HAWKS' DEFENSIVE LINE

Levine Due at Camp Today for First Drill.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—After today's practice at the University of Illinois, Manager Clem Loughlin of the Chicago Blackhawks announced he would team Art Wiebe, aggressive rookie defense player of last season's Kansas City Greyhounds, with Marty Burke, who came to Chicago in the deal involving Morenz.

The rear line combination in the first exhibition game Saturday night between picked teams from the Blackhawk's squad will consist of Tom Coulter of last season's Oklahoma City team and his brother Art, who is the only member left of last season's championship defense squad.

The fight for the goalie job will start tomorrow with the arrival of Porky Levine, leading goalie in the American association last year. He will have to fight it out with Joe Starke, Blackhawk reserve last season.

For a half hour today ten forwards peppered Starke for all they were worth, but he withstood the attack. Veteran players admitted afterward Starke had become extremely difficult to beat.

The chambers of commerce of Champaign and Urbana will entertain the squad at a banquet tomorrow night. Coach Bob Zuppke, Les Lindberg and other members of the Illinois football team have been invited.

MIDDLEWEIGHT BOUT TOPS C. Y. O. BOXING TONIGHT

Two of the best middleweights in the Catholic Youth Organization Boxing club will meet in the feature bout on tonight's card at the C. Y. O. center, which is being sponsored by Henry G. Hart, general manager of the Boston store. Eight bouts are on the program, which will start at 8:30 o'clock. Bill Fitzgerald and George Sluka, the two middleweights, are expected to wage a close battle. The card:

112 pounds—Bill Weis vs. Packey Rodak.
135 pounds—Eddie Garvey vs. Dan Villereal.
126 pounds—Johnny Anderson vs. Pat Berns.
165 pounds—Bill Bittner vs. Joe Bittner.
125 pounds—Joe Wiley vs. Ed Morton.
118 pounds—Jack Sullivan vs. Jimmy Killeen.
160 pounds—George Sluka vs. William Fitzgerald.

BRILLIANT QUEEN BRINGS SMILE TO A POKER FACE

BY FRENCH LANE.

You don't know Mr. Potter?

Well, Mr. Potter for a long time, years ago, bossed the games of chance in Mobile. No one can deny that they shoot some craps and play some close to the sidewalk poker around Mobile.

Big pots were at stake in those dice and poker games when Mr. Potter was the boss. He watched them come and go and yet never grew excited. His poker face became noted throughout the south.

Later on Mr. Potter met Nick F. one of the most spectacular race track plungers of our present generation. They formed a partnership. They rolled up hundreds of thousands in profits. During these exciting days Nick F. now and then showed emotion. Bill Potter always wore his poker face.

Their partnership ended at Nick F.'s death. Potter bought a stable of horses and they did only fairly well. Or at least that's the way it looked to the folks on the sidelines.

Poker Face Disappears.

Still Potter's poker face never changed. Few people were able to know whether he was winning or losing.

Potter started Brilliant Queen, the star of his stable in a fashionable two year olds race at Sportmans Park yesterday.

Whether he wagered heavily on her or not even his brother could not tell. Yet when Brilliant Queen and Donnie W. came charging down the stretch an inch apart and when they thundered past the winning post so evenly that neither Mr. Potter nor anybody else in the crowd could tell which had won, Mr. Potter's poker face disappeared.

The finish was so close—it was the most thrilling of the fall season—that Mr. Potter's cronies who were standing near him and slapping him on the back thought he might drop in his tracks.

It was so close even the placing judges hesitated for perhaps 20 seconds before the numbers dropped into their slots.

"Why Don't They Hang 'Em Out?"

"Why don't they hang out the numbers," Potter asked. "It must have been half an hour ago when they passed the finish line," he continued.

Finally Brilliant Queen's number dropped into the winner's slot. "That's the biggest number I've ever gazed upon," exclaimed the excited old poker king, who as far as the Chicago racegoers are concerned was showing his first symptons of enthusiasm in a life time.

Brilliant Queen was ridden by Jocky Dale Edwards. J. Longden, just about the best horseback rider that ever stepped onto a half mile track piloted Donnie W. The two riders staged a furious finish, one in which everybody expected that fists would begin to fly at any instant. The others in the field of ten were far back. Raffles Problem wound up in third place.

No Record, However.

The race was at seven furlongs and was won in the slow time of 1:30. The way the 2 year olds fought it out in the ding-dong finish had everybody thinking a track or a world's record might be hung out.

Donnie W., due to a plunge on him at the last minute, was made the favorite. Thus Brilliant Queen paid off at $9.14 for a $2 ticket.

ONE CHANCE WINS BY LENGTH AT EMPIRE CITY

Six Horses Bid for Lead in Feature Race.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Seven horses started in the feature race at Empire City today and at one time or another during the running six of them got to the front or made a challenge for the lead, with One Chance eventually getting the winner's share of the purse. Under the driving of Jocky George Seabo One Chance was first by a length at 5 to 1.

The most heavily played starters were the 8 to 5 favorites, Thundertone, which landed fourth, and the 18 to 5 Chance Flagboy, which brought up last. Stone Martin, which was driven down from 12 to 7 to 1, got the place back of One Chance and a half length in front of Black Falcon.

The time was 1:43 4-5 for the mile and seventy yards.

Sammy Renick, who has on many occasions been shut off when he has attempted to move through on the rail with a mount, brought off that maneuver in the first race today with the result that Master Lad, a 10 to 1 shot, got home in front.

Master Lad was timed in 1:07 1-5 for the five and one-half furlongs and wrested the lead from Treasury Key. This daughter of Master Charlie was the 7 to 5 choice, but could not stay well enough to win. She finished third, half a length back of Little Argo.

POWER UPTURN OVER YEAR AGO BEST SINCE JUNE

Chicago Area Production 0.2% Above 1933.

Production of electricity in the United States last week showed the largest percentage gain over a year ago since June. Output increased 2.3 per cent over 1933, but was .1 per cent below the preceding week. In the Chicago areas power output gained 0.2 per cent over a year ago. In the preceding week the national total was 0.8 per cent above a year ago and the Chicago total 1.8 per cent.

The actual total for the country during the week was 1,656,864,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,659,192,000 in the preceding week, Edison Electric institute announced yesterday. Output in Chicago amounted to 100,987,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 101,231,000 in the preceding week, according to the Commonwealth Edison company.

Weather Fails to Cut Output.

It was stated that in view of the warm and extremely bright weather which prevailed during the last week, the output is maintaining the normal fall seasonal trend upward.

Wk. ended.	1934.	1933.	Per cent change
Oct. 13	100,897,000	100,663,000	0.2
Oct. 6	101,231,000	99,435,000	1.8
Sept. 29	100,732,000	101,429,000	0.7
Sept. 29	99,820,000	97,109,000	2.8

Gains by Sections.

Gains reported by regions with comparisons of the preceding week were as follows: Middle Atlantic, 2.8 per cent, against 2 per cent; west central, 6.5, against 6.4; Rocky mountain, 3.6, against 1.4; Pacific coast 9.2, against 7, and the southern states 5.2, against a loss of 0.6.

Regions showing declines from a year ago, with losses reported for the preceding week, included the New England states, with a drop of 3.3 per cent, against 4.6 per cent, and the central industrial region 0.8, against 0.9.

STEEL OUTPUT LOWER

Despite the clearing up of certain administration policies that had confused the steel industry, the operating rate has receded one point to 23½ per cent of capacity, according to Iron Age.

The assurance of Donald Richberg that no changes in the price provisions of the steel code and his emphasis on the need for stability in the industry were timely, the magazine says, in view of the close relationship that exists between price levels and wage rates. Greater confidence, believed now to be in the making, may provide the needed impetus to lagging business, the magazine adds.

Auto Bookings Low.

Steel bookings from the automotive industry are at one of the lowest levels of the year, with a sign of improvement in the release of inquiries for stampings of new models which may shortly lead to orders for sheets and strip steel. Ford Motor company has resumed operations on a five day basis. Automobile output for this month probably will not exceed 120,000 units. Hope for the trade lies in the development of substantial buying by the end of the month.

The magazine's composite price of heavy melting steel remains at $9.50 a ton for the fourth week. Composites for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.124 cents a pound and $17.90 a ton, respectively.

FOX'S TRI-ERGON COMPANY SUES 6 TALKIE FIRMS

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The American Tri-Ergon company, which William Fox, ousted head of Fox Films, controls, and which was recently confirmed in its ownership of basic talking picture patents, brought suit today against six motion picture companies, asking injunctions and accountings. Although no specific sum was asked in the papers filed in the federal court, it was said that the profits of the companies, through allegedly illegal use of the processes involved, were "many millions of dollars."

The companies sued are Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer corporation, M.-G.-M. Distributing corporation, Columbia Pictures, Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., First Division Pictures, Inc., and Universal Pictures corporation.

This is the first action since the United States Supreme court refused last week to hear appeals from lower court decisions which had confirmed Mr. Fox in his control over the patents. The processes, worked out by Han Vogt, Joseph Engel, and John Massolle, and controled by Tri-Ergon, are considered practically basic in the making of talking films and Mr. Fox may achieve a comeback to a position of even greater importance than he had before his companies were taken from him.

U. S. BEGINS FIGHT ON FALSE RADIO ADVERTISING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A second attack on false and misleading advertising in radio broadcasts was initiated tonight by the trade commission.

Stations were directed to file with the commission copies of the advertising matter to be sent over the air between Nov. 15 and Nov. 30. This will be scrutinized to ascertain if it contains anything improper.

Once before—for last July—the commission took similar action. Of the 180,877 continuities received, 161,466 were found subject to no criticism. The remaining 22,411 are still being studied to determine whether legal or other action is waranted.

The commission call today covered New England and adjoining states. Calls for the four other zones are to be issued later.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

George N. Peek, special adviser to President Roosevelt on foreign trade matters, in a speech here last night told 350 export managers, representing all lines of industry in the Chicago area, that restoration of life to America's foreign trade carries the chief hope of eliminating the "need" for regimentation of the country's internal affairs. Such a revival of trade with other countries must be brought about by intelligent government assistance and direction of foreign trade and finance, the administration adviser asserts.

CLAUDIUS T. MURCHISON.

Peek's address was delivered last night at a dinner at the Stevens hotel at the conclusion of a one day conference on foreign trade sponsored by the Export Managers' club of Chicago and other Chicago trade associations.

First Speech on New Job.

Peek was one of 15 speakers who discussed ways and means of stimulating the country's greatly diminished trade with foreign nations. It was the first public speech of the President's adviser since he quit as administrator of the agricultural adjustment administration to take over his present duties of coördinating the activities of the federal government dealing with foreign trade.

The keynote of the Peek address as well as that of most of the other speakers was the need for removing the restrictions which now hamper trade with the United States and other nations. Reduction of import duties were possible in order to reach a trading basis with other nations was stressed by Peek as well as Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, another federal agency. Similar action was urged by other speakers including Col. J. F. Quinn, import manager of Montgomery Ward & Co., Prof. Robert J. Ray of the Northwestern university school of commerce stressed the need of bringing about international currency agreements as a requisite of world recovery.

Money Owed U. S. a Barrier.

After reviewing the subject of the foreign debts owed to the United States and the barrier they constitute to normal trading relations, Peek declared that the country is now reaping the harvest of the inconsistent foreign trade and finance policy which this country clung to during the period from the conclusion of the world war to 1929. He likewise touched on the extensive arrangements made by foreign nations between themselves for exclusive trade agreements which leave the United States out of the picture. Having loaned moneys abroad generously and unwisely, the country's foreign trade has become badly snarled, he said.

The speaker expressed some misgiving lest his audience look upon this latest obligation of the government toward the foreign trade-mark merely another expansion of government bureocracy. This, he asserted, is not true and if the government activities in the foreign trade field are coördinated it will make possible the elimination of many of the overlapping services which the government now offers through diverse and sometimes conflicting bureaus.

Exporters Need Assistance.

"Under modern conditions," he stated, "our exporters compete with nationals of foreign countries who are being actively and heavily backed by their governments. Unless our foreign trade interests receive similar backing and assistance from our government, they will be unable to compete effectively or on equal terms in the markets of the world."

The speaker warned that the field of international trade was not a one way street, and said that it is essential that the country increase its imports. This can be best achieved, he added, through a policy of "selective exports and imports."

Peek cited various reciprocal trade agreements being negotiated with other nations and the organization of the Export-Import banks of which he himself is head as definite measures taken to help our foreign business. He said the Export-Import banks are now in a position to finance exports on an intermediate or long term credit basis.

Murchison Favors Pacts.

Dr. Murchison also spoke favorably of the benefits of reciprocal trade agreements and declared that since the signing of the agreement recently with Cuba, American exports to that nation have shown a marked increase. The procedure offers the best promise of trade revival and the needed stability of inernational economic relationships, he said.

Earlier in the day Prof. Ray said that the United States by failing to reach a currency agreement with Great Britain is playing the part of a lone wolf in international economics. Stabilizations of currency, Ray declared, is most important step needed toward helping the sale of American goods abroad.

Charles E. Herrick, chairman of the Institute of American meat packers foreign trade committee, said American pork exports have declined equivalent to 6,000,000 hogs in the last five years. "The trade has declined because of efforts of former meat importers to put themselves on a self-sustaining basis; because of quota restrictions, and, in some cases, because of discrimination against importation of American meats," he said.

SEEK TO AID EXPORT BUSINESS

Big Oil Units Cut Price of EthylHalfCent

More price slashing took place yesterday in the bitter gasoline war which is now raging in the Chicago district between major gasoline companies and the independents—members of the Chicago Individual Branded Petroleum association. The major companies lopped a half cent a gallon off the price of ethyl and while a majority of the members of the independent association are reported as maintaining prices on a parity with the majors, some put reductions of a half cent a gallon or more into effect.

In addition to reducing the price of ethyl gasoline, the major companies yesterday made adjustments in tank wagon prices, which previously had been running slightly higher than the service station prices. Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced that the price of regular gasoline at the tank wagons, effective immediately, is 12.8 cents a gallon, while third grade gasoline is 11.9 cents a gallon. Other major companies took similar action.

Independent Differ on Cuts.

In the meantime evidences became apparent that differences of opinion as to the course to follow are becoming more acute within the ranks of the independents. L. M. Foster, president of the Chicago Individual Branded Petroleum association, asserted that the majority of the members had agreed in a meeting on Tuesday night to maintain prices at the level put into effect by the major concerns. However, Charles Gauer of Bulk Service Stations, Inc., a member of the association, stated that his organization had cut prices about a half a cent yesterday, with the new range as follows: third grade, 11.3 cents a gallon; regular, 12.3 cents and high test, 13.3 cents a gallon. The prices charged by the majority of the independents, according to Foster, are as follows: Third grade, 11.9 cents; regular, 12.8 cents, and high test, 13.8 cents.

Stick at Profit Point.

Foster said that it was decided by the majority of the independents not to reduce prices beyond a level at which a profit could not be made. This point has been reached, he explained, and a majority will not go any lower. "We are awaiting an answer to the telegram which we sent last night to Secretary Ickes," in it we asked him to straighten out this terrible price situation in Chicago."

Gauer reported that he had heard some independents were charging as low as 10.9 cents a gallon for the third grade product.

Prices Cut in New Jersey.

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Roebling Gasoline company of Newark today cut its price for the fuel to 8.4 cents a gallon, inclyuding 4 cents state and federal taxes, as the latest and most drastic step in the price war raging between the major oil companies and independent gasoline distributors in New Jersey, the lowest price at which the fuel has ever been sold in New Jersey.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey reduced the price of retail gasoline at Camden, N. J., bringing it to 5 cents a gallon, excluding 4 cents in taxes. This is about 1 cent less than the bulk price in New York harbor.

FOREIGN SILVER FOR INDUSTRIAL USE DECLINES 1¼c

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Foreign silver for domestic industrial use declined 1¼ cents an ounce to 54⅜ cents today, reversing the upward trend that has been in progress for a week or more.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the decline, other than a drop of one penny in the London market to 23⅞ pence which had been announced earlier in the day.

REPORT ROOSEVELT "COULD NOT RELY" ON ARMY ENGINEER DATA

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The state railroad and public utilities commission refused today to make public a confidential statement by David E. Lilienthal, but the Tennessee Valley Authority power director was quoted by opposing counsel as having said that President Roosevelt "could not rely" on data compiled by the army engineering corps.

Lilienthal made the statement last week while testifying in a case involving the purchase by the TVA of Tennessee Public Service company properties in and around Knoxville for $6,191,000. Rising to a point of personal privilege, Lilienthal asked and received permission to make an "off the record" statement.

Counsel for petitioners protesting the transaction then requested the commission to make the statement public, or, if it were not available, to recall Lilienthal to repeat the testimony for the record. Arguing in support of this request, Forney Johnston of Birmingham, an attorney for objectors to the sale, told the commission that "Mr. Lilienthal made an amazing request."

"When he left the stand," Johnston continued, "he said that he hoped it would not go beyond this room—a statement that the President of the United States had said he could not rely on the estimates of the engineering corps of the army."

LABOR BODY MAY TEST 'MAJORITY RULE' IN COURTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—The Roosevelt administration today virtually decided to risk a court test of its radical "majority rule" doctrine on labor relations.

At the same time Lloyd K. Garrison, chairman of the national labor relations board and leading proponent to the majority rule dogma, announced that he will retire from the government post at the end of this week.

Garrison wrote the labor board's decision against the Houde Engineering company of Buffalo, N. Y., in which the majority rule tenet was laid down. Rumors are that Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, may succeed Garrison.

Both Garrison and Attorney General Homer S. Cummings announced today that the famous Houde case probably will be revived and sent to court for a legal test.

Last week Cummings unexpectedly announced that he did not consider the Houde case strong enough to stand up in court.

Today Garrison explained that certain additional evidence which Cummings had considered vital, and which was previously missing, was being furnished to Cummings. With this both said, the case is likely to be sent to court after trial.

JOBS INCREASE AS PRICES EASE, SWOPE ASSERTS

An increase in General Electric company employment followed the establishment of lower selling prices for its products. Gerard Swope, president, stated in an interview yesterday. Mr. Swope is here to attend the annual meeting of the National Electrical Manufacturers association.

"Every reduction in the cost of electrical equipment and in the cost of producing electricity leads to an increased demand," he said, "and reaches a widening circle of consumers with the result that jobs are multiplied and employment increased.

"Every time we bring out a higher quality of electrical products at a lower price, we find that we reach more consumers."

COTTON TRADE OF U. S. PERILED BY PRICE BOOST

New Deal Scheme Curbs Exports.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Figures made available today by the departments of agriculture and commerce indicate that the artificial price boosting schemes of the New Deal threaten the loss of America's dominant position in the world cotton market.

The export of cotton and cotton manufactured goods had accounted for 92 per cent of this country's favorable trade balance for 142 years, and without such exports the increase in the national wealth from foreign trade would have been only 2 billion 849 million dollars instead of 36 billion 600 million. Consequently any serious decline in cotton exports is of importance not only to ten million people and an investment of 500 million dollars in the south but also to the nation as a whole.

Figures Reflect Competition.

For months there have been reports of a shift on the part of foreign manufacturers to non-American cotton because of the rising prices in this country, but for the first time the situation has reached a point where the competition is reflected in domestic prices. Figures released by the bureau of agricultural economics today show a decline in the domestic cotton price from 13.63 cents a pound on Aug. 9, the highest since June, 1930, to 12.35 cents on Oct. 13.

The bureau attributed the downward price trend in part to a continued low level of domestic mill consumption, but also to "greater evidence of shifting from American to foreign cotton."

The report also stated that mill activity in Japan was running at the highest level in history during August and probably remained as high during September, but that the proportion of American cotton being used was smaller than during the last two or three years.

Cotton Exports Down.

Exports of domestic cotton, the bureau reported, totaled only 747,000 bales during August and September, representing a decline of 47 per cent as compared with the same months in 1933 and a decline of 28 per cent when compared with the ten year average for those months.

"While present estimates of total production in foreign countries are very tentative," the report stated, "indications are that there will be some increase over the record crop of 1933-'34. This will result in a considerably larger supply of foreign cotton, as the world carryover at the beginning of this season was about 1,000,000 bales larger than Aug. 1, 1933."

The record foreign cotton crop produced last year, when American growers plowed up 10 million acres, or about one-fourth of their crop, was 12,717,000 bales, as compared with a production of 13,047,000 bales in the United States. With an estimated further increase in foreign production this year and with a domestic production now estimated at only 9,443,000 bales, it becomes clear that the foreign output will be at least 3,000,000 bales above that of this country.

Tells Same Story.

The same story is told by figures on the world consumption of cotton, disclosed by the department of commerce. During the ten year period, 1921-'22 to 1930-'31, American cotton made up an average of 56.4 per cent of the total world consumption. World consumption last year, 1933-'34, was 25,094,000 bales, the highest since 1929-'30. This was brought about by an increase of 1,373,000 bales, or 13 per cent, in the use of foreign cotton, which offset a decline of 632,000 bales, or 4 per cent, in use of American.

In addition to these figures showing a decline in the export and consumption of American cotton, reports from foreign countries show material increases in acreages, particularly in Egypt, Mexico, Brazil, and China. The expansion of cotton production in foreign countries also is indicated by reports from American manufacturers of gin machinery that have done the best export business in many years. One important manufacturer, according to a circular put out by the department of agriculture, reported that he sold more gin machinery for export during the first three months of 1934 than he sold in all of 1931-'33.

Ready for Low Grade Cotton.

Moreover, Lancashire and Manchester spinners are equipping their mills to handle low grade Indian cotton, which they can purchase considerably below the American price levels. Exports of American cotton to the United Kingdom, formerly this country's foremost customer, fell from 1,831,000 bales in 1928-'29 to 1,278,000 bales in 1933-'34.

Foes of the Bankhead act, which limited taxfree production of cotton to 10,000,000 bales this year, and the AAA ploughup and renting schemes, assert that this unmistakable curtailment of the nation's export market in cotton never can be regained. They point out that once land is put into the cultivation of cotton it never is used for other crops, because of the higher yield per acre in cotton, and that the huge capital investments being made in England and other countries for machinery can not be abandoned for the purpose of using American cotton.

Officials of the Agricultural Adjustment administration do not agree that the nation is in danger of losing its cotton export market; they are going right ahead with plans to limit production next year.

Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, head of the AAA brain trust, said Aug. 15 that the emergency control program must soon be transformed into "something of a permanent policy." Tugwell is the only one of the AAA officials who has ventured an opinion that compulsory and voluntary reduction should be made permanent. Cully A. Cobb, chief of the cotton section, says this:

Business Gets 'Jitters' Over Silver Buying

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Reports from Washington that the United States government is considering swapping some of its gold for Chinese silver has given business another attack of the jitters.

Typical of the attitude of business men is the warning given by George E. Roberts, economist of the National City bank of New York. Mr. Roberts expresses the opinion that if the United States should keep on with the silver monkey business it might eventually find itself on a silver standard with the rest of the world on the gold standard. The silver buying program, he points out, will deplete this country's gold and undermine confidence in its currency.

* *

The surprising thing about the silver program is that nobody really seems to want it except a small group of silver mine owners and a coterie of Rocky mountain senators who have built the silver molehill into a political mountain by their continual clamor.

Even President Roosevelt and his New Dealers early demonstrated that they were opposed to confusing the monetary issue with silver relief. The President tried to get the silver bloc off his neck last December with a sop in the form of a government subsidy on newly mined silver. He decreed that the government should buy all such silver at 64½ cents an ounce, a price 50 per cent above the then market.

Later Secretary Morgenthau tried to shame the silver lobby by publishing the names of big silver speculators who stood to gain by any move the government should make to aid silver. About the same time the administration sought to stall for time against the demands of the silver senators by sending Prof. James Rogers of Yale, a member of the brain trust, to China to study the silver situation.

It was all to no avail. The silver senators, having had a taste of blood in the December subsidy decree, insisted on real meat and the President succumbed to their demands. On June 11, 1934, congress passed the administration's silver purchase act of 1934 which instructed that the treasury buy enough silver to provide a 1 to 3 ratio of silver and gold behind the currency. It has been estimated that, if this scheme is to be followed, the treasury will have to buy about 1 billion 300 million more ounces of silver, mostly in foreign countries.

Despite the fact that the annual production of silver in the United States is comparable in value to the annual peanut crop and is of much less importance than the yearly output of onions, the silver producers over a half century have done such a thorough job of ballyhoo and propaganda that in each depression the silver issue has been cunningly confused with the monetary problem.

* *

Economists declare that if the currency is to be inflated it can be done better with federal reserve currency. And they say that if the metallic base of the currency is to be broadened it can be done more safely by reducing the gold content of the dollar and revaluing the gold stocks rather than diluting the gold reserve with either silver, tin, zinc, or antimony.

In February, 1934, a poll of members of the American Economic association showed that more than 85 per cent opposed the increased use of silver. On April 25, 1934, the economists' national committee stated: "No additional silver should be purchased at any price. The purchase of silver bullion at artificial prices will not promote sound recovery, but will add to the liabilities of government and reduce confidence in the nation's currency. A rise in the price of silver benefits materially neither domestic industry nor the foreign trade of the United States."

The price of silver in the world's markets is now nearly 20 cents per ounce higher than it was early last year before the silver pegging began. Thus it may not be unfair to assume that the United States government, by its own purchasing activities, has pushed up the price to a point where it is paying about 20 cents an ounce more than silver is really worth. At that rate in buying the 1 billion 300 million ounces required by the silver purchase act it would be paying a quarter of a billion too much in good hard gold. It probably would be much more than that, however, because additional purchases would force the artificial silver prices still higher.

* *

At the close of 1933 there were about 440 million ounces of silver in Shanghai. To take over that amount of Chinese silver alone would require the expenditure of about 200 million dollars of our gold. That would give China a splendid bargain. Assuming that silver is overvalued about 20 cents an ounce at current prices China would be making a profit of about 88 million dollars in gold on the transaction.

Business men, amazed at the folly of this plan of giving away good hard gold for silver at fictitious prices, are wondering when the silver producers and their senator friends will be satisfied.

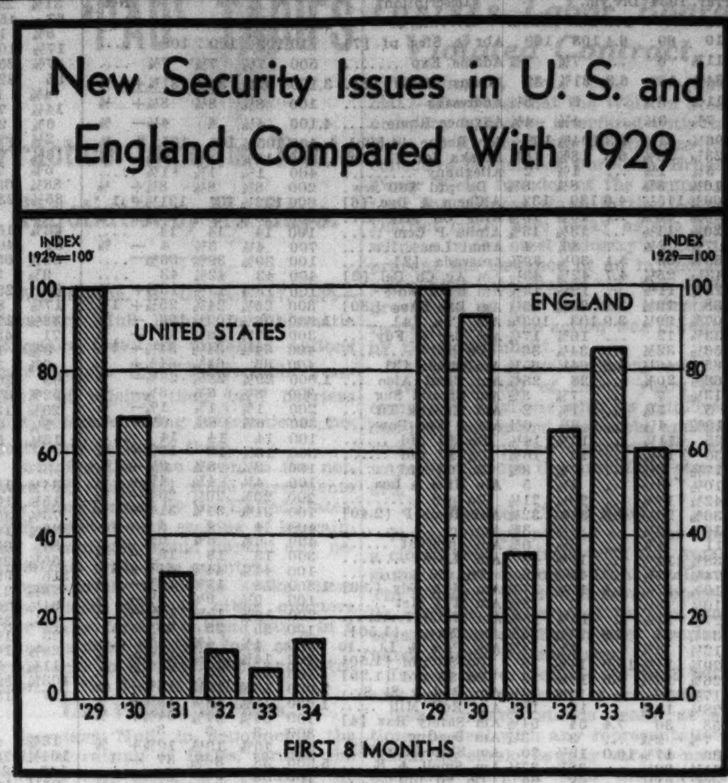
DOLLAR STRONG; BRITISH POUND LOSES HALF CENT

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The dollar was stronger against foreign currencies today. The British pound lost ⅛ cent at $4.93⅜, and the French franc slipped ¼ point to 6.65¾ cents. Other gold currencies eased with the franc.

The value of the dollar in terms of the franc was 58.85 cents, compared with 58.82 cents yesterday.

Canadian dollars lost 15⅝ points to close at $1.0196⅞. The German mark eased 5 points to 40.68 cents, the Swiss franc 5 points to 32.94 cents and the Dutch florin 3 points to 68.45 cents. The Italian lira was unchanged at 8.65 cents. Shanghai dollars dropped 0.675 cent at 34.375 cents and the Hongkong dollar eased 0.975 cent to 41⅛ cents.

Bar gold in London declined 2½ pence to 142 shillings 7 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $35.16. An amount valued at $2,845,512 was sold.



New Security Issues in U. S. and England Compared With 1929

Highest Court Asked to Rule on Gold Clause

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Emphasizing that billions of dollars, and "perhaps even the financial stability of the national government," are involved in the question of the validity of the act suspending gold payments, the United States sought today to support this law by bringing to the Supreme court a case now pending in the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals without waiting for that court to act on it.

The case arose out of the gold clause in the bonds issued by the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railway, which is now in the hands of receivers. Some of the holders are demanding payment in gold or its equivalent in currency.

Regarded as Serious Question.

The government emphasized that the matter was a serious one, because, should the gold clause be sustained, debtors would have to pay $1.69 in present lawful money for each $1 borrowed. This would arise from the fact that every dollar at present is backed by only 59.06 per cent as much gold as before the devaluation.

Of added significance in the present case is the fact that the Reconstruction Finance corporation advanced $23,134,800 to the railroad, taking as security bonds subordinate to the gold mortgage bonds whose holders are demanding payment in gold.

Should gold payment be required, the government is apprehensive the RFC's chances of recovering its loan would be materially decreased, as would its own chances in getting from the railroad $5,000,000 claimed for unpaid taxes.

Sustained at St. Louis.

The Federal District court at St. Louis sustained the act suspending gold payments, declaring it was impossible in fact and in law to make such payments.

Solicitor General Biggs of the justice department, in his action today, stated the government in supporting the act suspending gold payments desired to have the railroad case considered by the Supreme court when it hears oral arguments in a similar case by Norman C. Norman, holder of a Baltimore and Ohio gold bond, which the court has consented to review.

More than 21 billions of dollars of government securities are affected by the issue, Biggs stated in his brief, and continued, "billions of dollars in securities of railroads, industries, states, cities, etc., are likewise affected. Great numbers of private citizens owe large sums of money evidenced by mortgages, notes, and other obligations containing the so-called gold clause. The total of all such obligations outstanding in this country is estimated at $90,000,000,000 to $125,000,000,000."

STEEL WAGES LIFTED $95,000,000 IN LAST YEAR

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The total wage bill of the steel industry was increased by approximately $95,000,000 during the first full year's operation of the NRA steel code, according to figures compiled by the American Iron & Steel Institute.

Over this period, from August, 1933, to September, 1934, approximately $470,000,000 went into the pay envelopes of the industry's employés, the institute announced.

The institute stated that a survey, just completed, showed "fully 86 per cent of the steel workers of the country are standing behind their employé representation plans of collective bargaining."

PLANS HUGE U. S. COAL PURCHASES TO PROVIDE JOBS

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A 5,000,000 ton government coal purchasing program to give jobs to 36,000 idle anthracite miners was announced today by James A. Gorman, umpire of the anthracite conciliation board.

The coal would be distributed to the needy and jobless, Gorman said, at a total cost less than the present federal "corn, wheat, cotton, and hog enterprise." In a letter announcing the plan, Gorman said the men would receive minimum weekly wages of $13.86 for three days' work. The coal to be purchased would be allocated among 16 mining companies.

U. S. SEEKS TO COLLECT SCORES OF MILLIONS IN DEFICIENCY TAXES

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—As part of a broad move to close revenue law loop holes, the treasury was disclosed today to have notified around 100 corporations that they owe the government scores of millions of dollars in deficient taxes.

A tax deficiency of $17,199,797 was shown to have been assessed against Fisher & Co. of Detroit, holding concern for investments of the six Fisher brothers, automobile industry leaders.

Aiming particularly to curb alleged illegal transfer of profits to surplus to avoid surtax payments by stockholders, the treasury has levied on around 100 other companies penalties of 50 per cent of net income for the years concerned.

Nearly 50 of the companies have replied, denying the allegations and in many instances challenging the constitutionality of the penalty provision, contending it is an executive usurpation of judical power.

Among those receiving notices is the Matson Securities company of San Francisco, holding large interests in the Matson Navigation company and in various Hawaiian development enterprises. A total deficiency of $874,377 was asked for 1930. Assessments aggregating $100,788 have been placed against William De Mille. Others were made against Cecil B. De Mille. Both are Hollywood moving picture producers.

JUDGE APPROVES GARY ELECTRIC BOND EXTENSION

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday confirmed the plan of extension for the $8,000,000 first lien collateral 5 per cent gold bonds, series A, of the Gary Electric and Gas company in the company's reorganization. This is said to be the largest corporation reorganization to date under the recently enacted McKeown act.

Principal features of the plan include the extension of maturity of the bonds for 10 years, a continuation of the present interest rate for the extended period, creation of an annual sinking fund for the purchase of bonds and the issuance of a stock warant for each $1,000 bond which the holders can exchange for 15 shares of the stock without cost.

Up to yesterday approximately 85 per cent of the bonds had been deposited under the plan.

NEW DEALERS SPEND $11,900 EVERY MINUTE

Emergency Costs Exceed Billion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—The New Dealers have spent money at the rate of $11,900 every minute thus far in the 1934-'35 fiscal year, the treasury revealed today. While the government is spending $11,900, it is collecting an average of only $7,300. It is running into debt at the average rate of $4,600 every minute.

These facts were disclosed when the treasury made public today its report on the first three and a half months of its fiscal year. The 1934-'35 bookkeeping year began July 1 and will close June 30, 1935.

New Deal emergency expenditures alone have already cost more than a billion dollars, the treasury's report showed. Added to these emergency costs is another 813 million dollars of so-called "routine expenses," bringing the total spent thus far to 1 billion, 828 millions.

Three Pets Get Most.

Alphabetical units such as the PWA and FERA, which are the pets of the New Dealers, are getting the lion's share of the easy money, the treasury revealed. The relief administration has spent 444 million dollars. Public works has spent 424 millions. The citizens' conservation corps has spent 117 millions. Of the scores of government bureaus these three alphabetical pets have received more than a half of all the money spent.

None of the "routine" government bureaus can compete with the New Deal agencies for spending laurels. Highest cost listed by the treasury as part of its regular spending is 174 millions paid to veterans by the veterans' administration. Army and navy costs, amounting to 155 millions, rank second.

Interest on the ever-mounting public debt has eaten up 119 millions already in the fiscal year and is one of the major drains on the treasury. Interest on the debt has cost more than the running expenses of the old-line bureaus, such as the state, justice, interior and labor departments. Their costs to date are 117 millions.

Eight Get 94 Per Cent.

Eight items of the scores listed in the budget account for 94 per cent of the 1 billion, 828 million dollars spent thus far. These items are: Relief, $444,000,000; public works, $424,000,000; AAA, $183,000,000; veterans, $174,000,000; army and navy, $155,000,000; debt interest, $119,000,000; departments, $117,000,000; conservation corps, $117,000,000; total, $1,733,000,000.

On the revenue side of the ledger the treasury has only 1 billion, 121 millions thus far, leaving a deficit of 707 millions. This deficit is more than twice as large as the deficit on the same date a year ago.

Since the start of the fiscal year, the public debt has increased from $27,053,141,414 to $27,200,106,462. A year ago it was $23,055,555,810.

Union Official Is Named to Rail Adjustment Board

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 17.—(AP)—G. H. Oram of Boise, Idaho, a vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors, has been appointed by J. A. Phillips, president of the order, to membership in the National Railroad Adjustment board. The position was left vacant by the recent death of L. E. Sheppard of Cedar Rapids, a former president of the conductors.

STOCKS UNEVEN, DUE PARTLY TO PROFIT TAKING

Capital "Picture" Checks Operations for Rise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—Trade news continued to favor the constructive side of the stock market today, but uncertainties over the Washington "picture" held operations for the rise in check. Profit taking was apparent in sections of the list throughout the session and the close was uneven.

Among the items of bullish flavor that took news ticker space during the day were the weekly electric power output figures reflecting the sharpest gain over a year ago in several months, the Iron Age's midweek summary which said that the steel industry had assumed a somewhat brighter aspect since the clearing up of uncertainties regarding labor and wages, and some cheerful railroad statistics.

Await Roosevelt Address.

Boardroom gossip indicated a growing interest in the address of President Roosevelt to be given before the American Bankers' association convention next week and the hope that the event will result in some clarification of the government's policy on money.

Trading in stocks lacked the group movements that have been lending color to the market of late, but price changes of interest were found among a few miscellaneous issues. Simms Petroleum was especially active and sold up a point or so to the best price since 1930. Some commentators were guessing that a change in the refining and market activities of the corporation might clear the way for amalgamation with another oil company, possibly Amerada.

Coca Cola was strong, rising 3 points to its best level in three years to the accompaniment of revived speculation regarding the possibility of a stock split up. Some of the alcohol shares found the sledding heavy for no apparent reason.

Price War Hurts Oils.

The gasoline price war, which is bringing forth fresh price reductions almost daily, weighed somewhat on some of the oil stocks. Standard of New Jersey, however, which has been showing the way down for the cutters until the last day or so, held within a small fraction of its previous close.

Silver shares turned weak after an early showing of strength, reflecting the slump in white metal prices in London. U. S. Smelting dropped 3 points from its high of the day. American Smelting suffered a net loss of a point and other issues of the group were under selling stress at times.

Merchandising issues were again in favor. Such demand as came their way converged on Spiegel-May-Stern, McClellan, and Sears-Roebuck.

In the farm implement sector, International Harvester rose about 3 points but gave up about half its newly won ground in the later trading.

Motors were somewhat better in quiet dealings and tobaccos came in for further patronage.

Atlantic Refining 9 Month Net Rises to $2.02 a Share

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Atlantic Refining company and subsidiaries report for the nine months ended Sept. 30 net profit of $5,374,700 after charges, equal to $2.02 a common share, compared with $4,708,500, or $1.75 a share, in the same period a year ago. In the third quarter net profit was $2,384,700, equal to 89 cents a share, against $5,710,159, or $2.12 a year ago.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Cotton goods trading was of moderate volume today. New prices were named on ginghams for January-March delivery on a basis of 12½ cents for 32 inch standards, 1 cent up. Wool goods were in light demand, chiefly for prompt delivery. Silk crepes and satins sold moderately. Fancies in rayon fabrics sold more freely. Plain taffetas were dull. Burlaps were firm and trading quiet.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—SUGAR—No sales of raw sugar were definitly reported today, although it was rumored that Cubas from store sold to refiners at 2.91@2.92c. It was also revealed that during the last few days 30,100 bags of Cubas sold from store at Norfolk to a refiner with outport options at 2.95c, and 25,000 bags from store here at 2.91c.

Futures firmed in the late trading on increased covering and buying by trade and Cuban interests. Demand was prompted by reports that refiners were showing a little more interest in the spot market. Final prices 1 to 2 points net higher. Sales 9,505 tons. Prices:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—Domestic corporation bonds, high grade as well as speculative types, worked higher in reduced trading volume today. On the other hand, government issues were in a reactionary condition after the recent advance.

Selling pressure was brought against governments in early trading, causing losses ranging up to a quarter point, but lower prices attracted fresh buying orders and the downturn was reduced. Home Owners Loan and Federal Farm Mortgage issues were quick to rally, but the treasury's direct obligations were inclined to lag to the close.

Traders Are Encouraged.

The decline and rally gave bond men more encouragement than would have been caused by steady continuation of the advance. Traders realized that the pace of the rise had been so rapid that the market might have been seriously damaged by a run of profit taking if it came at a time when buyers had withdrawn.

Fractional gains were recorded in most of the representative high grade corporate issues. One to two point advances were numerous among lower grades of domestic bonds.

Japanese and Italians Break.

The day's turnover was $13,780,000 par value compared with $16,634,000 on Tuesday. Sales in the government section aggregated $4,730,000, against $7,170,000.

Asserts German Bond Prospects Hinge on Trade

In the future of international trade between Germany and the United States lies the hope of holders of German dollar bonds, Laird Bell, director and vice president of Foreign Bondholders' Protective council, said in an address before the Investment Analysts club of Chicago at the Hamilton club yesterday. He indicated that the outlook for any material improvement is not promising.

United Biscuit.

Investors' Guide: Will you please advise me on United Biscuit, both the preferred and common?—H. J.

Answer: United Biscuit Company of America ranks among the three largest units in the biscuit and cracker industry. It operates 15 bakeries. Products are distributed widely in the area extending from Philadelphia to Salt Lake City. It turns out about 250 varieties of cakes, biscuits, crackers, and cookies which are sold under the "Supreme Bakers" trade-mark.

Earnings in 1933 and in the first half of 1934 showed a slight upturn after having shown rather sharp declines for the three preceding years. In the first half of 1934 net income was $491,000, or 98 cents per common share, against net of $417,000, or 82 cents per common share, for the first six months of 1933.

1933	$6,842,000	$1,015,000	$2.03
1932	7,080,000	908,000	1.79
1931	8,754,000	1,179,000	3.71
1930	9,175,000	2,005,000	4.01

Current assets of $3,261,000 on Dec. 31, 1933, were well in excess of current liabilities of $377,000.

Funded debt of about $3,000,000, due 1942, precedes the 13,998 shares of $100 par 7 per cent preferred and the 450,325 shares of no par common. Preferred and common dividends have been paid regularly. The common currently pays 40 cents a quarter.

The preferred is rather high grade and the common is medium grade.

B. F. Goodrich Company.

Investors' Guide: Please let me have information on B. F. Goodrich 6s of 1945. Inclosed is stamped, addressed envelope for reply.—D. M. J.

Answer: B. F. Goodrich company is one of the four largest units in the automobile tire industry. In 1929 and previous years charges were regularly earned by wide margins. In subsequent years, however, price wars, inventory losses, and lessened demand cut heavily into profit margin and losses before interest charges were sustained in 1930, 1931, and 1932.

Firming of prices and improved competitive conditions enabled the company to earn almost all its interest charges in 1933 [97 per cent coverage]. The improvement continued into 1934. In the first half of this year net income after all charges was $1,580,000, against $124,000 for the first six months of 1933.

Current position is strong. On June 30, 1934, current assets were six times current liabilities.

The $19,800,000 unsecured 6 per cent debentures, due 1945, are junior to $18,178,000 first mortgage 6½s, due 1947. The debentures are somewhat speculative.

HULL LASHES NATIONS THAT 'PAD' TARIFS

Practice Imperils Trade Negotiations, He Says.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Secretary Hull lashed in diplomatic language today at unnamed nations indulging in the "indefensible practice" of raising their tarif barriers just before entering international negotiations to lower them.

Bringing the case down to the network of reciprocal trade agreements now being formed by the United States, Hull asserted such seeking of bargaining advantages would imperil any negotiations with this country.

Immediately after he spoke there was official word in other quarters that many foreign nations have, in a sense, banded together in a series of trade acts to the exclusion and detriment of the United States.

Like Padding of Prices.

Secretary Hull, in denouncing the artificial raising of tarifs, termed the practice equivalent to "padding the price" of an article and then cutting it to make a sale. It would result, he said, only in harm to world trade and the probable failure of any negotiations seeking to dredge out the world's clogged trade channels.

Secretary Hull, in addition to hitting at "price padding," assailed the practice of nations seeking solely to increase their exports and reduce their imports as contrary to the spirit of a program designed to reduce trade barriers in all possible ways. A world program, he asserted, "cannot succeed in the face of such practices."

Point to German Acts.

While Hull refrained from naming any nation, officials developing the trade program pointed significantly to Germany's restrictive import policy and recent denunciation of its unconditional most favored nation commercial treaty with this country.

Unofficial fingers were directed also toward France's decision to boost some tarif rates and forewarnings that several other nations contemplated tarif increases or quota restrictions.

RAIL, WATERWAY TRUCE DECLARED AT MEETING HERE

Officials of five railway freight lines and of an equal number of waterway companies met yesterday at the Union League club and agreed to bury the hatchet—temporarily at least—and make a coördinated effort to secure more business. The meeting was held as a result of efforts made by Maj. Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn, head of the Federal Barge lines.

A committee of five representatives each from the water and rail freight carriers is to meet with Joseph B. Eastman, federal rail coördinator, in Washington, on Oct. 31, to decide upon a course of action.

Members from both sides asserted that yesterday's meeting in no way will affect the war which both carriers are waging against each other before the interstate commerce commission. Months ago the railroads filed charges that waterway transportation was "uneconomical and wasteful" and asked for the abolition of "through routes" and joint rates for freight transported by both rail and water.

REPLACEMENTS EXPECTED TO AID HEAVY INDUSTRY

E. O. Shreve, vice president of General Electric company, speaking before the annual meeting of the National Electrical Manufacturers association yesterday, said that the lack of a long term capital market has been holding back purchases in heavy duty equipment. Utilities, he said, are as a whole buying no new equipment. During the first half of 1934, he said, 20 per cent of all sales of heavy duty goods were financed either directly or indirectly by government funds.

"One of the major reasons for an optimistic outlook in the durable goods industry," said Mr. Shreve, "is the tremendous backlog of obsolete and depreciated equipment which will eventually have to be replaced. The amount has been estimated at 20 billion dollars."

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

Public offering is being made today by Lazard, Freres & Co., Inc., of $712,000 City of Rochester, N. Y., 4 per cent school and sewerage bonds, which were acquired at the public sale held yesterday by the Reconstruction Finance corporation as fiscal agent for the public works administration. The bonds, which are dated Feb. 1, 1934, and mature Feb. 1, 1935 to 1950, inclusive, are priced to yield from 0.50 per cent to 3.20 per cent. They are tax free in New York state and exempt from all present federal income tax.

A new issue of $225,000 of 4 per cent city school district bonds, series H, of the city of Jamestown, N. Y., is being offered today by Lazard, Freres & Co., Inc., and first of Michigan corporation at prices to yield from ⅝ of 1 per cent to 2.50 per cent. The bonds are dated June 1, 1934, and mature June 1, 1935 to 1940.

Rochester is expected to enter the market on Oct. 24 with an offering of one million dollars of welfare bonds, it was reported yesterday. Further details of the issue will be made public later.

Award of an issue of $315,000 Albany Port District bonds has been scheduled for Oct. 24 by the city of Albany. The bonds will be dated Nov. 1, 1934, will mature on Nov. 1, 1939 to 1983, and will carry interest at a rate not exceeding 4½ per cent.

An issue of $250,000 of 4½ per cent Water bonds of the Washington Suburban Sanitary district [Maryland], dated Oct. 1, 1934, and due in fifty years was awarded yesterday to R. W. Pressprich & Co., and Hannahs, Ballin & Lee at a price of 102.44.

E. T. WEIR DENIES CURBING UNIONS AT STEEL PLANT

Insists Labor Board Violated Contract.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Denying that the Weirton Steel company had ever interfered with the right of its employés to organize for collective bargaining purposes, Ernest Tener Weir, founder of the company, took the witness stand in the federal District court here today as the first witness in the steel industry's fight to prevent the issuance of an injunction compelling observance of the labor provisions of the national industrial recovery act. The action was brought by the government.

The burden of his testimony was:

Over a period of thirty years the company's relations with its employés had been happy and peaceable, and the wages paid by the company had always been above the prevailing standard.

Refuses Closed Shop.

It had always refused to enter into a closed shop contract with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, but it had never opposed its workers who wished to join that organization, nor had it ever discriminated against its members.

It had never refused to deal with any employé or group of employés.

The company stands ready at all times to deal with any representatives whom its employés may care to name and will bargain with those representatives in a bona fide attempt to reach an agreement with them, but this is not to be construed to mean that it will ever "recognize" the amalgamated in the sense that it is prepared to enter into a closed shop contract with the union.

Violated by Board.

As for the agreement signed with the National Labor board and the representatives of the strikers in Washington on Oct. 16, 1933, Mr. Weir declared, it was the National Labor board which violated this and so made it necessary for the company to terminate it.

The company did not repudiate the agreement, did not "fire" the labor board, nor did it refuse at any time to permit the labor board to supervise the elections of Dec. 11 and Dec. 15.

Mr. Weir's appearance on the stand came after the government with unexpected suddenness had rested its case without calling the eight remaining witnesses it had subpenaed.

EASTERN ROAD MAKES $2,000,000 BOND OFFERING

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The first public offering of railroad bonds since the securities exchange law took effect was made today by the Bangor and Aroostook railroad through Brown, Harriman & Co. and the Lee-Higginson corporation. The offering comprises 2,000,000 stamped convertible consolidated refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds due in 1951.

The issue is to be registered under the securities exchange law for the purposes of listing on the New York Stock exchange. Under the securities law railroads do not have to file the voluminous registration data with the securities and exchange commission required from other corporations, but in other respects the two laws apply to railroad offerings.

The circular in which the bonds are offered is the most elaborate used for a railroad issue since enactment of either law. Although it follows the form of the old bond circular it is much longer and more informative.

"The undersigned have made purchases of securities of the railroad company in the open market for their own accounts, and they reserve the right, in connection with the marketing of these bonds, to make purchases or sales for their own accounts, in the open market or otherwise, of securities of any issue of the railroad company."

Shawinigan Water & Power Nine Month Profit Higher

Shawinigan Water and Power company reports for the nine months ended Sept. 30 profit of $2,294,799 after charges, interest, and ordinary taxes, but before depreciation and income taxes, compared with $2,054,856 in the same period last year.

CHICAGO REGION UTILITIES REPORT LOWER INCOMES

Declines Are Attributed to Taxes and NRA.

Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois yesterday reported a decline in net income during September and for the first nine months of the year as compared with the corresponding periods a year ago.

The decreases were attributed by Public Service to increased provisions for state and local taxes, the 3 per cent federal tax on electricity and the Illinois 2 per cent retailers' occupational tax on electric, gas, and water services and by increased pay roll costs due to compliance with the National Industrial Recovery act. Commonwealth Edison cited similar reasons, as they apply to the production and distribution of electricity.

Edison Income Drops.

Net income of the Commonwealth Edison company for September totaled $393,591, compared with $410,315 in September, 1933, after allocation of adjustments affecting the year 1933. Gross for the month was $6,060,912, against $6,057,744 in September a year ago.

For the first nine months of 1934 the company reported net income of $4,521,745, compared with $4,833,140 for the corresponding period of 1933. Gross revenues for the period totaled $56,036,224, against $53,402,884.

Net income of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois for September totaled $25,249, compared with $88,745 a year ago after allocation of adjustments affecting 1933. Gross for the month amounted to $2,690,6[illegible], against $2,634,109.

Public Service Net Off.

During the first nine months of the year the company had net income of $1,535,251, against $2,039,141 in the corresponding 1933 period. Gross revenues for the period totaled $24,8[illegible], compared with $24,035,820.

Northern Indiana Public Service company had net income of $534,321 for the eight months ended Aug. 31, J. N. Shannahan, chairman, announced yesterday. This is a decrease of $59,142 from net income of the corresponding period of last year. It was stated that the summer slump seriously affected earnings for the third quarter, making net income available for dividends in the first eight months of the year $333,557 less than the full dividends on the preferred stock for that period.

NICHOLS REPORTS BANK PROFITING DESPITE BURDENS

J. W. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood, in connection with his latest criticism of the fiscal policies of the Roosevelt administration, discloses that his bank is earning a little profit despite the handicap under which banks generally are operating. "I dare say our bank will be one of a half dozen banks in Chicago to pay a dividend out of earnings this year," he says.

Nichols' criticism of the Roosevelt administration is contained in a poster displayed in the lobby of his bank calling attention to the threat of the federal government to fine him $100 a day for each teller's window he has open, because of his failure to join the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

"This Federal Deposit Insurance idea is merely a wolf in sheep's clothing," the poster says. "It is in no sense of the word insurance, for with true insurance the premium is based on the risk. Under their plan a solvent bank such as ours is forced to pay the same premium as the one that couldn't pay 10 cents on the dollar."

Nichols insists that the plan is simply a "shakedown in order that the politicians may protect their political favorites." He adds that if every bank were insured according to its risk he would be one of the first to accept the plan.

WHEAT PRICES MOVE LOWER ON WEATHER NEWS

Other Grains Also Turn Downward.

Wheat and corn prices shifted listlessly within a range of about 1 cent yesterday. Corn opened as much as ½ cent higher, with the May option selling at a new high since Sept. 13, but there was a noticeable lack of buying power and all grains closed lower.

Reports of rains in parts of Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas tended to dampen the enthusiasm of wheat bulls, and the decline in that grain carried corn along with it. Wheat closed near the bottom at net losses of 1 to 1⅝ cents, May at $1.00⅝. Corn lost ¼ to ⅝ cent, with May at 79⅞ cents. Oats sagged ¼ to ⅜ cent, and rye ½ to 1 cent. Barley was unchanged to ¼ cent lower.

Corn Center of Interest.

The corn market was again the center of trade interest, with most of the professional element arrayed on the buying side. These interests were able to hold the price above Tuesday's level a good part of the day in the face of profit taking credited to small longs.

Wheat bulls operated under the handicap of weakness in Liverpool, where futures closed ½ to ¾ cent lower due to an official Australian crop estimate placing the yield at 136,000,000 bushels, or about 15,000,000 bushels in excess of recent private returns. Winnipeg finished ⅝ to ⅞ cent lower, with a slow foreign demand for cash wheat reported.

Oats Hedging Reported.

Sales of oats futures in Chicago, presumably against purchases of Argentine grain by New York interests, had a depressing effect on the market. Pit brokers said there had been evidence of hedging by the east in small lots for several days. The total is reported around 200,000 bushels. Rye was under some pressure from a cash house. There were intimations the selling represented operations against foreign grain. Rye was understood to have been offered at the seaboard close to an import basis.

A great disparity was shown in husking returns on corn from various parts of the belt. A Storm Lake, Ia., message to J. E. Bennett & Co., reported yields of 43 to 50 bushels an acre with the grain grading No. 3, while in the southern section of the same state many fields were not worth husking. The same condition was reported in parts of Illinois.

Rail Officials to Meet Here on M. & St. L. Sale

Executives of seven midwestern railroads will meet at the office of Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, here on Friday to consider arrangements under which the carriers that connect with the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad may bid on properties of the latter line at a receiver's sale to be held soon.

Milnor Sells Pit Seat to Grain Co-Op Official

George S. Milnor, who recently resigned as general manager of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, has posted his membership on the Chicago Board of Trade to Orville McClintock, manager of the Chicago branch of the coöperative grain firm. The transfer price was reported at $7,000 net to the buyer.

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES GAIN; POTATOES IRREGULAR

Butter futures gained ⅜ to ⅝ cent on better statistical reports on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Eggs were up ⅛ to ¼ cent. Potatoes were 5 cents lower to 3 cents higher.

The Land o' Lakes reported butter production 9 per cent less than last year and 6 per cent less than the previous week. The movement of storage stocks from storage totaled 110,000 pounds more than last year.

Egg reports showed 10,000 cases more out than last year, and the market started higher. The buying was met by heavy profit taking and new selling.

PRICES OF HOGS RECOVER AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Receipts at Stockyards Show Sharp Rise.

Increases in receipts of hogs forced prices down 5 to 10 cents at the opening of trade yesterday, but demand expanded on the break and losses were soon recovered. Closing rounds were active and highest of the day, with the bulk of best grades late about in line with the average of Tuesday.

Practically all of the increase in receipts yesterday was at Chicago because of the strong undertone the trade here has displayed during the last two days of heavy selling by farmers. The market is lower than a week ago, but withstood pressure of numbers better than had been expected. Yesterday's receipts at Chicago at 26,000 were largest for a Wednesday since May 23 and showed an increase of 6,000 compared with a week earlier and 10,000 increase compared with the same day in 1933.

Big Packers Buying.

Big packers have been among the most aggressive buyers on all breaks of late, and they obtained 53 per cent of yesterday's total arrivals at Chicago, including their direct shipments. Their average droves of hogs cost them 84 per cent more than on the same day in 1933 and 128 per cent more than two years ago.

Packers paid upward to $8.05 for selected 223 to 280 pound butchers, including the $2.25 tax to the federal government and the $5.80 to the farmer on the market. Of the $7.45 to $8 bulk, the farmers were paid $5.20 to $5.75. Prices for the whole session averaged $7.75, tax included, as compared with a general average of $4.20 a year ago and $3.40 two years ago, when there was no processing tax.

Cattle Demand Slower.

A depressed wholesale trade for dressed beef curbed buying of cattle here yesterday and prices ruled weak to 25 cents lower except on a few lots of prime weighty beeves, which were very scarce. One load averaging 1,491 pounds topped the list at $10.15, the highest price paid for cattle since Oct. 8 and within 10 cents of the highest mark since Sept. 24. However, despite the high top figure established on weighty beeves, the general trade was unsatisfactory and the finish the lowest of the day.

Yearlings and light steers, mostly shortfeds, made up the bulk of the crop on sale, and these experienced the sharpest price slashing when buyers went after quotations in earnest after a draggy forenon trade. Calves were steady to weak.

Lamb prices were pounded down 25 cents yesterday to the lowest level since July. Selected natives were bought by city butchers at $6.50 and packers did not pay over $6.25.

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES ADVANCE 2½ TO 10 CENTS

Removal of hedges against sales of cash lard, both export and domestic, was responsible for an upturn of 2½ to 10 cents in futures yesterday. A small dip early was on selling induced by further easiness in hogs.

Bellies closed 10 to 15 cents higher, although cash demand was said to be light. Cash and loose lard was held at $9.40 and leaf at $9.37 while bellies were $13.37. Prices follow:

COTTON SHOWS STRENGTH BUT RECEDES ON SELLING

Cotton showed fair strength early with commission houses, the far east, and India moderate buyers, but the market eased toward the last on scattered selling, partly attributed to hedging against small purchases in the interior, and the close at net losses of 2 to 5 points in Chicago, while other markets were unchanged to 5 points lower.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points lower, with New Orleans 12.70 cents, Galveston and Houston 12.65 cents, and New York 12.60 cents per pound. Prices follow:

WHICH ARE YOU INTERESTED IN—A title or a chance to make money without investment? The man at the head of this office had a degree—he was a civil engineer. He worked on big projects. Then his world curled up and he had to start in all over. Today this electric unit business is making more money for him in fat comm. checks than his profession brought him and he has helped many others to success. The man who prejudges will remain broke. Open-minded men who love genuine independence will make money. North Side and North Shore residents who are in earnest are invited to come for a personal interview from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Thurs., Oct. 18, in Room 208 at 1753 Howard-st.

MEN

EIGHT MEN THIS COMPANY SET UP IN A BUSINESS OF THEIR OWN EARNED THE LAST THREE WEEKS AN AVERAGE OF $375 PER MAN.

A SENSATIONAL NEW BUSINESS GIVES THIS INTERNATIONAL COMPANY THE OPPORTUNITY OF ESTABLISHING A FEW MEN IN A PERMANENT, PROFITABLE BUSINESS WITHOUT INVESTMENT ON THEIR PART.

I could never begin to put in writing the real meaning of this opportunity. It is difficult to write an ad that will attract the attention of good men, due to the fact that so many advertisements appear in the papers.

Our new business is wonderful and is getting better every day. Our representatives are happy in their work, making from $35 to as high as $200 a week, merchandising this new electrical hygiene unit on a dealer percentage and double bonus franchise.

To sincere men who do not answer ads—yet want a position of responsibility—permanent and profitable—I sincerely believe you will enjoy every minute of your investigation. Our only requirements are good appearance and good references.

Personal interview Thursday only at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m.

IF YOUR WANTS ARE WITHIN REASON, YOU CAN SOON MAKE THE MONEY THAT YOU BELIEVE YOU NEED TO LIVE PROPERLY!

Just get this fact clearly, because it is highly important: Every man whom we accept in this successful business does not make big money, but some men average $100 a week or better at the end of a few months. Others stay in the $30 to $40 a week class. This is only because some men think big and others think small. Gradually we have taken men with little income ideas and taught them how to earn more money—but it is seldom we can help a man to success who does not have family responsibilities and character, and who is not in his good years.

But let us tell you here and now, there is no use calling for an interview about openings in this famous and successful electrical service, unit and machine business, if you are a snap-hunter or a part time worker. We pay out plenty of big comm. checks regularly to men who work consistently, and we have men here drawing far more than many so-called successful business men, but they earn it. Have you the grit and stamina to do likewise?

We are interested in West Side and West Suburban men only, and men selected make no investment, buy no goods, and do not put up any deposit or collateral. But they must be competent men, neat and courteous. We want men who are not just going to pound the pavement answering another ad, but who are determined to get into a permanent business that will bring their families and themselves the success they long to have! If you wish to learn about this opportunity, call for a personal interview Room 329 at 9 S. Kedzie-av. from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Thursday, Oct. 18. If we get together you will be put to work next Monday morning.

J. W. Martin.

Above is the name of a man whom we started in business for himself last Monday morning. The first four days in our business he made, on percentage basis, net $96.00 for himself, or $24.00 per day. This man was a carpenter, out of work for some time, with no experience in our line.

This week we will start in Chicago, south side and suburbs, six more men on the road to success with our prosperous company, who, owing to our unusual electrical unit, plus our unique merchandising plan which develops prospects faster than you can handle them, have increased our business every month during the depression with this month of October being the biggest in history.

We have associated with us as associate dealers, which we finance with no investment to them, everything from stock to accounts, ex-plumbers, doctors, farmers, barbers, salesmen, lawyers, clerks, etc., who are earning from $50.00 to $150.00 per week.

The six men I am now ready to place must be honest, reliable, trustworthy, teachable and between the ages of 25 to 50.

Every applicant granted a personal interview and if you qualify you will receive a complete factory branch training at no expense to you, plus assistance in the development of your business by experts.

If you really need a permanent position and have a grammar school education, apply Thursday between 1:00 and 3:00, suite 404, 841 E. 63d-st. [one block east of Cottage Grove]. Ask for Personnel Director.

BURNHAM
School of Beauty Culture
OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOUND ONLY AT BURNHAM'S.
FOR 63 YEARS THE WORLD'S LARGEST BEAUTY SCHOOL.

When you visit Burnham's you'll understand why more girls enroll in this school than in any other, and you'll be amazed at the unexpected and exclusive advantages which our 63 year record of turning out the best operators enables us to pass on to you—such as positions on ocean liners, positions with the best shops which DEMAND Burnham graduates, the opportunity of earning while learning, free tools, unlimited practice on living models, easy terms, and many other advantages.

Once explained, you'll see how Burnham teaching methods will enable you to master Beauty Culture quicker, easier, and better—why these methods develop the type of operator shop owners want.

If you ACT now you can arrange to pay for most of your tuition after you graduate. Call, phone, or write for FREE BEAUTY BOOK.

THE IMPORTANT THING
BEAUTY CULTURE
COMPLETING.

MOLER creates positions not only in the beauty shops of their thousands of Moler graduates, but in such delightfully unusual places as Transcontinental R. R. Trains, Steamships, Hospitals, State and Fraternal Organizations, employers who know and demand superior service.

MOLER not only creates superior positions, but creates superior graduates through their superior individual training course that is perfection in itself, true economy in time, effort and final cost.

MOLER'S half rate regular course is still maintained for those who must make every dollar count double.

BRING YOUR Money Problems
to HOUSEHOLD

We have 17 branch offices in the Chicago district and do the largest business because:
1. We make loans of $30 to $300 at reasonable cost.
2. We do not question your employer, your neighbors, your relatives, or your tradespeople.
3. All of our offices are equipped to handle your business in a private room.
4. We give free, authentic information on managing family incomes.

Our Rates Reduced

Hunt Robinson to Face Death Penalty in Kidnaping—His Wife and Father Charged with Violating Lindbergh Law

[Acme Photo.]

[Acme Photo.]

of Stoll. It will have to be one of several business men living in Nashville, Tennessee, who we know to be a friend of Stoll, and who we are prepared to watch in order to see if you try to set a trap for us. We will allow Stoll to choose one of these men.

THIS INTERMEDIARY MUST HAVE ABSOLUTE FREEDOM FROM POLICE. HE MUST NOT EVEN BE QUESTIONED BY ANYONE. YOU MUST NOT CORRESPOND WITH HIM. IF HE IS PUT WISE, THE DEAL IS OFF, AND WE WILL CARRY OUT OUR THREAT AS TO STOLL. We must have a clear opportunity to contact the intermediary. We cannot do that with police surrounding the house. If they do, you can take our word that we will know of this fact in advance, and then we will make no effort to collect the money, but will then do what we have said we would about Stoll.

STARTING THE DAY AFTER THE KIDNAPING, WE GIVE YOU 5 (five) DAYS(not including a Sunday) TO GET THE MONEY INTO THE HANDS OF THE INTERMEDIARY. THIS MEANS THAT IT MUST BE SENT ON THE FOURTH DAY IN ORDER TO ARRIVE ON THE FIFTH. Do this sooner, if possible, as the sooner Stoll is returned, the easier it will be on him.

THEN, JUST AS SOON AS WE GET THE MONEY INTO OUR HANDS, STOLL WILL BE RELEASED UNHARMED. To this we give you our word.

We will call Express Agency in Nashville and see when your package arrives. (We will call from a pay station far from where we hold Stoll).

Do not take the serial numbers of the money. IF YOU MAKE ANY PUBLICITY OF THIS CASE AFTER STOLL IS RETURNED, OR TRY TO CATCH US IN ANY WAY AFTERWARDS, WE WILL SHOOT DOWN YOUR FAMILY FROM OUR CAR WITH A 30-30 RIFLE.

Do not waste our time or yours trying to reduce the ransom. You can get $50,000 or else-------.

THERE CAN BE NO OTHER NEGOTIATIONS. WE DO NOT HAVE TIME TO BARGAIN. IF YOU DELAY AND STALL FOR TIME, WE HAVE TOLD YOU OUR POSITION, AND WHAT MUST HAPPEN TO STOLL. We have no other alternative if we do not receive the money. THIS JOB IS SO ARRANGED THAT NO ONE OUTSIDE THE STOLL FAMILY WILL KNOW WHAT HAS HAPPENED AT THE START. It is for you to keep it that way.

Explain Stoll's absence as illness or say he is out of town.

NAME OF INTERMEDIARY (to be filled in by Stoll)

Mr. T. H. ROBINSON

Town NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

WE ASSURE YOU THAT PACKAGE OF MONEY WILL NOT GET INTO WRONG HANDS, SO DO NOT TRY TO CONTACT THIS MAN, AS IT MAY UPSET PLAN OF PAY-OFF.
